Petition To Oust Key Turned Down by Judge Pomeroy

RAGSDALE TENURE WAS NOT INCLUDED IN ACT, IS RULING

RESULT EXPECTED, MAYSON ASSERTS

Borough Attorney Holds Action Taken Against Executive Was Without Legal Justification.

Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy in Fulton superior court late Tuesday denied a petition filed on behalf of John R. Duffey to oust Mayor James L. Key on the ground that the latter is holding office illegally. George R. Finch, counsel for Duffey, announced his intent to file an appeal and Judge Pomeroy said that this morning he would sign the writ placing the case before the supreme court immediately.

In his ruling Judge Pomeroy declared that he did not believe the act of the legislatu.e of 1928 lengthening the term of office of the mayor from two to four years was intended to include the tenure of I. N. Ragsdale, who then was mayor.

In the Duffey petition it was contended that because the act read that the tenure of office of the mayor of the borough of Atlanta was increased from two to four years and the act was not worded to read "beginning with the next incumbent" that Mayor Ragsdale was duty bound to have served two additional years.

"We believe the supreme court will uphold our contention," Attorney Finch said Tuesday night. "Of course the decision of Judge Pomeroy is a blow but we knew we would have to fight the matter out in the higher court eventually."

James L. Mayson, borough counsellor, who opposed the granting of Duffey's petition, said the judge's decision was just what was expected.

"There was no basis for the action of Mr. Finch and Mr. Duffey," Mr. Mayson said. "The supreme court will affirm the ruling of Judge Pomeroy."

200 Bills Pass Senate During Night Session

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Almost 200 bills were passed tonight by the senate in a special night session to clear its calendar preparatory to the March 4 adjournment.

The vast majority of the measures rushed through under unanimous consent were private bills. Included were four omnibus pension measures granting increases in allowances to certain civil war veterans and their widows.

This will advance consideration of the mai controversies over relief legislation and veterans' aid.

Hike in Salary Seen For Postal Carriers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Favorable report on the bill introduced by Senator Walter F. George, which has already passed the senate and would increase the compensation of village postal carriers has been ordered by the house committee on postoffices and post roads.

The measure affects such carriers all over the country and would give them an average pay increase in the different classes of approximately $300 per year. It appears very likely that the measure will now be passed by the house at the present session and go to President Hoover for approval.

Early Ratification Of Underwood Seen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—With the nomination of E. Marvin Underwood as judge of the United States court for the northern district of Georgia in the hands of the subcommittee of the senate committee on judiciary, of which Senator Felix Herbert, of Rhode Island, is chairman, a favorable report is expected within the next 48 hours.

Since both Senators Walter F. George and William J. Harris, of Georgia, have stated they are satisfied with the nomination and will not interpose any objection, it seems a certainty that Mr. Underwood will be confirmed by a unanimous vote. This is expected to take place Monday.

STOCKS CONTINUE 3-DAY ADVANCE INTO HIGH GROUND

Tuesday's Trading Adds One to 14 Points to Majority of Issues; Bears Are Desperate.

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Feverish speculation such as Wall Street had not seen in months swept through the stock market today, boosting aggregate share values to the best level since mid-October.

The more popular shares ended the day $1 to $14 higher, and the day's transfers in the stock exchange swelled to 4,800,000 shares, 700,000 more than yesterday's, and the largest since December 17. The sweeping advance met more resistance than it did yesterday, however, and the net progress, as measured by the price index of 90 leading issues, was only a little more than half as wide.

The advance, which started with an unexpected, explosive bull drive late in Saturday's trading, has in three days added more than $3,000,000,000 to the aggregate quoted values of all shares listed on the stock exchange, or more than the total gain of the month of January.

While the vigor of the upturn has been attributed to a well-organized assault by powerful professional market operators against an overcrowded and largely amateur bear interest, commission houses reported that the

SCHOOL BUDGET IS CUT $183,736

Slashes in Sheet Made After Stormy Session of Three Hours.

Slashes amounting to $183,736 were made in the first draft of the school budget Tuesday afternoon by the Atlanta board of education in a three-hour session in which the proposal of the current expenditures committee was at first turned down and then adopted after a motion for reconsideration carried. Any emergency matters facing the board will be considered at a called session, it was decided.

The meeting was the stormiest of the year and was featured by much argument and exchanges of personalities between board members and at one time between Raymond R. Ritchie, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of business affairs, and E. R. Sweat, chairman of a special subcommittee of the board.

Even with the reductions, the board has a budget, which it has not adopted, but one under which it will operate tentatively at least, of $3,538,578, $887,519 more than the anticipated revenue for the year. Anticipated receipts amount to $2,651,059.

Board leaders and administrative officials declare that the only hope of averting the catastrophe of being forced to close schools this fall because of lack of sufficient funds will be legislative enactments authorizing the

$10,000 Suit Against Cobb Sheriff Charges Abuse and Illegal Search

Charging that he was beaten and arrested on false charges, which later were changed to suit the exigencies of the situation, Richard Shipley, of Los Angeles, representative of a radio company, Tuesday filed suit against Sheriff Thomas M. Sanders, off Cobb County, and two of his deputies, John Hood and A. M. Lutz. Mr. Shipley seeks $10,000 damages.

In his petition, Mr. Shipley charges that on last October 30, Deputies Lutz and Hood halted his car on the Marietta highway and forcibly searched it and him personally, seeking liquor. He claims that he attempted to identify himself as a responsible businessman but that the deputies told him "We don't care if you're president of the United States, we're going to search you."

Mr. Shipley charges that at the time of his arrest the deputies beat him in view of scores of motorists and that they placed handcuffs on him and took him to the Cobb county jail, continuing to beat him en route when he complained that the handcuffs were too tight and forcing his wrists to bleed.

The Californian further charges that serious offenses were laid to him but that when the case was brought to trial the charges were of a milder nature and he won an acquittal.

At the time of his arrest the Atlanta Motor Club and other organizations interested themselves in the case and aided Mr. Shipley in winning his freedom in court.

HOUSE VOTE TODAY ON RENTALS BILL

Adopted Motion Calls for Committee of Whole To Report at 11 A. M.

House debate virtually brought to an end with the adoption of a motion calling upon the committee as a whole to make a report on the bill at 11 o'clock this morning, the Battle-Allen bill to discount Western & Atlantic railroad rentals for a period of 10 years late Tuesday seemed assured of passage some time today. It will then go to the senate for the consideration of the upper branch and the house will, after having debated railroad rentals more than a week, turn to other matters.

While the house consumed its entire Tuesday session in discussing the railroad rental, the senate debated and finally passed the Goode bill to create a state tax commission, accepting, after prolonged debate, the senate finance committee substitute to the original bill. The vote for the measure was 27 to 6.

Committees meeting after the usual morning were sessions of the ways and means, which disposed of a number of minor bills, and the senate highway committee which recommended, for the second time, the passage of the bill to regulate taxes on motor

Chairman Raskob Calls Party Caucus

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(UP) The democratic national committee has been called to meet here March 5 to discuss plans and policies leading up to the presidential nomination convention next year.

The call was issued here tonight over the signature of John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee. The meeting will be held at the Mayflower hotel at 10 a. m., March 5, the day after the close of the present session of congress.

Notice is given that the discussion and decisions will be important. Whether an attempt will be made to discuss the party's attitude toward prohibition is not indicated, though the call is broad enough to cover all party problems.

The meeting also will consider a plan now being devised for soliciting campaign funds to clear up the party deficit of some $600,000 underwritten largely through the efforts of Raskob, and to provide funds for continuing party work.

Text of Call.

The text of Raskob's call follows: "A meeting of the democratic national committee is hereby called to be held at the Mayflower hotel, Washington, D. C., March 5, 1931, at 10 o'clock a. m.

"The purpose of the meeting is to receive reports of the splendid accomplishments secured during the past 18 months by the fine organization in Washington built up under the able direction and leadership of Jouett Shouse, chairman of our executive committee, and to discuss plans and policies to govern our activities during the next 15 months. These discussions and decisions will be most important and the presence of every member is therefore earnestly requested.

"In addition there will be presented to the meeting the result of a two months' survey, not yet completed, by the John Price Jones Corporation of New York, covering a comprehensive plan for soliciting funds to meet our deficit and carry on our work both during and between national campaigns."

That Chairman Raskob was seeking the services of a professional money-raising concern to relieve him of the financial burden of carrying on the party's work was first exclusively reported by the United Press.

Raskob's action was taken against the advice of some of the most influential democratic senators who as late as yesterday were predicting there would be no meeting of the committee at this time, though it is known now that the call was on the way to members of the democratic national committee at that time. Those opposing a meeting now argued it would not be wise at this time to emphasize party differences and it was also argued that it was inexpedient now to embark on a money-raising campaign.

Jouett Shouse, chairman of the democratic national executive committee, went to Miami, Fla., last week to confer with Raskob and the call was made public immediately upon his return here.

LEADERS OPPOSE BAN ON FUTURES

Would Cost America Leadership in Grain and Cotton, Belief.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Proposals to abolish or limit trading in grain and cotton futures enveloped the senate agriculture committee today in a storm of protest from the presidents of New York and Chicago cotton and grain exchanges.

At the same time a request came from the agriculture department for a further limitation of speculation.

J. C. Murray, president of the Chicago board of trade, contended in a letter to Chairman McNary that the Capper bill to give the secretary of agriculture greater control over the grain exchanges would "practically destroy" the business his board had conducted for 80 years.

Philip Weld, president of the New York Cotton Exchange, told the committee his organization would oppose any legislation to regulate the exchanges at this time. He attacked the Caraway bill "to prevent the sale of cotton and grain in future markets" on the ground there was "no need for more government interference with business."

Weld charged Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, author of the measure, with a "lack of understanding of what the cotton exchange does and does not do."

The measure, he said, would "destroy the chief beneficial functions of future exchanges, namely, the price insurance they afford the cotton merchants and mills, which insurance enables the cotton crop to move from producer to consumer at a minimum cost."

The attitude of the department of agriculture was presented by J. W. T. Duvel, chief of the grain futures administration. He said it would be impossible to eliminate speculation entirely but that excessive speculation could be curtailed.

"It is a question," Duvel said, "of whether we can keep the good that is in the system and legislate against the bad or eliminate the whole plan and go we know not where."

Murray said the bill by Senator Capper, republican, Kansas, gave the agriculture secretary an unwarranted power, pointing out that under it he could limit the amount to be dealt in by any individual or corporation.

"The result will be," Murray said, "that some foreign market, presumably Winnipeg in Canada, will supercede the Chicago board of trade as the great grain market of the world . . . With the broad free market that has been established there, and with the facilities of transportation available by both rail and water, the

FOWLER'S SLAYER TO TESTIFY TODAY

S. A. Pittman, Rent Collector, Expected To Plead Self-Defense.

S. A. Pittman, a rental collector, late Tuesday began his defense of the slaying January 10 of E. B. (Bob) Fowler, World War veteran, after the state had attempted to prove the killing premeditated without seeking to establish a motive.

Pittman is expected to take the stand today in his own defense with Fowler's widow also likely to be called as a defense witness. It is expected that the arguments will be heard this afternoon and the case placed in the jury's hands early tonight.

Pittman shot and killed Fowler at Forrest avenue and Bedford place on the afternoon of January 10, exactly one month ago Tuesday. The defense claims the killing grew out of an argument between the two men over rent collected by Pittman but the state thus far has not brought out what it believes to have been the motive, although Assistant Solicitor John H. Hudson, who is directing the prosecution, Tuesday indicated that the alleged motive would be revealed either in the cross-examination of Fowler's widow or in rebuttal testimony to be offered when the defense rests today.

A long line of state's witnesses, including Fowler's mother, Mrs. L. V. Fowler, who testified that her son told her a few minutes before he died that he had said nothing to Pittman

CAMOUFLAGE PLOT CHARGED TO LEA

Attempt Made To Cover Up Funds in Caldwell Banks, Treasurer Says.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 10.—(UP)—A vivid picture of Tennessee's recent political and financial background was adduced before a committee of state legislators here today when Treasurer John Nolan was called a witness and questioned almost four hours by Joe V. Williams, attorney for the committee.

The fate of the governor and finance members of his official family are at stake in the inquiry, which was called for after collapse of the once-powerful Caldwell & Company banking chain, which had handled millions in state money.

Nolan told how two bond issues of the state for highway construction were sold to the Caldwell syndicate. He opposed the first sale, he said, but acquiesced to the second because legislation was passed in the interval which he believed removed his power to object.

He told how Colonel Luke Lea, Nashville publisher, and an associate of Rogers Caldwell, of the investment house, were present at the meeting of the state funding board when arrangements were made to sell the first bond issue of $21,000,000 to the syndicate. The second issue was for $20,000,000.

Local Police Lead U. S. In Recovery of Autos

Atlanta detectives and uniform men set a national record for the second time in the recovery of stolen automobiles during 1930, according to figures released Tuesday by the American Automobile Association, with headquarters at Washington, D. C. Atlanta was ninth on the list in regard to the number of cars stolen.

According to the figures, 2,120 cars valued at $933,469 were stolen in Atlanta during the year, and a total of 2,198 cars, valued at $963,285 recovered. Chief of Detectives A. Lamar Poole said Tuesday that the department's record in 1929 was recovery of 97.5 per cent of the cars stolen, a national record for that year.

Baltimore was second for 1930, with Boston third and Detroit fourth.

'FOURTEEN POINTS' ENDED GREAT WAR, GREGORY ASSERTS

Attorney-General for Wilson Defends Democratic Chief in Opening Citizenship Meeting.

Enunciation of Woodrow Wilson's famous "Fourteen Points" changed the objectives of the World War and their publication and distribution of copies behind the German lines by airplanes and other methods did more to end the war than any other one thing, declared Thomas W. Gregory, of Houston, Texas, attorney-general of the United States under Wilson, Tuesday night at the opening of the fourth annual Institute of Citizenship at Emory University.

Mr. Gregory defended President Wilson against "unmerited abuse from malignant and vociferous enemies," and expressed the opinion that "in God's good time we shall officially stand for all the things the League stands for, and lead in advancing the humanitarian and idealistic views on which the future must rest."

"Woodrow Wilson and the Problems of the World War," by Mr. Gregory, was the first address of a program which will end Friday night. The institute will hear, among others, Dr. John Landesco, Chicago research criminologist; R. C. Norman, state tax commissioner; Dr. John

PLANT CONTRACT GIVEN ATLANTAN

A. K. Adams Co. To Construct Clark Thread Mill Structures at Austell.

An Atlanta firm of contractors, the A. K. Adams Company, will construct the mill buildings of the Clark Thread Company at Austell, it was announced Tuesday in advices from New York, where bids were opened.

The Adams bid of $450,000 won the contract for the local company against the bids of seven contractors from other cities, whose offers were bunched closely, dispatches said. Construction will start immediately, and the matter of a time-limit will be discussed today when the contract is signed.

A. K. Adams, head of the contracting firm, is in New York, having been present Tuesday when bids were opened at the Broadway office of the Spool Thread Company. The main structure will be a 500 by 135 foot three-story building, half of the projected first unit. The first unit will be completed and others added as business warrants. The completed plant will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000,000.

The thread mill will employ approximately 250 workers, many of whom will be housed in a mill village to be constructed under a contract which will be awarded later. Plans for the mill include provision for expansion involving expenditure of around $12,000,000 in the future.

Rescuers Save Georgia Woman From Death in Abandoned Well

COCHRAN, Ga., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Mrs. J. A. Floyd, wife of a former superior court clerk of Bleckley county, was rescued from an abandoned well at her home here today by members of a crowd that had been attracted by her screams.

A negro cook, who was returning from a neighbor's home, where she had gone on an errand, was the first to respond to the cries for help.

But the muffled sounds of Mrs. Floyd's voice, coming from the well, made it difficult for rescuers to locate her. At first, the voice appeared to come from under the house. Not finding Mrs. Floyd there, the rescuers continued the hunt until they found the well.

Mrs. Floyd had gone down once, as she fell into the well, but as she came up she succeeded in getting a hold on the sides, keeping her head above water.

Ropes were passed down to her and she was brought to the surface, suffering more from fright than injury.

COMPANY REVENUE AT NORMAL LEVEL, COMMISSION SAYS

EARLIER REVISION OF RATES CITED

Board Points Out Reductions Made Possible in January, 1929; Berman Author of Petition.

Request of the Atlanta borough council for a revaluation of the Atlanta Gas Light Company and general downward revision of the present gas rates in Atlanta and vicinity was denied in an order issued Tuesday by the Georgia public service commission.

In denying a hearing on the borough's petition, the commission cited figures and declared "the investigation of the commission shows clearly that the hearing and valuation petitioned for could not possibly result in any reductions in the present revenues of the Atlanta Gas Light Company, but on the other hand might possibly result in material increases which the commission feels should be avoided, if possible, at this time."

The petition of the borough council for a revalhation of the gas company and a general downward revision of rates resulted from the efforts of Councilman Joe Berman, of the fourth ward, to secure a revision of gas rates. The petition was sent to the public service commission after council adopted two papers offered by Berman.

The making of an appraisal of the company's property would incur an expense of thousands of dollars and to enter into such an investigation as petitioned for would incur other heavy expenses on the part of the gas company, all of which would have to be allowed by the commission in the operating expenses of the company, and, therefore, would have to be paid by the gas consumers, the commission said.

The total value of the gas company, as of January 1, 1930, was $10,482,713, on which valuation the company earned 4.3 per cent in 1930, the commission pointed out. This valuation was arrived at as follows, the commission said.

"In 1922 the commission revised the rates of the Atlanta Gas Light Company on a basis of a value of $5,250,000. The order of the commission in this revision was enjoined by the United States court for the northern district of Georgia. The court fixed, as of January 1, 1924, the value of the Atlanta Gas Light Company at $8,015,000. If this value were to be used today, without regard to the necessary additions and betterments since January 1, 1924, the company, applied to 1930 business, earned 6.53 per cent return on the value of said property as of January 1, 1923.

"However, since January 1, 1924, there has been added to the value of this property, in the way of additions and betterments, including the change over from manufactured to natural gas, extensions of mains, etc., of approximately $2,569,830, and added to this for going concern value, on the same ratio as used when the

Alabama Plans To Join Council On Women, Children in Industry

Returning from four days spent in Birmingham, Ala., Miss Lucy Randolph Mason, executive secretary of the Southern Council on Women and Children in Industry, reports much interest in the organization of the Alabama section of the Southern Council. At a meeting, held a few days ago, of representatives of the State Federation of Women's Club, many church groups, the League of Women Voters, Y. W. C. A., and other organizations, a committee of 18 was appointed to complete organization plans and lay the matter before all statewide organizations for ratification.

Though Alabama is one of four states in this country which has no industrial legislation protecting women, interest in this subject is steadily growing in that state, Miss Mason reports.

"I had," she said, "an interview with one of the most progressive textile manufacturers in Alabama and he expressed the wish that federal legislation could enforce uniform laws, including the elimination of night work for women and a shorter working day, throughout all states. He asserted he would not oppose an attempt to obtain southwide legislation, but was in sympathy with the movement.

MISS LUCY RANDOLPH MASON.

"Another manufacturer in Georgia," Miss Mason added, "has expressed the same opinion, and a manufacturer in another southern state, unaware of the effort being made to arouse interest in women's organizations, wrote the lead of a large organization suggesting that I attempt to enlist the support of women throughout the south for a unified legislative program."

In view of the opinions expressed by leading men and women, Miss Mason states that she believes this is the psychological time for a movement to create interest in better protective laws for women and children throughout the south. This, she said, is due to the fact that the basic industry of the south is suffering acutely from overproduction and the automatic elimination of night work and reduction of daytime hours would stabilize the textile industry, spread employment more evenly throughout the year, raise the price of cotton goods, and prove an immense social blessing to the people working in mills and factories.

The North Georgia Methodist Conference of Women's Missionary Societies at its meeting held in Athens last week indorsed the legislative program for the better protection of women and children in industry which is being sponsored throughout the south through the Southern Council on Women and Children in Industry. Mrs. John N. McEachern, president of the conference, and Mrs. Virlyn Moore, superintendent of the department of Christian social relations, were appointed as representatives on the Georgia section of the council.

This subject is being brought before Methodist women's missionary conferences in all southern states as rapidly as possible. Mrs. Isaac Morris, chairman of the North Alabama Methodist Conference of Women's Missionary Societies, is a member of the organization committee of the Alabama section of the council.

The council now has sections in seven states and active correspondence is being conducted with the remaining states.

Miss Mason is a native of Virginia, her great-great-great-grandfather being George Mason, of Gunston, author of the Virginia bill of rights and the first ten amendments to the United States constitution. Before returning to Richmond on March 9 to resume her work there with the local Young Women's Christian Association, she will go to Columbia and Raleigh, where meetings have already been arranged.

POLICE DEMOTIONS TO COME UP TONIGHT

Board Will Consider Reduction of One Captain and One Lieutenant.

Several important matters are to be passed on by the borough council's police committee at its semi-monthly meeting tonight.

The committee is expected to receive an act on a recommendation from Chief James L. Beavers to reduce to the ranks one captain and one lieutenant. This move is being made for economic reasons and there was much speculation Tuesday night as to the identities of the two men whom Chief Beavers will recommend for demotion. The chief has refused to divulge the names.

The committee also is expected to let a contract for the police radio system, an appropriation of $8,500 having been provided by the council for the system.

INFLUENZA REPORTED SHARPLY ON DECLINE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Influenza troubles apparently have passed the peak.

Reports from 21 states received today at the public health service showed 4,701 cases now as against 8,336 for the previous week.

In Maryland there were 3,148 influenza cases at the last report and 1,625 now. In North Carolina the number dropped from 1,764 to 462; in Massachusetts from 307 to 197, and in New York city from 646 to 226.

BOROUGH PLUMBING ACT HELD ILLEGAL

The state supreme court Tuesday declared unconstitutional and void the borough council ordinance creating a board of examiners and providing for the examination of plumbers in Atlanta.

The high court's decision reversed the action of Superior Court Judge E. D. Thomas who, in 1929, several months after its adoption by council, held that the law was constitutional.

The supreme court declared that in its opinion the unconstitutionality was brought about by the discrimination in the ordinance which provided that plumbers working at their trade in buildings in which sewer connections were being made were required to appear before the examining board, while plumbers operating in buildings in which the sewer connections had been made previously were not required to comply with the ordinance.

EX-ATLANTAN HELD ON CHECK CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Sam Wolpert, 28, charged with impersonating a marine officer and cashing a check for $39 at the Atlanta Athletic Club, was ordered removed to Atlanta for trial by a federal commissioner today.

E. S. Chastain, assistant United States district attorney, said Tuesday night the indictment against Sam Wolpert for impersonating a marine officer and cashing a worthless check here was more than two years old. He said Wolpert was arrested Saturday near Los Angeles.

Officials of the Athletic Club said they did not remember the Wolpert incident.

PAN-AMERICAN LINES CUT PASSENGER RATES

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Pan-American Airways today announced a provisional reduction of from 8 to 42 per cent in passenger rates on its Latin-American routes, starting Thursday.

J. T. Trippe, president and general manager, said there were two reasons for the cut—to stimulate South American trade by making it cheaper for businessmen to travel quickly through the 28 countries in its territory and to attract tourist trade.

Famous Rabbis Address Meeting Of Local Jewry

A mass meeting of Atlanta Jewry Tuesday night heard a report of stewardship and an appeal for assistance for the Yeshiva seminary of Radan, one of the most famous colleges of Palestine. The meeting was addressed by Grand Rabbi K. Kahan, of Poland, a lecturer of the University of Poland, and a world authority on rabbinical and Roman law, and Rabbi Israel L. Sappir, a brother-in-law of Chafetz Chayin, known as the dean of rabbis.

The meeting was held at the Shearith Israel synagog on Washington street and was attended by a capacity crowd.

Both Rabbi Kahan and Rabbi Sappir have been on the faculty at Radan and were able to furnish the Atlantans interested in the ceremony with first-hand information on the college.

"Radan has become such an important seat of learning that the Jews of the entire world now look to it for their rabbis," Rabbi Kahan said. "Those who have been educated elsewhere or at least those who have not had some training there are considered much less informed. Those of us who study at Radan are able to bring to Jewry a most important and a most accurate picture of the mother country and her progress."

SCHALL HITS MITCHELL ON JUDGESHIP NOMINEE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Senator Schall wrote to President Hoover today refusing the administrations request to withdraw the name of Ernest A. Michel as his nominee for a Minnesota federal judgship.

The blind republican senator suggested Michel's name be submitted to the senate with the objections of both the president and Attorney General Mitchell attached.

The president and Mitchell have declined to accept Michel's name. In a letter to Schall last week, President Hoover suggested he submit a list of eight or ten "fit appointees."

Schall attacked the attorney general, accusing him of being influenced by former contacts with public utility corporations.

"As a republican and a senator," Schall wrote, "let me importune you, Mr. President, not to close your eyes to the lessons of recent political history.

"Taft wrecked his administration by trusting Ballinger; Harding wrecked his by trusting Fall, Daugherty and others of lesser notoriety like the late Rush Holland.

"Are you going to wreck yours by further trusting your attorney general? The answer is for you to make; but millions of loyal republicans throughout the land are hoping and praying for a negative answer."

Schall told the president the Mitchell had done nothing "for our party except to stab it in the back."

He contended the attorney general had "undermined the republican party when he hatched in his own office, according to his own admission, the scheme to nominate Judge Parker."

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Chicago's whirlwind mayoralty campaign, growing more personal and more bitter every day, brought on another damage suit today, Mayor William Hale Thompson seeking $100,000 redress from one of his opponents, Municipal Judge John H. Lyle.

Today's action was based on a speech last night by Judge Lyle, who opposes the mayor as a candidate for the republican nomination. He was quoted as charging Mayor Thompson with misuse and misappropriation of public funds and challenging the mayor to sue him.

The mayor's secretary said he "accepted the challenge for the purpose of giving Lyle an opportunity to prove the truth of these charges, which he knows he cannot do."

Judge Lyle referred in his campaign speech to the suit filed last week asking an accounting of the funds raised by Mayor Thompson for flood relief in 1927 and asking that a receiver be appointed for the Waterway and Flood Control Association of the Mississippi Valley, the organization to which the $100,000 balance was transferred.

This suit, filed in the name of a taxpayer who contributed $50 to the fund, alleged that only a fraction of the fund raised to relieve the suffering among flood victims had gone for that purpose and charged that it had been spent for personal and political purposes. Mayor Thompson, the bill asserted, was the only one permitted to draw money out of the association's funds.

Saturday the mayor filed the praecipe of a $100,000 suit against the Chicago Daily News, charging that the paper had libeled him in its story about the filing of the flood relief suit.

The quotation referred to by Mayor Thompson, appearing in Chicago newspapers and purporting to be an excerpt from Judge Lyle's speech, follows: "I charge that William Hale Thompson, mayor of Chicago, has robbed the school children, widows and orphans by stealing the taxpayers' money and using it for personal and political purposes. I say this with the intention of forcing him to sue me for criminal libel. I dare him to do it. I defy him to sue me."

"Ordinarily," replied a statement from the mayor's office, "Mayor Thompson pays no attention to lying attacks by political enemies but he will not let pass, as mere political trickery and camouflage, any charge against his honesty and integrity."

HAWAII TO HONOR OCHS AND HOWELL

HONOLULU, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Adolph S. Ochs and Clark Howell, directors of the Associated Press, will be honored by Hawaiian officialdom and the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce when they arrive here tomorrow from San Francisco. Mr. Ochs is publisher of the New York Times and Mr. Howell is editor of The Atlanta Constitution.

With other visiting newspaper and advertising men they will be guests at a luncheon by the Chamber of Commerce Friday.

Officers of the chamber announced that in addition to the personal greetings, the luncheon would be complimentary to the Associated Press.

YANKEE DIVISION HEAD GETS BLOOD

BOSTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Major General Clarence R. Edwards, wartime commander of the 26th (Yankee) division, underwent a successful blood transfusion today in another attempt by doctors to save his life. He was reported resting comfortably tonight.

One of the men who served under Edwards in France gave his blood for his old-time commander. He is Guy Watts, one of a group of Yankee division veterans who offered themselves for the transfusion. Blood tests showed Watts' blood most suitable.

General Edwards has been critically ill since January 15 when he underwent an intestinal operation. He is 71 years old.

Father-in-Law Ordered To Pay Woman $38,000

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Alexandra B. Hankins was awarded $38,000 damages by a jury in Forsyth county court today in her $150,000 alienation of affections suit against her father-in-law, J. R. Hankins.

Mrs. Hankins brought suit against Hankins and his wife, alleging they had alienated the affections of her husband, Jim Hankins, but yesterday dropped the complaint against her mother-in-law.

BREAD PRICE PROBE HEARS TWO SIDES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Bread was described today as a price aristocrat when compared to its ancestors, wheat and flour.

Ethelbert Stewart, commissioner of labor statistics, said it cost more than it should in view of the cheapness of its materials.

He presented statistics to show the price of bread in 51 cities is higher relatively than the wheat price and also higher than the average price of all other food products.

The cost of virtually all ingredients of bread, except condensed milk, has dropped recently, Stewart said.

A mass of statistics were presented to the senate committee by representatives of millers and government departments to show the prices of wheat and flour today are lower than for years.

Chairman Capper asked Stewart if the figures did not show "the price of bread is higher than it should be in relation to the price the farmer receives for wheat and the miller for flour?"

"Yes," Stewart replied, adding the price of flour is lower than for years.

"The wholesale price of flour follows the price of wheat very closely and the retail price of flour follows fairly closely," he said.

DR. TIGERT OPENS FLORIDA INSTITUTE

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Feb. 10.—(AP)—The supreme need of the world just now is not new machinery but it is a new spirit or new consciousness that leads people to understand their interdependence, Wallace W. Atwood, president of Clark University, said today before the Institute of Inter-American affairs.

Dr. John Tigert, president of the University of Florida, in starting the institute to work today, said the university would be concerned with development of better understanding between the nations of America. He said Florida occupied a most strategic position in this movement.

Another speaker, William John Cooper, present commissioner of education, told the institute that education of individuals of North America and South America in the mutual problems would provide a foundation for better amity and prosperity.

Dr John C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution, Washington, said the reason so many conferences in various parts of the world failed to accomplish their designated purposes was because "we do not know enough to settle these conferences." He insisted it was essential to get at what the people of a nation think and why they think it, and "if we cannot get at these vital issues it is useless to work out any relationships in other directions."

ANDERSON PROBERS HEARING LAGUARDIA

Behind closed doors the New Yorker, who instigated the inquiry into the official conduct of the jurist, began submitting his argument. Chairman Graham recessed the committee until tomorrow.

A judiciary subcommittee which investigated the case voted four to one to clear Judge Anderson, LaGuardia dissenting.

INA CLAIRE DESERTS STAGE FOR CINEMA

At least "forever" is what an announcement from Samuel Goldwyn's office said. She will rejoin her husband, John Gilbert, and begin fulfillment of a five-year picture contract.

She feels she can "more successfully combine her private life with the making of talking picture than with the stage," she explained.

Borough May Get New Postoffices

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia, today received assurances from the office of fourth assistant Postmaster-General John W. Philip that both Decatur and East Point, Ga., would be given recognition in the recommendations for new public buildings under the additional $100,000,000 authorization measure which has already passed the senate.

Treasury officials in charge of the building program are at present working both day and night on plans for this program, the actual appropriation not being scheduled until the December session of congress.

It is probable that several other Georgia cities will also be given buildings under the bill, but the complete schedule has yet to be worked out.

SKIPPER IS FREED ON MUTINY CHARGE

Norwegian Seaman Released When Mates Refuse To Prosecute.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The captain of a Norwegian freighter was brought to port today in irons after an altercation in which the first and second mates were injured, and another steamer, which recently figured in a mutiny and a collision, was libeled as it cast anchor.

The Norwegian skipper, Sverre Aspass, commander of the Nivareid, was freed of assault charges at a magistrate's hearing but was held pending arrangements for his deportation.

Second Mate Hjalman Virik, beaten and cut by Aspass yesterday, refused to prosecute, and the first mate, Hjalmar Jacobsen, was at a hospital with a bullet wound in a leg. Virik testified the skipper apparently was temporarily deranged.

Deputy federal marshals swarmed aboard the American steamship Hopatcong as it arrived from Russia and turned it over to a receiver appointed by the federal court as a result of three libels filed against the vessel and the Jersey-American Steamship Company, Inc., the owners. The shipping board alleged interest due on the purchase price had not been paid.

The Hopatcong figured in an alleged mutiny in the Black sea in October, in which the captain was injured. Thirteen men later deserted at Novorossisk.

Seven alien seamen were ordered to remain aboard and three others were taken to a hospital for treatment for disease.

LAST FOOD IN HOUSE KILLS 3 IN FAMILY

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Feb. 10.—(AP)—A poverty-pinched tenant farmer and two of his children are dead and his wife and three other children were critically ill tonight from poison which authorities said was contained in homemade bread—the last food left in the family larder.

Officials were attempting to determine whether the poison was used by design to wipe out the family in the face of starvation, or whether it became an ingredient of the bread by accident.

The dead are H. A. Jones, 40; Hilary, 8, and E. C. Jones, 6.

Mrs. Jones and three other children were seriously ill, but physicians expressed hope they could be saved. Hubert, 15, was in the most dangerous condition.

Jones told officers before his death today that there was poison in the house, purchased two years ago for extermination of grasshoppers.

Mrs. Jones, recovering sufficiently to converse with officials, said her husband had not been despondent and had talked with her recently about their plans for the year.

A baking powder can which authorities believed had contained the poison was found on a road near the home. The father traversed the road in going to a neighbor's house to summon a physician after the family was stricken yesterday soon after eating the bread at breakfast.

Jones said that he was the last to be stricken. He had been unemployed for several weeks and the last food in the house was placed on the table for yesterday's breakfast.

An analysis showed the bread contained a deadly poison, Dr. C. W. Gray, county health officer, reported.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 10.—(AP)—A disabled former service man, Georges Letroye, age 43, today shot the Baron de Borlodot, senator and burgomaster of Acoz. After wounding the baron in the arm he struggled free of the injured man's grip and shot and killed himself.

Inquiries revealed that the assassin held the baron responsible for his not having obtained a war pension.

MACHADO CONSIDERS GENERAL AMNESTY

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 10.—(AP)—All persons, except communists, charged with sedition, conspiracy and anti-administration demonstrations would be released February 24 under the terms of a decree which President Machado was understood today to be considering favorably.

The general amnesty, if it is granted, will be one of the features of the celebration of the festival of the "Battle Cry of Baire," the anniversary of the beginning of the last Cuban war of independence.

Mme. Jeritza Revealed In Samaritan Role

As the curtain dropped on the first act of "Boccaccio" at the Metropolitan opera house last night, a ballet girl, Dolly Sartorio, fainted in the arms of a chorus man. He carried her to a dressing room opposite that of the star.

Jeritza rushed in a minute later, picked up the unconscious girl and transferred her to her own quarters. There she brushed aside all assistance and bathed Miss Sartorio's face with camphor until she revived. It meant a quick change to her second act costume.

Japan's Women To Get Rights Under New Bill

BY JAMES P. HOWE.

The occasion was the initial appearance of the government's women's civil rights bill which virtually grants equal rights with men in administration of villages, towns and cities to 15,500,000 female subjects.

The bill was explained by Kenzo Adachi, home minister, to one of the largest crowds of women in the history of the Japanese parliament. The women jammed the visitors' gallery of the lower house.

Due to repeated delays of other business, the bill was not reached until evening, but the women with kimono sleeves rolled up as if they meant business held their ground intact, full of anticipation for a skirmish.

Only a few left their seats long enough for lunch. It was the beginning of a new era in the women's struggle for suffrage which had been waged for 12 years, undeterred by earthquakes, fires, business depression and other troubles.

The women's citizenship bill would enfranchise all women of 25, also qualify them for election to municipal assemblies and honorary posts of mayor, with the provision in the latter case that husbands give consent.

Observers predicted passage was virtually assured in the lower house owing to the majority of the government party and the acquiescence in principle of the seiyukai, chief opposition party.

The fate of the bill lies with the house of peers, whose action is considered more doubtful.

Women's organizations are divided in their attitude. Several, although frankly dissatisfied with the bill, are supporting it on the contention that "half a loaf is better than none."

Other organizations, led by the Proletarian Women's League and the Social Democratic Women's League, absolutely oppose the measure and demand the same footing with men, who vote at 20, in the house of representatives and prefectural assemblies.

HOOVER GIVES TENTH OF SALARY FOR RELIEF

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—President Hoover today gave 10 per cent of his annual salary to the Red Cross for the drouth sufferers.

Today's contributions were enlarged by the president's personal gift of $7,500. His salary as president is $75,000.

The drouth fund now totals $7,303,116 toward the $10,000,000 asked by the Red Cross.

Progress of the Red Cross relief fund will be reported on by a country-wide radio broadcast Thursday from 9:30 to 10 p. m. (eastern standard time) in a program arranged by the National Broadcasting Company.

Chairman Payne, of the Red Cross, will speak from Washington. He will be followed by Governor Parnell, of Arkansas, representing the state most severely affected by the drouth, and Governor Case, of Rhode Island, representing the state which has most readily answered the appeal for the drouth-stricken. Parnell will speak from Little Rock and Case from Providence.

TRUCK KILLS WOMAN ON WAY TO NEW JOB

Mrs. Sallie Ellis Struck Down While Hurrying To Catch Street Car.

On her way to work for the first time after several weeks of unemployment, Mrs. Sallie V. Ellis, 29, of 869 Bankhead avenue, was struck by a truck and instantly killed early Tuesday morning, a few minutes after she had cooked breakfast and started a fire for her 6-year-old daughter.

The fatal accident occurred about 5:30 o'clock Tuesday morning as Mrs. Ellis and a neighbor, Mrs. Esther Reddish, ran to catch a street car across the highway. Mrs. Reddish said she saw the truck just in time to leap to safety, but that Mrs. Ellis already had stepped directly into its path. The driver, D. D. Venable, of 128 Hurt street, told police he used his brakes as quickly as possible but said the woman was too close to avoid striking.

Venable was arrested, but later released in bond of $1,000.

According to Mrs. Reddish, she and Mrs. Ellis had been out of work for several weeks. On Monday they had obtained positions in the city, and both were hastening to catch the trolley to be on time. Mrs. Ellis had arisen before 5 o'clock to cook breakfast for her little daughter, Helen, a kindergarten pupil at English Avenue school. She had made fires to warm the house and had left, meeting Mrs. Reddish by agreement in front of the Ellis residence.

Surviving Mrs. Ellis are her mother, Mrs. W. C. Bonner; two sisters, Mrs. Omie Cobb and Mrs. Elizabeth Walden, and a brother, M. F. Bonner. Funeral arrangements were under direction of Awtry & Lowndes.

Atlanta's 'Crime Waves' Blamed On 'Rackets' by Noted Authority

BY BEN COOPER.

Are Atlanta's high homicide rate and frequent crime waves due to gangsters and racketeering?

This question was answered Tuesday by Dr. John Landesco, of Chicago, research criminologist and authority on rackets, with the statement: "Racketeering is present in all large cities."

In Atlanta to address the Institute of Citizenship today at Emory University, Dr. Landesco said he is unable to discuss Atlanta's crime problems specifically, because of this city's absence from the pages of the "Uniform Crime Report" of the department of justice. This does not mean that Atlanta is a city without crime, but it does mean that this city is not impressing the world with its law and order by failing to report its crimes to the government, he said. Dr. Landesco spoke Tuesday at the Kiwanis Club luncheon in the Ansley hotel.

Racketeering is more turbulent in Chicago, and therefore more noticeable than in other cities, because of the constant shift of politics which upsets the "big fix," Dr. Landesco said.

Education Needed.

The solution of the gangster and racketeering problems lies in education and elimination of juvenile delinquency, in that gangsters will no longer be bred when orderly children are raised in an orderly city, Dr. Landesco believes. Real prevention of crime, he pointed out, lies in the family, neighborhood, church and institution for training children for life.

Atlanta's adoption of short wave radio for the police department will provide important aid in the control of crime, he said. "Any aid afforded by fast communication will help counteract the quick get-away of criminals, who rely on automobiles. Radio has proven effective in Chicago, Detroit and other cities."

Solution of this city's traffic problems lies in studying the systems of big cities, including Chicago, Dr. Landesco said. He urged that traffic policemen be given backing, for "they certainly earn their living."

Combating Gambling.

"The best method of stopping gambling is through teaching the children, by example and moralization, not to gamble, rather than depending on the coercion of the law, which brings about political prosecutions and clutters up the courts. There are two ways in which gamblers stifle competion. One is by police raids against competitors, and the other is by hijacking.

"There is no system per se that will make a city straight or crooked. But one of the best systems for an honest police department is that where the police chiefs are under civil service and entitled to pensions and where police chiefing is a profession, and the chief may be employed from anywhere in the country, as under the English system.

Work of Policeman.

"Policemen should study their beats, wards or police districts, and get to know the population as well as the gangs and hook-ups, so they will know the people with whom they are dealing. Policemen are often more intelligent than they can afford to be under a political police system, where there are constant shake-ups and men are being moved around and placed in areas where they are green."

Dr. Landesco is research director of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology, as well as a member of the University of Chicago faculty. He came to this country at the age of 10 from Roumania, and through his work in the study of crime has become noted as an authority on organized crime.

COLUMBIA SEMINARY GIVES PAGEANT TODAY

A pageant celebrating the centennial of the Society of Missionary Inquiry of Columbia Theological Seminary will be presented at the institution today in connection with the observance of the hundredth anniversary which began Sunday and which will end with the presentation today. The pageant will depict the development of the society since 1831, especially the progress in missionary work since that time.

The first act by the senior class will portray the steps taken in founding the society; the first monthly concert of prayer, this act giving the names of the persons who were instrumental in establishment of the society. The second act, to be presented by the junior class, will show completion of the constitution and election of the first president. The final act, presented by the middle classmen, will depict the appointment of sundry mission committees by Dr. John Leighton Wilson, who was the first student president of the society.

The name of the pageant is "A Century of Service." The portrayal of Dr. Wilson will carry the dominant role, the first student president having been one of the outstanding figures in the first years of the organization.

Reid was graduated from Morehouse College in 1922. He received from the University of Pittsburgh the degree of master of arts in 1925. For three years he was industrial secretary of the New York Urban League, and since 1928 he has been serving as director of research with the national organization.

Atlantan Named To Trusteeship In Gideons Body

The second national or international honor within the last six months has been conferred upon J. Lawrence McCord, prominent Atlanta merchant and civic leader, it was learned Tuesday upon receipt of his appointment and acceptance of a trusteeship in the Gideons International, the Christian Commercial Travelers' Association of America.

In a letter received from J. M. Averill, of Topeka, Kan., international president, Mr. McCord was urged to accept appointment as trustee to represent the world-wide organization from this section of the United States, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of J. R. Hyde, of Memphis, Tennessee.

In accepting, Mr. McCord wrote that although he has many special affiliations entailing heavy duties this year he felt that it was incumbent upon him to assume a part in the work of the Gideons International. He is past president of the state Gideons, which consists of camps at Atlanta, Macon, Columbus and Augusta. A. C. Weams, Dalton, is state president, and Will Hardin is president of the Atlanta camp.

Several months ago Mr. McCord was appointed to membership on the advisory committee of the National Prison Emergency committee, with headquarters in New York. Ogden H. Hammond, of New York, is chairman of the committee, which aims to survey penal conditions and submit recommendations for reform and improvement.

ZONING APPEAL BOARD HEARS THREE PETITIONS

Members of the Atlanta board of zoning appeals Tuesday for the first time undertook to assume charge of zoning activities of the borough planning commission, in compliance with a request from the commission, and acted on three petitions which were referred to it.

All actions, it was explained by Councilman John Owen, chairman, are subject to a favorable ruling of City Attorney James L. Mayson as to whether the commission can delegate its authority. Mr. Mayson stated he would rule when the matter was brought officially to his attention. Only routine matters were considered and the petitions for zoning were minor ones.

The planning body asked the board to take over the zoning work in order that the commission may devote more of its attention to planning.

President of Kiwanis To Be Atlanta Guest

Raymond Crossman, of Omaha, Neb., president of Kiwanis International, will be the guest of honor at a dinner-dance of the Atlanta Kiwanis Club at 7 o'clock next Tuesday night at the Biltmore hotel, it was announced Tuesday at the club luncheon at the Ansley hotel.

Because of the dinner-dance, the regular weekly luncheon of the club has been called off. At the luncheon Tuesday several numbers were sung by Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Drummond, accompanied at the piano by Red Cross, WSB announcer.

Receipts of Insurance Taxes Show Increase

Collections of the insurance occupational tax for the month of January showed an increase of $10,000 over the same tax collected in January last year, Comptroller General William B. Harrison announced Tuesday. The January collections amounted to $50,210.

More than $83,000, mostly coming from the $10 tax on local agents, was collected in 1930, General Harrison's office reported, and the January excess over a year ago indicates that the total may also be passed this year. Special and general agents pay a tax of $100 annually.

CHARITY BALL TO AID COMMUNITY KITCHEN

Shrine Mosque To Be Scene of Elaborate Benefit Entertainment.

Plans for a charity ball to raise additional funds for the Atlanta community kitchen, where hundreds of destitute are being fed daily, have been formulated, it was announced Tuesday by Henry B. Miller, organizer. The affair will be held at the Shrine Mosque on the nights of February 19 and 20.

A 16-piece dance orchestra will provide music while vaudeville and other features will supplement the program, Mr. Miller stated.

The Atlanta Woman's Club and other organizations are participating in arranging the ball, Mr. Miller stated. Mrs. I. R. Banks has been named general chairman; Mrs. Arthur Hazzard, chairman of the ticket committee; Mrs. Nat Kaiser, chairman of publicity.

Headquarters have been established at the Nineteenth Hole Golf course, 263 Peachtree street. Ten thousand tickets, to be sold for $1 and good for both nights, have been printed. The entire net profits will go to the community kitchen.

Lawson Turner, organizer of the community kitchen, stated that the ball would not affect contributions to the kitchen at 134 Nassau street and donations for purchase of the two-cent meal tickets.

Borough Personnel Given in Publication

Information as to the personnel of the borough government features the current issue of "Facts," the monthly publication of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, with a directory of the board of education, members of council and the board of aldermen, and a list of all standing councilmanic committees. The pamphlet is highly valuable for reference concerning the composition of the official borough.

The editorial in the current issue of "Facts" exhorts members of the league to "be prepared for any election that may come up." It points out that before the regular session of the legislature convenes in June "it is reasonably sure that other far-reaching amendments to the charter (of Atlanta) will also be considered."

Explorer Says Women Reverting to Primitive

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Civilized woman is reverting to the habits of her primitive sisters, said Frederick A. Mitchell Stokes, British explorer, who arrived on the S. S. Adriatic today to arrange his ninth expedition into the southwest to study the origins of Mayan civilization.

Such things as cropping the hair at the marriageable age, excessive painting of the face, the use of gaudy necklaces and baubles and the tendency to discard clothing are shared by the civilized and primitive women alike, he said.

MOTHER SUPERIOR HELD AS THIEF

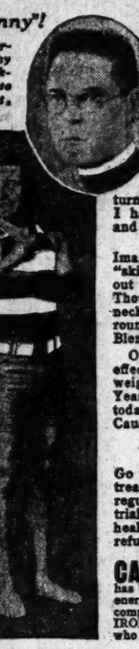

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Sister Madeleine, mother superior of the Carmelite convent at Malines, was arrested today charged with embezzlement of $275,000 over a period of the last five years during which, it was alleged, she followed a policy of borrowing from Peter to pay Paul.

The mother superior is said to have borrowed in all walks of life, paying old debts with proceeds of new loans, and always increasing the amount borrowed, thus financing the purchase of a mansion, erection of a wall around the convent, and numerous other charities.

RICHMOND AWARDS O. G. BIG VICTORY OVER RIVAL BRANDS IN RIPLEY'S FIRST TASTE-TEST DOWN SOUTH

By ROBERT RIPLEY, Himself

I went down to Richmond, Virginia, the other day. Richmond, one of the nation's capitals in tobacco products, where they know tobacco like Detroit knows motor cars.

I gave 904 Richmond smokers one each of the four leading cigarettes ... with the names hidden by a black mask.

"Don't try to guess 'em, Richmond!" I said. "Just smoke 'em ... and pick out the cigarette that tastes best."

It was the same old story. Again, O. G. rolled up a decisive majority vote. Chosen by the world's foremost tobacco town for its superior throat-ease and smoothness.

If that isn't a Supreme Court decision ... what is?

BETTER TOBACCOS ... NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

SO, YOU WANT TO MEET THE BEST PEOPLE

It is true that the circulation of THE SATURDAY EVENING POST almost exactly parallels the opportunities in America for making sales.

It is true also that in city, state and nation, this magazine picks its readers in direct proportion to their intelligence and buying-power.

This doesn't happen by accident. No, indeed!

It is the pre-calculated result of carefully determining the most progressive and substantial sales territories and then confining our circulation effort within those areas.

In the hundred leading American cities, for example, investigation is made not only by zones, but by neighborhoods, streets, blocks and at times even individual homes.

The men of our Division of Commercial Research visit, tour and map each city in residential detail, indicate the desirable circulation, and turn the guide-map over to the circulation department for action.

It takes a publication great in editorial concept and execution to interest this superlative type of reader and hold him as THE SATURDAY EVENING POST has held him for three decades.

The success with which The Post is doing it now is seen in its ability to add, on top of its already largest magazine circulation, a steady, average increase of 100,000 such new readers every year!

If you want your advertising to address the hand-picked core and center of the best-buying public on earth, THE SATURDAY EVENING POST offers you opportunity to talk to that hub three-million-strong which turns the taste, thinking, buying of the nation.

There may be a better introduction to the best people in America, but the most experienced and successful advertisers have never yet found what it is!

RECOVERING CONFIDENCE.

It would be hazardous to venture an off-hand opinion of the suddenly renewed and sensational activities of the stock market. It may be only a concerted raid upon the bears who are "sold short" by the bulls who are trying to squeeze out what the bears have left. Early events will prove or dispel that theory.

What the country will hope is that traders in the securities of big business have recovered their confidence in the industrial surety of the near future and that the rise of prices for well-founded stocks will persist in safe measures, indicating the upturn toward renewed business activity and prosperity.

While there is no real basis for the belief that Wall Street stock speculating is a "barometer of business" the general public has been taught to think so and to be optimistic or pessimistic as the ticker-tape runs. Hence it is that the people generally orient their opinions of good or bad times with the mass transactions of the stock market.

The need of the country right now is common confidence that "the worst is over." When that obtains there will be a loosening up of reserves, quickened demand for goods, renewed activity of industries and a rapid reduction of the ranks of the unemployed. Those are the items that make up the sum of prosperity. All the items are available in the actual condition of the people and there is strong hope that they are coming into co-ordination to put America back on the high road of enrichment and contentment.

Plentiful signs that such a change from the condition of stagnating business is now taking place are now to be found on all sides.

Co-incident with the news reports of the two billion dollar gain in stock values as the result of the upward turn on Wall Street come reports of nationwide rains which it is predicted will add a full billion dollars to the revenues of the country's farmers this year.

Of especial encouragement to the farmers of the south is the very clearly evident strengthening of the cotton market within the past few days, with every indication pointing to mounting prices that will bring many millions of dollars to this section.

For months developments have pointed to an early strong and sound upward turn in economic conditions. Every indication points now to the fact that that good day has arrived.

EMBARGO THE UNWANTED.

From Washington comes the acceptable news that the net new immigration into the United States for the last six months of 1930 was 20,245 only. With widespread unemployment of labor in this country there is no need to expand our population with job-seekers from abroad.

But there is a more important reason even than the labor protection one to want foreign immigration held down to the lowest approved limit. There is a spirit of criminal lawlessness abroad in the United States that simply must be driven out if our social order is not to be wrecked by the criminal legions operating in the larger areas of population.

An inspection of the criminal calendars published in daily papers of the cities of the north and middle west shows that a great proportion of the men arrested for crimes are foreigners. In one list at hand, clipped casually from a Pittsburgh daily 33 of 35 defendants slated for trial on a given day were foreigners whose names are almost jawbreaking to an English-speaking person. In Chicago frequently a whole long daily list of defendants is composed of such names.

At Ellis Island, the immigration station in New York harbor, one day last week 300 such foreigners were received for deportation to their home countries, most of them criminals picked from our prisons. The Atlanta federal prison is receiving such foreign law-breakers almost daily.

It is high time, indeed, that the American people, and especially American labor, should demand of the government the most rigid sifting of foreigners seeking admission to this country. It would do no harm and much good to embargo all immigration for some years, save in special cases already excepted by the law.

RESCUE THE DEMOCRACY.

There are favorable signs now that the democratic leaders in the congress are becoming sensible of the great responsibility resting upon them to hold the party in the respect and confidence of the country.

Since this session began in December they have allowed themselves to engage in a species of hysteria mislabeled "humanitarianism," with the too evident purpose to implead votes from those to whom they would hand out many manners of doles from the public treasury.

They have known all along that their proposed paternalism was undemocratic in principle and un-American in practice under democratic administration. But they were willing to take advantage of temporary suffering among a small part of the people to set up a precedent and a system of government subsidies to classes that, in the long run, would transform the United States into a "social republic" scarcely different from that of soviet Russia.

To tell the people of the nation that Kentucky, Missouri, Arkansas and Texas, some of them with great surplus cash in their treasuries, would let their people "starve" unless the federal authority and cash should save them is simply too absurd for anybody but a conniving politician to swallow.

It is to be hoped strongly that the democratic leaders at Washington will quickly and safely return the democratic ship to her ancient moorings.

HONORS TO COLONEL KAY.

A civic event of unusual distinction happened in Jacksonville, Fla., on Friday last, in which a former and highly esteemed Atlantan was the central figure.

The Civitan Club of that city staged a special luncheon to honor Colonel William E. Kay, one of the first citizens of Florida and general counsel of the Atlantic Coast Line railway system. It happens that Colonel Kay has been the legal adviser of that system now for 50 years and in recognition of the ability of that long service and the personal charm of the man, the officials of the line used the luncheon occasion to present to Colonel Kay a handsome diamond button.

The luncheon was attended by a great company of professional and business leaders of the states traversed by the railway system. They vied in paying eloquent tributes to the honoree of the occasion. The thousands of Georgia friends of Colonel Kay, and especially that host of warm personal associates that he numbers in Atlanta, will be gratified at the honors paid to him and echo them back to him from their hearts. He is a choice spirit among men and nowhere more welcome than among his admirers in Atlanta, where he started his upward and distinguished career.

The hold-up men must have a halt order on "business just around the corner."

That Georgia fellow who has raised 10 bales of cotton from five acres for several years past is the best "farm demonstrator" in the state.

Reports say that the senate was "amazed" by one of Borah's recent somersaults. It should remember that he learned the art from the tumble-weeds of the great west.

The house at Washington, according to Congressman Crisp, legislates by "the rule of three."

Chattanooga has finely filled her Red Cross quota. What is Atlanta doing about her quota?

In a few years a lot of those congress relief loans will be scheduled among our "frozen assets."

Smed Butler now wears a Cheshire cat smile that won't come off, and the country smiles with him.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Return of The King.

Madame the Duchess de Guise has just completed her annual tour of the provinces of France. She has gone from manor to chateau to receive the homage of nobles, clergy and bourgeois in name of her august husband, the duke, who is not permitted to set foot on French territory. The duke is the pretender to the throne of Saint Louis. He is, says the monarchist paper, Action Francaise, in a daily banner across the front page, "the heir of 40 kings who in a thousand years made France."

After the tour of propaganda the duchess, or the queen rather, as the royalists call her in anticipation, expressed herself as extremely well satisfied with prospects of an early royal restoration. "The republic has begun to totter," the lady remarked. "Frenchmen are rallying to our banners in their thousands. The army is coming to our side. All the cavalry officers are royalists. The king will be back within a year. We have 60,000 shock troops in Paris, disciplined, trained, ready to jump to arms when the signal is given. We are waiting for the full development of the economic and political crises. This will come within a few months. Most people are already convinced that the democratic republican idea is dead, and that nothing can be expected any longer from democracy. It has failed. Everywhere the need of strong authoritarian government is making itself felt." So talks the duchess.

But the duke, he doesn't say a thing. The cavalry officers may be royalists, they probably are, 75 per cent of them are counts and barons and viscounts, but the machine gunners are peasants and workers. That is what the duke thinks of probably. The very thought renders him mute.

Raymond Duncan's Scheme.

Raymond Duncan, brother of the late Isadora, who does not cease to astonish the good Parisians these snappy winter days with his single gown of white homespun wool and bare feet, is going to imitate Plato. The gown is, of course, quite Grecian, classic Grecian, that is. It isn't enough. Raymond is going to hold dialogs. He has selected the Horticultural hall in Paris for his "dialogs." The first dialog will be consecrated to the subject, "Bankruptcy of force, or the search for a power that surpasses poison gas and machine guns."

On another day Raymond and his audience will discuss "Life against money, or liberation through the economic crisis." Money takes away our joy of life. It is a hard and ruthless master. What the world needs is the abolition of money. This is the thesis which Raymond will defend. He wants humanity to go back to a natural state. As soon as there are no more banks, there will be no more factories, or armies or parliaments. We will be delivered from all those so-called perfections which are in reality but complicated tyrannies. We will have to work but very little under that happy dispensation; because we will have few needs. About all we will have to do is to get an embroidered Grecian robe and lie in the sun and laugh, love and think of our happy estate, that is, if the weather permits, else we'll hold our exercises indoors.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

STOP, TEACHER, STOP AND TURN BACK.

A high school teacher had better be careful of her step when she strays off this way:

Dear Dr. Brady:

I get out of patience with some types of health books used in the grades. The following rules are taken from one of the latest textbooks for children:

"Take exercise every night on going to bed."

"Sleep on the side, mainly the left side."

"Sit erect at study."

"Sit erect while conversing.'

"Wash stockings every day."

Who is the medical or health authority for such rules? Am I wrong in thinking some of these instructions ridiculous? For instance, can one comfortably walk with erect carriage? Can one remain erect and keep one's mind on study? Would a boy who failed to wash his stockings every day be neglecting his health or risking illness?

If you make any comment on this please do not use the name of writer or the name of school.

Very truly yours,

There is no good medical or health authority for any of the rules or recommendations.

But we must remember that the text-book racket is not run by physicians or by honest health authorities. It is run by publishers.

Before a health textbook can have a profitable sale the subject matter of the book must be carefully examined by representatives of big business, to make sure the children shall be taught nothing that may tend to make them less eager customers for all sorts of commodities, merchandise or superfluities which are marketed largely on the basis of "health appeal." This is the reason, I think, why such textbooks are packed with just such nonsensical stuff as the unsophisticated teacher quotes. She should have a care how she regards such things—her superiors may have to discipline her if she gives expression to her honest opinions.

Take, for instance, that one about sleeping on the left side. Harmless enough; who can complain about it? Silly, of course, but then, it is quite probable that many of the parents, ignorant, as they are, of physiology, will imagine there is some subtle reason for that, and so it gets by. Then take the comical one about washing your stockings every day. Of course it is as harmless as sleeping on your left side, but again, isn't there a vague notion that such cleanliness is somehow "sanitary," and isn't anything that purports to be "sanitary" likely to be healthful? If the laity doesn't reason that way, what's the use of the millions and millions of the laity's easy money that the big business people spend annually in building up health appeal?

Just try and write a health textbook that teaches the scientific truth about keeping well, and see if you can get any large school board to approve the adoption of your fool book. If you aspire to introduce a health textbook you've got to follow the orders of the big textbook racketeers.

No Man Ever Produced a Masterpiece While Thinking How Much He Would Get For It

By Robert Quillen

The secret of doing good work is identical with the secret of playing good golf.

Jerome D. Travers, writing in Collier's weekly, says the second essential in making a good shot is "to think in terms of execution and not results."

It would be difficult to express the secret of all success in fewer words.

When Bobby Burns stopped his plow to scribble inspired verse on a scrap of paper, he thought only in terms of execution. He wrote to please himself, doing the best he knew without regard for anybody's opinion, and the result was poetry that placed him among the immortals. Then the social elect recognized his genius and made a fad of patronizing him, and thereafter he wrote with his mind on results. He wrote to please the gentry. And his genius deserted him.

It isn't by chance that masterpieces are produced in a garret while genius gnaws at crusts. It is only in the freedom of poverty, with nothing to lose, that the artist can forget the world's opinions and give his inspiration free rein. His soul is splashed on canvas or poured out in music, and when the world discovers what he has done it cries: "Here is greatness!"

But once tricked by applause and tempted to win more of it, he works with one eye on the grandstand and never again is natural or sincere. He has followed in the footsteps of Esau and traded his birthright for pottage.

It is the fate of all who think in terms of profit instead of concentrating on the job in hand.

The man who thinks only of the higher salary he hopes to win may in time have his reward, but the man who is lifted above his tellow workers and at last made head of the organization is the one who thinks only of doing good work. He works for the joy of doing good work, without thought of honors, riches and power, and all of these things are added unto him.

The cynic may scoff, but the fact remains. Working to please others is like searching for happiness. The harder you try the more you fail, for the very effort to please destroys the sincerity on which good wook depends.

There's many a star ball player still in the minor league because he can't forget that the grandstand is watching.

HOLLYWOOD IN PERSON

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

His career has been a spotty one. Great roles and long slumps in which he made—always for big salary—mere pictures. Perhaps much of this was due to the fact that the Dix personality is too decided, drafted in too broad planes for mere entertainment. Dix has decided that his long knowledge of the cinema entitled him to a break as director; this arrangement was about to go through when Yancey Cravat made gelatine history early in the year. So the actor is once more a star of big magnitude, and the behind-the-camera work will have to go to somebody else.

Lowell Sherman has stuck to his original statement that a man may direct and act in a picture and that picture be good. When "The Royal Bed" was completed, Lowell Sherman, calm and cool and self-assured, was looking about for new material.

Others who had tried the same trick were less encouraged about its possibilities. Louis Wolheim, condemned to a period of complete quiet, as the result of combined flu and nervousness, thinks either one is big enough job for a man.

Wolheim, who exemplified raw masculinity on the screen, despite his culture—he was once a college professor—is looking very white and weak and quite a shadow of his former self. It is merely a matter of escaping the terrific drive of movies for a while. In the meantime Adolph Menjou will play the part of the managing editor in "Front Page" which was originally assigned to Wolheim.

Both choices for the role were strange. Wolheim was physically out of the picture in that the originator of the part is a slim, dapper, wiry little man with eyes like gimlet holes and a sharp staccato in his voice like the spitting of a machine gun. Adolph Menjou is a million miles from the sheer Americanism of the original role. But Mr. Howard Hughes evidently likes names—and names he's got.

At the recent opening of "Little Caesar" the entire Warner-First National organization turned out in style. It's part of the job, one might add. A compulsory part.

Conspicuous in the crowd was Arthur Caesar who now contributes witty dialogue to that organization's script for a consideration. As the audience filed out someone shouted—

"Hey—another Caesar—big Caesar."

The comeback was quick. Arthur Caesar saluted, Roman fashion:

"From the Polish branch of the family!" was his rejoinder.

One of our studios quite famous for working its employes for 18 hours out of the 24 during a portion of the year and closing its doors for a period of three or four months (without salary) during the dull season each year, runs its business on the "loyalty" gag which is the basis of all college activities.

Loyalty gets out the football team of every college. Loyalty makes up the rooting sections. Loyalty keeps the standing of the school just where they want it kept. With this in mind, the following observation of one of our great moguls is not without its shrewd undercurrent:

A writer was getting out a scenario under pressure. Trying to meet a shooting date, he was working until late into the night. This necessitated much overwork on the part of his secretary. The author is a high-priced individual and this working until midnight at times is all in the game and all covered by the four-figure salary he receives.

But the secretary got the usual stipend. And the secretary spoke regarding the pressure of the work and hinted gracefully that a little overtime added to the salary might not be inadvisable. The author promised to see to the matter.

He spoke to the great magnate.

"Been complaining eh?" was his observation when the author's tale was over. "Not exactly," said the author, "but, well, you know—"

"Get another secretary—this one will be handed a dismissal slip Saturday. We want no disloyalty in our organization!"

board to levy and collect sufficient finances, or increasing revenue of the borough through the same legislative channels and permitting the board to participate in the additional fiscal help.

Mrs. Setze Named.

The only other business which the board considered at the Tuesday afternoon three-hour setto was election of Mrs. Julius A. Setz as a member of the board of lady visitors from the thirteenth ward, and grant the use of the old Edgewood avenue school property to Judge W. T. Buchanan, of the municipal court of Atlanta, DeKalb division.

When members of the current expenditures committee first brought the report to the board they encountered opposition, because one provision was that $42,750 was to be cut from the business administration and maintenance departments, those over which Ritchie presides.

Ritchie's friends rallied to his support and on the first ballot defeated the proposal by a vote of seven to six. J. Ira Harrelson, chairman of the current expenditures body, was balked in an immediate effort to move for reconsideration, when Ed A. Gilliam raised a point of order.

Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, of the sixth ward, then reported for the buildings and grounds committee, and the board reversed itself and voted to adopt the proposed list of slashes as recommended by the committee by a vote of seven for and six against, Mrs. Nelson switching her support.

Slate-Sweat Exchange.

Sharp exchange of personalities between Commissioners William C. Slate, of the second ward, and Sweat, of the subcommittee of the current expenditures committee, who drafted the slash report, resulted when Slate criticised the subcommitte for reinstating the visual educational department, which at first was stricken when the pruning knife was applied in the effort to curtail expenditures.

"We have done the best we could," Sweat said. "There is nothing to prevent Mr. Slate or any other member of this board from making any motion he sees fit. I don't think we should be criticised."

"The visual education department and several others could go in an emergency, and we certainly have one," Slate countered.

Ritchie and Sweat had their clash when Ritchie said the report quoted him erroneously to the effect that he had said it took one employe in the office to every five men in the field in the maintenance department.

"That is wrong," Ritchie said. "What I did say was that contractors allow 20 per cent overhead. Our overhead will not run more than 12 per cent."

Sweat then called on other members of the subcommittee to prove that Ritchie told the committee the overhead was 20 per cent. Several, including Gilliam, said they understood it that way.

'FOURTEEN POINTS' ENDED GREAT WAR, GREGORY ASSERTS

Today's program will begin with a round table conference at 9 o'clock this morning when Miss Jessie Dell will discuss the United States civil service. At 10 o'clock this morning Dr. Landesco will speak on "The Gangster's Apology for His Mode of Living." At 11 o'clock Dr. Landesco will talk on law enforcement, and Mr. Norman will discuss taxation in Georgia. Professor Francis Deak, of Columbia University, New York, will speak on Central European problems, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. At 8 o'clock tonight a debate on "Shall the South Follow the East and Go Industrial" will be held with Dr. John Crowe Ransom, of Nashville, Tenn., upholding agrarianism, and W. D. Anderson, president of the Bibb Manufacturing Company, of Macon, upholding industrialism.

"Unwittingly the enemies of Woodrow Wilson have assisted in making him one of the greatest figures in the world's history," Mr. Gregory said. "If the United States had entered the League of Nations he would have been largely known as one of the men who conceived a great idea and carrid it to a successful consummation, but the very bitterness and tragedy of the contest, the fact that the country which suggested the League proved to be its greatest enemy, that he fell, making a desperate and losing fight to bring his country into this great council of peace—these things have cenotaphed his fame.

"Apart from personal animosities and jealous hatreds, I can suggest no reason for our being out of the League except timidity or craven fear of them in buckram. And yet it seems inconceivable that a country like ours, which has never hesitated to fight for the liberties and rights on which it is founded, should refuse to join a conference of the world organized for the sole purpose of peacefully perpetuating those rights and liberties."

"We did enough, we did it quickly, and the war was won," Mr. Gregory said. "Above the graves of the dead Woodrow Wilson vowed that this awful thing should not happen again if human wisdom could prevent. Worn and weary, sword in hand, he went forth to fight for the League of Nations. He fell, wounded unto death. He died with his last great hope unrealized, a victim of the war. And yet, during all this and to the end, he was abused and villified by a malignant few as no men in the United States have ever been except George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. It should be remembered that almost without exception that the contribution to the war of these few consisted in slandering those who were striving to win it. When these traducers have been forgotten, as those of Washington and Lincoln have been forgotten, Great Britain, with her traditional generosity, will place by the side of her own heroic dead with the statues of Washington and Lincoln that of Woodrow Wilson."

Well informed and fair-minded men now know that the blame for the war cannot be charged against any one nation or against any one ambition. . . . "The war inevitably developed out of a system dominated by national ambitions and the hatreds and jealousies of centuries, with no more consideration for the lives of millions of individuals, and the welfare of millions more, than is given to the pawns upon a chess board sacrificed to protect and advance the movements of the dominating figures," Mr. Gregory said.

Japan's War Cited.

Answering those who claim that war is necessary for national preservation and to vitalize patriotism and awaken the drooping spirit of a people, he pointed out that though the 47,000,000 people of Japan had been engaged in no war of major importance for 200 years, Japan, in an almost inconceivably short time, defeated 200,000,000 Russians and absolutely destroyed a fleet and largely destroyed an army, which were the fruits of centuries of war and preparation for war.

The World War depleted the manhood of the white races to an extent that cannot be repaired for 100 years, Mr. Gregory said in discussing the costs of the war. Of 65,000,000 men mobilized, 8,500,000 were killed, 21,000,000 wounded and 7,750,00 captured or missing, the sum of casualties being 37,500,000 or 57 per cent of the whole, the figures being exclusive of the civilian population which suffered from bombing, poison gas and other terrors, he said.

In the case of Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and the United States, the total increase in national debts during the war amounted to over a quarter of their national wealth, and the value of the property destroyed, sums raised by taxation and spent for war purposes, and the moneyed loss by death and maiming, added to the increase in the national debts, drives the figures up to more than a third of the national wealth figure, he said.

Prevention of War.

"War is sometimes justified, it will occur in the future, but the greatest problem of the human race is to prevent it in every way possible," Mr. Gregory said. He added that he is neither a conscientious objector nor a pacifist. "As long as human nature is what it is we dare not hope that all wars can be prevented, but we do know that if a deadly pestilence or tidal wave had swept over the white races, leaving in its wake one-half the destruction wrought by the World War, and the greatest scientists of the nations were seeking the cause of the catastrophe and devising plans to prevent its recurrence, the United States would be there before the rest."

Mr. Gregory said the ruling passion of Wilson's life was a "deep and abiding sympathy for the underdog. His heart went out toward the individuals and the peoples who were striving to maintain themselves against desperate odds; he believed that peace on earth and good will to all men was as applicable to nations as to individuals. This was the attribute which earned for him the fame of being perhaps the greatest idealist of time. By idealism I mean the striving after the infinitely perfect, which in international affairs means unselfish sympathy for mankind and its welfare."

In defending Wilson from Lord Birkenhead, ex-lord chancellor of Great Britain, who minimized Wilson's work at the peace conference, Mr. Gregory asked: "How could a gross materialist like Birkenhead have other than contempt for a man like Woodrow Wilson?"

The course pursued by the senate was a clear violation of the constitutional obligation imposed, and left upon its shoulders the burden of the rejection of the treaty and the league, Mr. Gregory said. "In passing on the Treaty of Versailles the senate failed to carry out the obligations laid upon its by the constitution. If the senate had returned the treaty with a statement of the form in which it would be satisfactory to that body, the president might have accepted or refused to accept the changes suggested, and the responsibility would have been his and his alone."

Malice in Charges.

False charges that Wilson had no sympathy and improperly delayed the entry of the United States into the war and failed to vigorously prosecute the war were made through ignorance and malice, Mr. Gregory said.

Members of the league have within their borders 70 per cent of the world's area and over 80 per cent of its population, and on the outside stand the United States, Russia, Turkey, Afghanistan and Ecuador, he said. Notwithstanding the official statement that "we are out of the league for all time," the force of public opinion has compelled this country to follow the lead of the league in a few of the things it seeks to accomplish, he said. "We sent representatives to its opium conference and to its arms traffic conference; we have agreed to file our treaties with the secretariat; we sent representatives to its preparatory conference on disarmament; and we are about to consider taking part in the Permanent Court of International Justice."

Introduced by Underwood.

Mr. Gregory was introduced by E. Marvin Underwood, nominee for judge of the federal court for the northern district of Georgia, who served under him as assistant attorney general. Mr. Underwood presided at the institute meeting in the absence of Dr. T. H. Jack.

Dr. Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory, made a brief talk on the purpose of the institute, and declared that Emory "is striving to promote the best interest of the locality, state and nation."

In an interview Tuesday, Mr. Underwood said that he does not feel that there has ever been a 100 per cent effort to enforce the 18th amendment. He is in favor of seeing every reasonably and conscientious effort to enforce it, but believes "we are paying a tremendous price for inefficient enforcement now and I think I voice the sentiment of a large number of our citizens when I say that if an earnest effort at enforcement is made with no substantially better results I am prepared to consider some other method."

Many '31 Valentines Carry Subtle Venom

The old comic has come back, but in more sophisticated, cynical guise. The 1931 comic valentine touches with broad satire current phases of life and human weaknesses.

The modern teacher gets hers, but she is no longer a sour-visaged "old maid" with ringlets, but a flapperish person who walks home from an auto ride.

"You boast of women's suffrage.
And what you'll do next fall.
If your bridge meets on election day.

in which he urged the party to take a direct stand on the prohibition issue, declaring the states whose delegates will represent a majority of the next national convention have already declared for some change in existing conditions, adding, "if that means going wet, then I say to you the democratic party has already gone wet."

Raskob was criticized as attempting to make the party wet in a speech in the house yesterday by Representative John C. Box, democrat, Texas.

Describing economic conditions and the opportunity for economic leadership, Box continued: "With such a service waiting to be performed by the party, and with its people waiting for leadership in the service of the nation, an unendurable situation is created when its national organization is in large part committed to one who cares not for either party or the principles of either but desires to lead it to perform in the circus ring prepared by the association opposed to prohibition."

Many influential leaders among those now in control of party policies believe that the Wickersham commission's report and President Hoover's opposition to the form of revision of the eighteenth amendment recommended by a majority of the commission, opens the way for the democratic party to take an aggressive position for a change in federal prohibition.

Numerous southern democrats, however, are strongly opposed to such a course.

While it is uncertain how far this discussion will come formally into the meeting of the committee it is expected the matter will be thoroughly considered in informal conversations at any rate.

possibilities of a corner or a squeeze' has been reduced to a minimum.

"A very probable effect of the control which the proposed bill would give the secretary of agriculture over cash grain business would be to permit a monopoly of the business by a few financially strong individuals or corporation."

Edward A. O'Neal, of Alabama, vice president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said he believed when farmers developed their own marketing machinery "the exchanges may be found unnecessary."

Until that time, he contended, "congress should protect them against speculation and price manipulation."

Luke Lea whereby an effort to camouflage huge state deposits in five banks was to be made. He said republican state headquarters had asked the highway commissioner for a statement of his project accounts with what were known as the Lea-Caldwell banks.

Nolan said that he, with the highway commissioner, Counsellor General T. P. Henderson and Colonel Lea, attended a conference at Lea's home at which it was suggested the highway department hand him warrants for a large part of the funds in the four banks—the commissioner would strike a balance with the warrants counted off, and reply to the republicans. Later the warrants were to be returned by the treasurer to the highway commissioner, Nolan said.

He said that when the warrants were delivered to him with the request that he hold them several days he refused to do so. In answer to questions Nolan said Colonel Lea and Henderson knew the camouflage "was to be put up."

Nolan had said he considered the second bond issue, for $29,000,000, far in excess of state needs at the time.

Later in the day Nolan was asked whether Colonel Lea ever asked the treasurer to "make deposits in specified banks." "He made numerous requests that I deposit money in banks," Nolan replied. He said the requests were made "by telephone or in person," not by letter.

The final question put to Nolan queried whether it had occurred to him in 1919 that an organized effort was being made to raid the state treasury.

"No, sir," the witness returned.

"It has been done, hasn't it?"

"It looks that way now," Nolan answered. He was dismissed.

speculative contagion was again spreading among the public.

The advance in stocks was accompanied by a flurry of bullishness in the wheat market, and July and September deliveries shot up about 2 and 3 cents a bushel. While bears were having difficulties in stocks, the upsurge of grain prices was accompanied by vague rumors that the great Russian bear was in trouble. While grain traders were quick to conclude that disturbances in Russia would tend to keep the country's wheat out of the world market, the rumors of political disturbances were utterly without confirmation.

Financial circles were also encouraged by improvement in non-ferrous metal prices. Copper was quoted 9 3-4 cents a pound, up 1-4 of a cent from its recent 35-year low, and was so actively bought that there was talk in trade circles of still higher prices. Bar silver rebounded 3-4 of a cent from its historical low of 26 1-8 cents an ounce.

The bullish developments in commodity prices were accompanied also by good news from the steel industry. The United States Steel Corporation reported a gain in bookings of new business in January, leaving an increase of 183,755 tons in unfilled orders at the end of the month, the largest January gain since 1928. There were also mildly encouraging reports from the automobile trade.

These developments tended to bolster up the share market, which seemed to be lifting itself by the bootstraps in the first two days of its advance. The fear was expressed among some brokers, however, that the market might be advancing too rapidly, and precautionary advices were sent out over some brokerage wires. A repetition of the wild gyrations in some of the more erratic stocks, such as Auburn and Case, was a factor in inspiring this attitude.

The tight situation in Auburn—which is causing continued talk of a possible technical corner—was apparent from the fact that buying orders aggregating 2,000 shares were sufficient to give the issue a boost of $11.50 at the opening. It later extended its advance to $16.75, but this was cut down to $14 at the close of the market when it stood at $188.50, making a two-day advance of $32.75.

The play shifted to J. I. Case during the afternoon, and this issue surged up $15 to $114.75, although its total capitalization amounts to only 194.471 shares, transfers during the day aggregated 114.700 shares. As much of this issue is closely held, Wall Street could only conclude that the same stock was changing hands rapidly.

Westinghouse Electric, despite its large capitalization of some 2,500,000 shares, shot up vigorously as shorts were driven to cover. It made an extreme gain of $8.50, of which $3.50 was later lost. Gains in the more stable issues mostly ranged from $1 to $4. United States Steel moved up $4 in response to its unfilled tonnage report, and closed up $3, net. General Motors gained about $1 in the large turnover of 194,000 shares.

	Jan. Low.	Day's Close.	Day's Gain.
Allied Chemical	153.50	169.25	2.25

General Motors	35.25	43.75	.87

U. S. Steel	137.87	146.37	3.00
Westinghouse Elect.	82,37	95.00	5.00

Closing prices ranged somewhat below the day's best levels, and late profit taking sales caused a few net losses. American Tobacco B and Loew's were among issues closing about $1 lower.

FOWLER'S SLAYER TO TESTIFY TODAY

and had done nothing to provoke the shooting, were heard Tuesday after which two eye-witnesses were put up by the defense to lay the basis for the plea of self-defense.

F. E. Turner, who lives on Fort street, less than 100 feet from the scene of the killing, testified that on the afternoon of the slaying he and Berry Gregory, a negro, were working on a motor car in the street when Fowler approached them and offered to assist in repairing the auto. Turner testified that Fowler had been drinking and after remaining with him and Gregory for 15 or 20 minutes went down the street and into a house occupied by the negroes.

"A short time after Fowler left Mr. Pittman drove up," Mr. Turner said in an answer to a question by Thomas Shackleford, of Athens, chief of counsel for Pittman. "Pittman got out of his car and I did not see either him or Fowler for several minutes.

"When Pittman did appear and start toward his car I noted Fowler approaching the auto, too. I could hear Fowler say something but was too far away to determine what he said. Pittman then got out of the car and as Fowler drew nearer he fired three shots, all of which entered Fowler's body."

Turner than told the jury that when he approached Pittman, the collector told him to call the police, saying that "I have been forced to kill this man."

Gregory, the negro, who testified that he had been in the employ of the borough for the last two years, corroborated Turner's testimony. Both Turner and Gregory said Fowler appeared to have been drinking.

Mrs. Fowler, the victim's mother, was the chief witness for the state, her testimony concerning her son's dying statement being the most important bit of evidence offered by the prosecution.

J. C. Jamieson and Mrs. Evelyn Waller also testified that they saw the shooting. Appearing for the state they told the jury that they did not see Fowler make any threatening gestures toward Pittman nor did they hear him say anything which might have provoked the killing.

Mrs. Waller testified that immediately after the shooting Pittman went to a telephone and dialed a number, reporting that "I got my man."

The courtroom of Judge Virlyn B. Moore, before whom the case is being tried, was filled at both morning and afternoon sessions Tuesday. A number of spectators were said to be from Athens, Pittman's former home.

DE BOE TO SERVE 18 MONTHS' TERM

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—(AP)—A five-year term of probation, 18 months of which must be spent in the county jail, was granted to Daisy De Boe today by Superior Judge William Doran who heard her trial for the theft of $825 from Clara Bow.

The decision, which saved her from a possible term of 1 to 10 years in prison was preceded by a stern reprimand. Judge Doran, speaking quietly and addressing his remarks directly to the blonde young woman, told her she was not only an "embezzler" but had committed a serious breach of trust.

As secretary to the film actress, he told her she had held "a good position at a substantial salary and had been entrusted with funds."

"You conducted systematic raids on these funds for some length of time . . . and the jury was quite generous in the verdict finding you guilty of only one count."

Miss De Boe originally was charged in 37 counts of grand theft with stealing more than $16,000 over a period of a year and a half. "The evidence was sufficient," the court continued, "to support a conviction on all counts."

Miss De Boe stood rigidly near the bench with her attorney, William Beirne, and showed no emotion.

"I think probably," the judge said after reflecting for a moment, "that the proper disposition of your case is—." He left the sentence unfinished and leaned back in his chair. His eyes wandered about the court room and then, bending forward, he peered intently at the young woman.

The spectators, filling the court room to capacity, seemed to move with him.

"I do not think I will incarcerate you in the penitentiary," Judge Doran began, "but I believe some substantial incarceration is required. I don't think you ever will be in trouble again but your case must be an example for others. The court grants you probation for five years on condition that you spend 18 months in the county jail. That is all."

Back in a crowded row of spectators' seats, an elderly woman, Mrs. Ida De Boe, mother of Miss De Boe, began to cry. The jail matron took the young woman's arm and led her from the court room. As she passed by her mother she stopped to comfort her but the matron told her to leave immediately.

Beirne said later he has taken steps to appeal for a new trial, indicating Miss De Boe had changed a previous decision to accept the mercy of the court.

Before court opened, she sat beside Alfred Mathes, her sweetheart, and talked freely with reporters.

"How do you like jail?"

"Well I'm getting a lot of rest," she replied. "Don't you think I'm looking better?"

At her home, Miss Bow, chief prosecution witness who relented after Daisy had been convicted and asked the district attorney to help her former secretary obtain probation, said "I can only say I am terribly sorry that Daisy must stay in jail."

carriers. W. L. Stanley, vice president of the Seaboard Air Line, and other railroad attorneys argued for adoption of the bill which was opposed by E. Smythe Gambrell, attorney for the Georgia Motor Carriers' Association.

On a motion offered in the house, after several speeches for and against the rental bill had been made, by Representative Hamp McWhorter, of Oglethorpe, to report the Battle-Allen bill to the house at 11 o'clock this morning the vote was 111 to 39. Neither proponents of the bill, nor its opponents, regarded this as indicating the strength of the measure but its sponsors said Tuesday night it would pass "by a comfortable majority."

To Raise $3,450,000.

As it now stands, and as it appears the house will approve it today, the bill will raise $3,450,000 for the immediate relief of the state eleemosynary institutions and public schools. It contains a provision directing the governor to sell the rentals after advertising for competitive bids and also directs that the yield be apportioned, on a pro rata basis, to the unpaid appropriations made by the general assemblies of 1927 and 1929.

Chances of the bill in the senate were looked upon Tuesday as considerably improved, although the drafting of a new bill to divert highway funds and turn over to the highway department railroad rentals as security for a loan of $3,000,000 was reported. This plan, advocated early in the session by Representative J. Wesley Culpepper, chairman of the ways and means committee of the house, has practically been abandoned by the house leadership.

Digressing from a busy legislative schedule, which called for the W. & A. vote Tuesday, the house paid rapt attention to Representative Harvey Kennedy, of Lamar county, when he arose on a point of personal privilege and made an impassioned defense of Representative H. B. Edwards, of Valdosta, described in a speech lately made at Macon by Harry Strozier, law partner of Judge Orville A. Park, as "a mentally incompetent legislator."

Edwards, last week, delivered a scathing attack on Judge Park and other state department attaches. He particularly criticised the Macon lawyer, special counsel for the Georgia Tax Revision Association, for receiving $28,000 in fees from a state he had only a few days before said stood first in lynchings and the number of moonshine stills.

Defends Colleague.

"To say the least about Strozier's remarks," Representative Kennedy told the house, "they were unfair, unwarranted, un-American and unpatriotic. My colleague, Mr. Edwards, bears on his body three wounds received in battle with his country's enemies. He spent 32 months in hospitals and regained his health only after a bitter struggle against death.

"There is no member of this house who will say that H. B. Edwards is mentally incompetent and it ill becomes any man who has profited financially from his state to curse the scars another has received in the defense of his government."

When Kennedy finished the house applauded and a moment later it adopted by a rising vote a resolution proposed by Representative Tippins, of Evans county, expressing "the complete confidence of this house in Representative Edwards."

Amendments to the senate substitute bill for the Goode tax commission measure fixed the salaries of the appointed members at $5,000 instead of $4,000 annually and the other curtailed the power of the tax equalization board created in the bill.

Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin, rector of a Williamsburg, Va., church, will address a joint session of the general assembly Thursday as the personal representative of Governor John Garland Pollard, of Virginia. He will invite Georgians to participate in the sesquicentennial celebration of the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown.

Eight Measures Handled.

The house ways and means committee, in one of its most active sessions, disposed of eight measures on its calendar Tuesday. Four bills were reported adversely, two resolutions received a favorable vote, and two others, whose authors said they had served their purpose merely by introduction, were eliminated from discussion.

The measures turned down included two bills proposing that banks, electric light and gas companies be taxed 50 per cent of their service charges; a bill seeking to exempt blind and crippled persons from payment of occupation taxes, and a bill calling for levy of a tax on dealers in cotton, grain and stock futures. The latter measure, after considerable debate, brought out the only record vote of the meeting. It was rejected 21 to 9, while the tax exemption bill was opposed on the ground that it did not come within the governor's extra session call.

The resolutions approved would direct the governor to take steps to collect certain funds owed the state by counties, and to end the practice of "tolling," or taking of 10 per cent commissions by tax collectors, in accordance with a recent ruling of the attorney general that there is no statutory authority for the practice.

The house penitentiary committee reported favorably on a substitute for a bill providing for appointment of a commission to purchase a new state prison farm. The substitute includes clauses requiring segregation of prisoners according to classes of crime, and allowing convicts to be used for making road signs and other articles for the highway board.

value was fixed by the United States court, we have an added value of $953,833, applying the same working capital used by the court, gives us $350,000, we have, as of January 1, 1930, a total value of $10,842,713."

The commission pointed out that subsequent to January 1, 1929, the commission, on its own motion and without complaint from any source, revised the gas rates at Atlanta, resulting in very material reductions to the general gas consumers. Following the inauguration of natural gas service the commission prescribed rates for wholesale industrial use and for apartment and residential heating purposes and the effect of these wholesale rates has been to increase the volume of sales of the gas company and to offset some losses sustained in the general revision, the commission said. Effective with meter readings in February, 1931, the commission prescribed rates for space heating, including residences, that will result in a further reduction of the revenue of the company, the commission said.

Commission's Order.

The text of the commission order follows:

By the Commission:

The commission is requested to ascertain the value of the assets and property of the Atlanta Gas Light Company devoted to the public use and for a general downward revision of the present gas rates in Atlanta and vicinity.

Subsequent to January 1, 1929, the commission, on its own motion, without complaint from any source, revised the gas rates of Atlanta, resulting in very material reductions to the general gas consumers. The first revision was made prior to the time that the property was sold by the Georgia Power Company to the present owners, Central Public Service Corporation. After the purchase by the Central Public Service Corporation and the extension of the pipe lines of the Southern Natural Gas Company from the Louisiana gas fields to Atlanta, the present owners, Central Public Service Corporation (Atlanta Gas Light Company), contracted with the Southern Natural Gas Company for the purchase of natural gas for distribution by the Atlanta Gas Light Company in Atlanta, and again the commission, of its own motion, revised the rates applicable in the use of natural gas. This latter revision resulting in a decrease in the gas company's earnings for the year 1930, as compared with 1929, of $450,113.

The Atlanta Gas Light Company and other utilities under the jurisdiction of the commission are required, by the rules of the commission, to file with the commission at the close of each month a statement of earnings and expenses on forms prescribed by the commission, and also are required to file with the commission annual reports giving detailed information as to the operations of the company. The purpose of these reports is that the commission may keep in constant touch with the earnings of the utilities and be in a position to determine, without waiting for complaints, when it is reasonably indicated that a revision of rates can be justified.

Following the inauguration of natural gas service the commission prescribed rates for wholesale industrial use and for apartment and residential heating purposes and the effect of these wholesale rates has been to increase the volume of sales of the gas company and to offset some losses sustained in the general revision.

Effective with meter readings in February, 1931, the commission prescribed rates for space heating, including residences, that will result in a further reduction of the revenue of the company.

In 1922 the commission revised the rates of the Atlanta Gas Light Company on a basis of a value of $5,250,000. The order of the commission in this revision was enjoined by the United States court for the northern district of Georgia. The court fixed, as of January 1, 1924, the value of the property of the Atlanta Gas Light Company at $8,015,609. If this value were to be used today, without regard to the necessary additions and betterments since January 1, 1924, the company, applied to 1930 business, earned 6.53% return on the value of said property as of January 1, 1924. However, since January 1, 1924, there has been added to the value of this property, in the way of additions and betterments, including the change over from manufactured to natural gas, extensions of mains, etc., of approximately $2,569,830, and added to this for going concern value, on the same ratio as used when the value was fixed by the United States court, we have an added value of $853,833, applying the same working capital used by the court, gives us $350,000, we have, as of January 1, 1930, a total value of $10,842,713. On this value the Atlanta Gas Light Company earned 4.3% in 1930.

To make an appraisal of the property of the Atlanta Gas Light Company would incur an expense of thousands of dollars and to enter into such an investigation as petitioned for by the city of Atlanta would incur other heavy expenses on the part of the gas company, all of which would have to be allowed by the commission in the operating expenses of the company and, therefore, would have to be paid by the gas consumers. The investigation of the commission, as indicated by the foregoing figures, shows clearly that the hearing and valuation petitioned for could not possibly result in any reductions in the present revenues of the Atlanta Gas Light Company, but on the other hand, might possibly result in material increases which the commission feels should be avoided, if possible, at this time. It is, therefore,

ORDERED: That the petition of the city of Atlanta for a revaluation of the property of the Atlanta Gas Light Company and a general reduction of the rates of the Atlanta Gas Light Company, and a hearing on same, be and the same is hereby denied.

By order of Georgia Public Service Commission.

JAMES A. PERRY, Chairman.

Bartlett Declares He Made No Move To Check St. Paul Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—John H. "Bartlett, former assistant postmaster-general, testified today before the senate postal lease investigating committee that he had made no attempt to prevent a grand jury investigation of the St. Paul commercial station lease but that he might have been "used" for that purpose.

Charles F. Trotter, who served under Bartlett, told the committee he was ordered by Postmaster-General New to draft an acceptance of the lease, which was later characterized by a federal grand jury as fraudulent.

Chairman Blaine announced that New, who has asked for an opportunity to appear, probably would be called a week from tomorrow.

Bartlett's testimony concerning the grand jury investigation came while he was questioned by Chairman Blaine about a trip he made to St. Paul in July, 1928, shortly before the grand jury convened.

"Did you have any knowledge whatever," Blaine asked, "of an attempt to prevent a grand jury investigation?"

"No," Bartlett replied. "Nothing whatever of that kind came to my knowledge or was even suspected by me. The only thing of that kind was New's effort to displace Fesler."

He referred to Assistant District Attorney Fesler, at St. Paul, whose dismissal he has said New recommended after Fesler had presented evidence in connection with the lease to the grand jury.

MORE SUITS FILED IN BANK FAILURE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Eight additional suits for $100,000 each each were filed against Ramsay & McCormack, Inc., in circuit court here today by depositors of the defunct Bank of Ensley, alleging the defendants "falsely represented" that they supported the bank financially.

The suits brought to a total 198 bills, aggregating $19,800,000, filed against the firm growing out of the bank's failure.

Tiny Girl Helps 'Nursie' Move, Alarms Parents

Little Jacquelyn Turner, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Turner, of 651 Lawton street, was at home safe and sound Monday night, innocently unaware that she had been the object of an all-day search on the part of frantic parents and police.

The child showed up late Monday afternoon with her nurse, Jessie Mays, after spending the day contentedly at the home of the colored woman, who was observing "moving day." At 10 o'clock the child and her nurse went to a store near the Turner home and when they did not return by 3 p. m. police of Atlanta, East Point and Fulton county were notified. The homecoming took place shortly before dark.

World Famous 'Lawrence of Arabia' Comes Out of Seclusion To Testify

PLYMOUTH, England, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The world famous, romantic figure of "Lawrence of Arabia" has been carefully concealed in the uniform of plain "Aircraftsman Shaw" but this apparently obscure member of Great Britain's armed forces can still get high government officials to do what he asks.

Today he testified at an official inquiry into the death of nine aviators in the crash of a giant seaplane here last week, but officials at the air ministry would say nothing about what he told the investigators, explaining that he wishes to escape the limelight of publicity.

What little leaked out, however, showed that the one-time Colonel Thomas Edward Lawrence, now Thomas Edward Shaw by deed poll, played a heroic part in rescuing the fliers who were saved.

Colonel Lawrence achieved world fame for his exploits in Arabia before he was 40, but then he suddenly decided to seek utter seclusion despite the fact that he could have held high government posts and could have become extremely wealthy by capitalizing his experiences.

Like a man entering a monastery he cut off all connections with the world he had known, had his name legally changed, tossed away his commission and had himself assigned as an enlisted man at the Mount Batten air station here.

And here he stayed, though rumors had him engaging in mysterious adventures through various parts of the empire, most recently on some strange mission to India. Today it was definitely determined that he is still dodging the searchlight of fame.

Air ministry officials, asked about Shaw's reappearance in the news, said they could give no information in deference to his expressed wish. The same officials added, however, that at least the knowledge that he had appeared to testify would spike the rumor that he was engaged in a secret mission to India.

2-CENT FARE REFUSED TO L. & N. RAILROAD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The Louisville & Nashville railroad was refused permission by the interstate commerce commission today to install two-cent per mile fares for day-coach riders between St. Louis on the north and Pensacola and Birmingham, Ala., on the south.

The railroad, like other southeastern and southwestern carriers, sought to match schedules put into effect this month by the St. Louis-San Francisco system.

It failed, however, to make the two-cent fare apply over all of its system. The commission's objection was that Louisville & Nashville passengers to and from intermediate points between the terminals named would be required to pay the standard 3.6-cent rate.

This was viewed as a discrimination.

SUN LIFE PRESIDENT PREDICTS PROSPERITY

MONTREAL, Feb. 10—(Special.) "We are facing the dawn of a new era of, I hope, great prosperity." So spoke T. B. Macaulay, eminent Canadian financier, head of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, at the annual meeting held here today. He drew a vivid word picture of depression conditions which this continent faces at the present time, believing that the first stage in the come-back has passed, that the return to prosperity will be gradual, and that the federal reserve system has it in its power to hasten that return.

"What of the future? Even if no action be taken by those in control to stabilize the dollar, this depression, like all others, will slowly, painfully work its own cure, as is, in fact, now happening. That cure comes through the accumulation of the combined savings of the people of the continent.

"During 1930 we had one of the major depressions of history, but we are now in the latter stages. The second reaction, or, at least, its severity, was not only unnecessary, but could have been avoided. The distinguishing feature has been the rapid and severe drop in prices in every line of business, the average commodity price level being now 20 per cent lower than a year ago. This reduction has been the chief cause of our troubles in 1930.

"It is admitted that in the United States the purchasing power of the dollar depends entirely on the amount of currency and currency credits which the federal reserve authorities may permit to be outstanding. Overproduction or competition may affect the value of one commodity as compared with other commodities, but the average price of all commodities combined depends upon the purchasing power of the dollar, and that can be controlled by the reserve banks and by them alone. Between 1922-29 the average commodity price level was kept fairly even by buying government bonds and paying for them in currency when those in authority wished to raise the price level, and by selling government bonds and taking payment in currency when they wished to lower it. This stabilizing of the value of the dollar was a source of inestimable value, and had it but been continued humanity would have been spared much needless suffering.

"It is difficult for our American friends to fully realize the vastness of the power, and consequently of responsibility also, which their country now has in this connection. The United States now controls such a large proportion of the gold of the world that other countries are comparatively helpless. The American dollar is in fact now the real basis for almost all currencies and anything that alters its value affects the people of every continent for weal or woe."

JACOBS ADVANCED BY KEELY COMPANY

Announcement of the appointment of Philip L. Jacobs as merchandise manager of Keely Company was made Tuesday by H. H. Ullman, treasurer and general manager of the company.

Mr. Jacobs was formerly manager of ready-to-wear at Keely's, having come here last fall from St. Louis, and Mr. Ullman says that he has made great progress in the department during the short time that he has been there.

PHILIP L. JACOBS.

Prior to coming to Atlanta, Mr. Jacobs had a successful record in merchandising with the Bedell stores in St. Louis. Before that he had charge of a group of 16 Lerner stores in the middle west, gaining extensive experience in the merchandising field.

Mr. Jacobs will leave this week with all the Keely buyers for New York to make their spring purchases. The management says that an unusually attractive selection of merchandise will be offered this season.

The announcement said that Leslie Schwartzberg would be in charge of the ready-to-wear department as successor to Mr. Jacobs. Other appointments made were: George Scully, formerly of Nann's in Brooklyn, to be buyer of the men's and boys' furnishing department; B. Welch, formerly with Bedell's, to be shoe buyer; and Miss Nora Crowe, formerly manager of Lerner's shops in St. Louis and Louisville, to be underwear buyer.

The appointments were made, according to Mr. Ullman, after conferences with John Morris and John Morris, Jr., both of whom are actively engaged in the management of Keely Company, Inc.

RAIL CONSOLIDATION DIVIDES COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Differences of opinion among members today forestalled action by the senate interstate commerce committee upon a report questioning the advisability of further railroad consolidations.

William C. Green, special investigator for the committee, reported after six months' study that the consolidation provision of the transportation act "has not and cannot accomplish its original purpose."

With signs of a controversy developing the committee decided to meet later to consider its action upon the report.

Republican and democratic independents on the committee were expected to urge adoption of Green's report, while other members were prepared to urge radical changes in it, or its rejection.

BUILDING PERMITS DROP IN JANUARY

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The total value of building permits issued in January ran true to the normal course, Bradstreet's reports today, showing a decrease from the previous month.

Reports from 189 cities showed the total value of permits was $90,652,003 against $106,920,991 in December, and $110,614,351 a year ago. Bradstreet's says the decrease from the comparable month in 1930 was 18 per cent, comparing with a loss of 11.5 per cent in December, and with that exception was the smallest drop since October, 1929.

HOUSE, TREASURY MOVE TO BAR CONVICT GOODS

House Favors General Ban After Department Bars Soviet Lumber.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Moving shortly after the treasury had issued orders to bar convict-produced lumber and pulpwood from northern Russia, the house ways and means committee today approved a bill to exclude forced labor products from all countries.

The treasury ordered collectors of customs to require that importers of lumber and pulpwood from four sections of northern Russia prove that convict labor did not enter into their production. The orders were issued under regulations in accord with the 1930 tariff law.

The house committee action was upon the Kendall bill, designed to put into effect on April 1 the provisions of the tariff law relating to forced labor products. Under the tariff law, these provisions do not go into effect until next January.

The bill would exclude products transported, handled or loaded as well as those produced by forced, indentured or convict labor. It would define forced labor as "all work or service which is exacted from any person under the menace of any penalty for its non-performance and for which the worker does not offer himself voluntarily." The treasury orders were issued by Commissioner F. X. A. Eble, of customs, after the treasury had received new affidavits bearing upon the use of convicts in Russian forests.

Officials expect the legality of the action to be questioned in the courts by the importers. They declined to disclose the new evidence.

The commissioner in his order said "Evidence which has been presented to me," caused him to find that "convict labor is used in the production of lumber and pulpwood," in the Kola peninsula, including the Murman coast, an autonomous Kerelian area, the northern area of Russia, and in the autonomous area of Zyryan.

The action was the first taken toward barring Russian goods since last summer when shipments of lumber and pulpwood were temporarily barred.

Russian matches already are barred by the treasury under the anti-dumping act. It was found they were selling for less in this country than in Russia.

Charges have also been made that Russia is dumping manganese and coal in this country, but no action on either of those products has been taken.

Doctors Know Best How to Treat Colds

Medical writers agree that the important point in the treatment of a cold, or cough due to a cold, is to relieve the congestion in the nose and throat, thereby preventing serious complications which may follow a neglected cold. To stop this congestion calomel was the accepted and standard remedy until Calotabs, the improved calomel compound tablet, was introduced.

Now that science has robbed calomel of its nausea and danger, making it pleasant to take and perfectly safe for general use, over forty million Calotabs are consumed in the U. S. yearly with only the most pleasant and satisfactory results. In millions of homes Calotabs have proven their superiority in the prompt relief of colds and coughs due to colds.

One or two calotabs at bedtime with a glass of sweet milk or water. No salts, necessary. No nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, work or pleasure. Next morning the congestion has subsided, your cold or cough is relieved, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish—no danger.

Manhattan Night

By William Almon Wolff

INSTALLMENT VI.

"All right. Good night," he said. He went on back to the bar. He was used to Martha, Peter supposed. Peter wasn't, and she went to his head. There was something thrilling and exciting about her; about her voice, and the way she moved, and her way of issuing commands. He turned to the check room for his things, and when he looked around Martha was talking to Benny, the fat man who stood by the elevator door and separated the sheep who had to put up with the dancing room from the goats who were privileged to enter the bar.

Peter had never liked that man's looks, and he liked them less than ever just then. Have you ever found yourself short of cash in such a place, and been obliged to arrange to cash a check or have something charged? The man was looking at Martha then as Peter would have been prepared to have him look at him in such an event. But the elevator came up just then, and they went down, and found a taxi.

"This is the other thing I want you to do for me," Martha said, in the cab. "Take this, please—"

She slipped a bracelet into his hand, a lovely, costly thing of diamonds and emeralds he'd noticed earlier, with a little surprise that she should be wearing it in a place like Emma's.

"I want you to go back, after you've taken me home, and give this to that man I was talking to, by the elevator. Will you? He'll be expecting you, and he knows what it's all about. Martha hesitated. "I couldn't give it to him myself—there were too many people about."

"But—" said Peter. "Mrs. Thayer—"

"Oh, please—please" Her voice rose. He knew already that it could never be shrill, but there was a note of sheer desperation in it that silenced him. "I can't help myself, and I can't explain now. I will later—and I think you'll understand. But—oh—I promised to give him five hundred dollars tonight, and I couldn't, and I've got to let him keep this till I can—"

"Just a second," said Peter. "I'm not going to argue. You—you're sure you've got to do this?"

"Yes, I am," she said, very quietly.

"All right, then," said Peter. "Keep your bracelet, though. I'll get five hundred dollars before Emma's closes, and give it to him. But I'll be damned if I'll give that mutt a bracelet any number of people would recognize as yours if they saw it!"

He held out the bracelet, and, after a moment, she took it from him. They were pretty far east, by then, and the cab was dark, but Peter could feel the way she was looking at him.

"But—why?" she said. "Why should you do that for me, Peter Wayne?"

"Because I'm the same sort of damned fool you are, I expect," he said. "That's reason enough for now, anyway. Take it or leave it. I'll give him the money, and gladly. But not the bracelet."

Peter thought she might be angry. What happened, though, was the one thing he didn't expect. She laughed, and it seemed to him that no one who had never heard Martha laugh as she did then could really know what those two words mean.

"Oh, I'll take it—and thanks!" she said. "I've been nearly all the sorts of damned fool there are, but I'm not the sort of fool I'd have to be not to take this from you."

Peter, sitting on the roof, caught his breath at the memory of that moment. From his place he could see the elevated; a train was rumbling past, and he remembered that one had drowned their voices, that other night. They'd been bumping across the trolley tracks, and they had shaken hands, he and Martha, on the understanding they had reached, and the friendship that they both knew had been born in that moment.

He had seen this roof, that night, for the first time. He had come upstairs with Martha, and they had found the penthouse lighted, and had heard the sound of a piano as they stepped out of the elevator. In the living room, the same room in which he was sitting now, Tack had been at the piano, in his pajamas, with every window open and half an autumn gale blowing in on him, playing Chopin's Revolutionary Etude, and playing it magnificently, with an amazing nerve.

Peter had had time to forget it, but he had remembered, then, that Tack had been noted as a pianist at college, and he'd heard someone say, once, that music was just one of the things in which Tack might have achieved greatness if life hadn't sidetracked him. Martha had started in at once to close the windows, and Peter had helped her. Tack had paid no attention; he had played on until, with the last crashing chords filling the room he had turned, on the bench, and seen them. He had grinned at Peter—because he had been expecting to see Ross, probably, Peter had thought.

"Hello!" he'd said. "Have a drink, Pete?"

"Trying to catch pneumonia and end it all, darling?" Martha had asked. "No. You wouldn't die. I'd have to play the devoted wife and nurse you back to health."

"God forbid!" Tack had said.

Connolly, Peter reflected, as he remembered that, was going to hear plenty of such exchanges. Not that particular one, of course; Peter had an idea, and having it made his lips look rather grim, that Connolly and Charley and the rest of them weren't going to learn very much from him. But he'd hear enough, no matter how quiet Peter kept. That sort of talk didn't mean anything, of course. The things the married people Peter knew, even those who got along beautifully, were always calling one another would make Connolly's hair curl. But reports of such endearments weren't going to help.

He had passed up Tack's offer of a drink, that other night, and cleared out as soon as he knew Martha was all right. Then he had driven back to Emma's, stopping off at various speakeasies to cash checks. Benny had been expecting him, just as Martha had said he would be. He had seemed to be a little surprised at getting cash instead of the bracelet; a little disappointed, too, Peter had thought. But he had made no comment.

"Thank you, sir," he had said—as he might have if Peter had been giving him $5 for finding a table on a crowded night.

Peter had rejoined his crowd; no one had even noticed that he had been away.

He wondered about that episode now, as he waited. He shook himself, impatiently. It seemed disloyal, somehow, to Martha, to be thinking about it at all. But that was a part of the horror of what the wall of the penthouse hid—that not only Peter but millions of other people were going to be speculating and thinking and wondering about every phase of her life; that everything she had said and done would be dragged out and examined.

Peter, looking out over the city from the roof, was struck by the lighted windows in the tall towers. Even at this hour, with the night nearly gone, not one of the great spires was wholly dark; the lighted panes made a curious pattern, confused and intricate, and yet suggestive, somehow, of design. There was something vaguely symbolic about that, it seemed to him.

This city that he could see served well enough to represent all New York as it had lain before him upon his return. The very people with whom he had been thrown had been as strange to him as these new giants that pierced the clouds, and those dancing, shifting specks of light were unlike the gleams of understanding that had come to him.

Everything had been strange to him and because of that he had reacted, very often, with great slowness to his surroundings. People had puzzled him a good deal. He had really been living, for some years, in a backwater of life, as men do, sometimes, who go slowly about their productive work, who lack brilliancy, and have to make up for it by a dogged, plodding application to their work.

German Raids Indicate Intensive Spring Drive Nearly Ready To Begin

Pershing Distressed Over Delay in Preparing Our Troops, Due to "False and Fatuous Theory" That Preparedness During Peace Was Unnecessary — Secretary Baker in France.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Frequent German raids and renewed activity all along the front by March 1, 1918, indicated the great German offensive might start at any time. The French general staff thought the Allies would be able to hold without serious difficulty until we could help, but it was doubtful enough to cause grave apprehension.

It was depressing to think that ten months had elapsed since our entry into the war and that we were just barely ready with one division of 27,000 men.

With all our wealth, our manpower and ability, that was the net result of our efforts up to the moment, all because our people had been deceived by a false and fatuous theory that it was unnecessary in time of peace to make even preliminary preparations for war.

Here we were likely to be confronted by the mightiest military offensive that the world had ever known, and it looked as though we should be compelled to stand by almost helpless and see the Allies again suffer losses of hundreds of thousands of men in their struggle against possible defeat.

In spite of these reflections there was the hope that with the utmost effort we should yet be able to develop our latent power in time to save our friends.

At least, now that we were face to face with the crisis, it was vital that America should exert herself to the utmost to complete what she had so leisurely begun.

My diary shows the following notations:

Chaumont, Wednesday, March 6, 1918. Heavy German raid repulsed by first division Friday morning. The enemy also raided the twenty-sixth division lines and were driven off.

Had meeting Saturday with Colonels Hagood and Andrews on S. O. S. organization. Lord Brooke and Frazier house guests. Some American women journalists visited me that afternoon.

Went to Ligny-en-Barrois Sunday to meet M. Clemenceau, who came to congratulate the first division on success repulsing raid. Met General Debeney, who was enthusiastic over conduct of our men. Spent the night at first division headquarters.

Motored to Langres with Harbord Monday to speak at opening of second session of general staff college. Germans made raid on forty-second division that morning.

Upon conclusion of this inspection of the first division I considered it ready to take the offensive at any time. It had been eight months in France, with varied experiences in training, had occupied an independent position in the St. Mihiel sector and had made several successful trench raids. Generals Duncan and Buck had their infantry brigades in efficient shape, and Summerall had carried the training of the artillery brigade to a high degree.

As to the forty-second, twenty-sixth and second divisions, the two first being then with the French in quiet sectors, and the second about to enter, each had yet to serve in line as an independent division to complete its training. In view of the certainty of determined German action at an early date, the quality and condition of our units were studied with solicitude by the French no less than by ourselves.

Praises Clemenceau's Spirit.

It was M. Clemenceau's custom while prime minister to spend Sundays visiting different portions of the front. As mentioned in my diary, he came especially to congratulate the first division on its success in repulsing the raid, and was enthusiastic over the conduct of the troops on that occasion.

The vigor and the aggressive spirit he displayed, notwithstanding his age, were contagious. On these visits he wanted to talk with the men right up at the front, and while it was not always convenient to humor him one had to admire his attitude.

I wished especially to be present at the opening of the general staff school in order to emphasize the importance of this training. My speaking during the war was entirely extemporaneous, but it seemed more effective than if read from manuscript. In this talk I stressed the necessity of preparation for duties that were expected of staff officers and dwelt on their obligations and their relations to the line. The new class for the second three-month session consisted, as usual, of officers selected from the various units of staff and line.

The course of instruction had been carefully laid out by Brigadier General McAndrew and his assistants, all graduates of our Fort Leavenworth school. It was based particularly on our own staff organization and consisted of an intensive study of lectures, specially prepared texts and practical problems.

On the visit to the forty-second division we spent the night at Baccarat as guests of M. and Mme. Michaut. At dinner, with all the children and grandchildren present, the family formed a most charming group. The town had been partially destroyed early in the war and now that the Germans were again active because of the presence of Americans it looked as though they might make the destruction complete.

I recall that when the possibility of putting an end to war was mentioned during the conversation at dinner, the grandmother of the household said, "No, that is not likely. We have had war here in this part of Europe every 50 years during the last thousand." That is the view of nine out of ten people, and still they go about the work of reconstruction as though such a thing as war could never happen again.

The front occupied by the 168th regiment, near Badonvillers, had been under a severe artillery attack on the fourth and a trench mortar platoon had been almost completely destroyed. The French army commander congratulated General Menoher on the way in which our troops repulsed this raid. After an inspection of the different regiments of the division and a visit to the scene of this action, I went to the hospital to see the wounded.

They were all very cheerful, especially a young officer, Lieutenant A. W. Terrell, 51st artillery regiment, who had lost a leg. He said that he wanted to stay through to the end of the war, and hoped he could find something to do as a clerk. All these first contacts with the enemy were relatively small affairs, of course, but they furnished many examples of what we could expect of the American soldier.

My diary notes this:

Paris, Sunday, March 10, 1918. Spent Thursday morning with Kernan, Langfitt and Atterbury and made adjustments in port and railway construction and management. Visited Camp de Mailly, where sea coast artillery is having splendid training under General Coe.

On Friday visited Edwards' 26th division serving on Chemin des Dames under General Maud'huy, the French corps commander. Arrived in Paris late at night during airplane attack. Branch of judge advocate general's office established at my headquarters.

Upon Colonel Bradley's report of only 30-day medical supplies on hand, sent urgent cable requesting immediate shipments. Cabled disapproval of suggestion by Mr. Paderewski for organization of division of men with Polish antecedents. Secretary of War Baker landed at Brest today.

Major General Maud'huy spoke with considerable enthusiasm of the men and of the officers of the 26th division, below regimental commanders, and especially praised their conduct of trench raids. He complimented General Traub, one of the brigade commanders, but was of the opinion that the higher officers, generally, needed more experience to make them efficient. American troops that served with General Maud'huy held him in high esteem. He was scrupulous regarding their instruction, to which he gave special attention.

He was very solicitous of the welfare of our troops, even going so far as to interest himself in the preparation of their food by detailing French cooks to teach ours the art. When I expressed my appreciation of his action, he said: "You know, we are a nation of cooks and we delight in preparing good things to eat." After their instruction the cooks in these units did better, thanks to the initiative of this fine old French general.

Our Cooking Not So Good.

Many of the cooks of the old army became experts, and the men in the early days in the west fared better as a rule than our men in France, where the cooks lacked experience. Personal supervision by officers and the establishment of cooking schools brought improvement in due course. However, there is little doubt that much of the intestinal trouble in our divisions during the early part of their service abroad was caused by poorly cooked food.

As soon as our troops began serving in the front line in so-called quiet sectors we were faced with the problem of handling casualty lists. The solution reached was to defer cabling the lists until some time after the engagement and then to send them in groups, to be given out by the war department, so the particular battle in which the casualty occurred could not be identified. If we had given the names to the press at home immediately that would have been the equivalent to telling the enemy the engagement in which they occurred. The French published no lists, but the information was sent to the local mayor, who in turn notified the family of the soldier, at the same time extending his condolences. Contrasted with this quiet, sympathetic way of giving such news to relatives, the method of publishing column after column of killed and wounded in the papers which people would eagerly scan day after day seemed inconsiderate and cruel.

The problem of decorations in our army had long been a knotty one, and except for the Medal of Honor and the Certificate of Merit we had only campaign badges and those given for marksmanship. The Allies desired to confer their decorations on our men who served with distinction under them, but we were not permitted to accept foreign decorations without permission from congress.

There is no doubt that some sort of visible evidence of exceptional military service arouses pride and stimulates effort. The generous bestowal of decorations in each Allied army by its commander-in-chief was unquestionably an important factor in maintaining the morale of their troops. Our own Medal of Honor had inspired many a heroic act.

As it was a matter of importance to our officers and men, the whole question of decorations was taken up by the war department on my suggestion with the result that congressional action established certain medals of our own and authorized our soldiers to receive those of foreign governments.

The medals created by congress at this time were the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against an armed enemy, and the Distinguished Service Medal for exceptionally meritorious service in a position of great responsibility, which replaced the Certificate of Merit. These were in addition to the Medal of Honor, our highest decoration, established in 1862, for gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of life above and beyond the call of duty. The award of the Certificate of Merit was discontinued.

Authority was also eventually given the war department to confer our decorations on Allied officers and men who had rendered deserving service with our armies. The different grades of medals in the various countries were not entirely the same as ours. We had none that corresponded to the French or Belgian Croix de Guerre. There ought to have been one for gallantry in action somewhat less conspicuous than that covered by the Medal of Honor or the Distinguished Service Cross. I made a recommendation to this effect, but nothing came of it.

Medals Promote Friendship.

There were thousands of instances in our armies where a medal of this class should have been bestowed. We were as liberal in decorating Allied officers and men as the provisions of our law would permit, and there is no doubt that the exchange of decorations helped materially to promote friendly relations.

Secretary Baker arrived at Brest March 10, as my diary showed, and I met him and his party in Paris the next morning. The secretary's party consisted of Major General W. M. Black, chief of engineers; Lieutenant Colonel M. L. Brett, Commander R. D. White, of the navy; and Mr. Ralph Hayes, his secretary.

It was essential that the secretary receive every opportunity to inspect our whole layout, from the front areas to the services of supply, that he might become familiar with plans, observe the progress made toward their completion, and obtain first-hand information of our requirements, all of which he was especially anxious to do. Leaving Paris March 12 we inspected our most important ports, depots, hospitals, regulating stations, motor parks and schools, and returned March 17 to my headquarters at Chaumont.

The main air service school at Issoudun, which we visited, was a hive of activity, being one of the 15 schools where early instruction in flying was given. General Foulois and Colonel Kilner went with us through the school, the shops and the Red Cross and Y buildings. I think the secretary was surprised to see here the really expert flying considered necessary to prepare aviators for their hazardous life at the front.

Aviation had now developed into a real fighting service, in contrast to the early days of the war, when aviators of opposing armies used to salute each other as they passed on flights of hostile observation. By the time we entered the war airplanes were armed and classified for different missions, and the training was based upon certain tactical principles of attack and defense, which our aviators had to learn and practice. But it was necessary to become an expert flyer to be an efficient fighter either alone or in group formation.

In trench warfare the aerial photography of the air service became the main source of information of the enemy's positions, from which firing data of the artillery was largely obtained. Although this took careful preparation, the rapidity with which our aviators learned was remarkable.

At Gievres, about 125 miles directly south of Paris, on our main line of supply running to the front, were 20,000 men employed under Colonel Charles J. Symmonds, managing our largest interior depot.

To illustrate the celerity with which the system operated we need take but one example, which occurred when everything in the depot was in full swing.

At 8:15 one morning in August a telegram was received ordering exactly 4,596 tons of supplies, including 1,250,000 cans of tomatoes, 1,000,000 pounds of sugar, 600,000 cans of corned beef, 750,000 pounds of tinned hash and 150,000 pounds of dry beans. At 6:15 o'clock in the evening, or just 10 hours later, this colossal requisition, which required 457 cars for transport, was loaded and on its way to the advance depot.

No other place gave such an impression of the tremendous task of supplying our armies and the perfection of organization necessary to do it efficiently.

The secretary got a bird's-eye view of the general plan which would provide the supplies for an army of 2,000,000, and which, with additional construction, would be able to meet the demands of an army twice that size.

Back at Chaumont I received word that arrangements had been made for the shipment of six divisions for training with the British—the 77th, 82nd, 28th, 78th, 80th and 30th.

Tomorrow—German offensive begins, British lose heavily. Pershing offers immediate aid.

Denishawn Dancers Appear On Erlanger Stage Tonight

The Denishawn Dancers, with Ted Shawn, the greatest group of exponents of the dance in existence today, will appear in recital at the Erlanger theater tonight, for their only performance in this city this year.

Fresh from new triumphs in Europe and New York, the Denishawns are bringing many entirely new contributions to their strange art on their present program. They are, beyond question, the outstanding leaders in dance innovation and, in Ted Shawn, present a male dancer who is acclaimed in European capitals as the outstanding figure in his profession of the age.

Shawn's dance "Orpheus," which he created for the Dance Congress held at Munich last June and which was acclaimed as the greatest individual performance of the event, is part of the program he will present at the Erlanger tonight.

The featured feminine dancer this year is a young North Carolina girl, Ernestine Day, whose lovely form and grace of movement are declared surety for quick rise to the highest pinnacles of her art. Others in the group include Regenia Beck, Gladys Tinker, Phoebe Baughan, Murial Barnett, Vivian Berman, Martha Hinman, Miriam Catheron, Campbell Griggs and Jack Cole. Mary Campbell is at the piano.

Many socially prominent Atlantans have already made reservations and the event promises to be one of the most brilliant affairs of the current season. While there has been a heavy seat sale many excellent seats are yet to be had at the Erlanger box office. Dances to the music of Brahms, DeBussy, Reger, Sousa, Scriabin and many other famous composers are in the announced program. Ted Shawn will present, among other creations, his dances of "The Divine Idiot," "Orpheus," "Invocation to the Thunderbird," Mevlevi Dervish dance, four dances to American folk music, the Flamenco dances and others. He will also appear in several duet numbers with Miss Day and with the ensemble.

BAPTISTS HEAR TALK ON SELFISH CHURCH

"Are Baptists Narrow and Selfish?" was the question which Dr. Roland Q. Leavell, of Gainesville, discussed in his second message of the series he is delivering at the thirty-sixth annual training school of the Atlanta Baptist young people in session at the First Baptist church. The 700 who attended on the opening night were joined by many new delegates from the sixty-odd Baptist churches of the Atlanta association. The school will continue through a Friday night session with classes and addresses each evening beginning at 6:30 o'clock.

In discussing the basic principles upon which the Baptist denomination has its belief, Dr. Leavell emphasized religious liberty, the importance of the individual Christian and the individual church and the freedom of each in its own way to carry on independently. "Baptists are narrow and selfish," declared Dr. Leavell, "not because of their doctrines but in spite of them. The principles of the New Testament on which Baptist beliefs are founded are as broad and unselfish as could possibly be held."

The meeting has had several delightful social features during the day, including a luncheon at the Atlanta Athletic Club at noon, honoring the faculty. James W. Merritt, of Gainesville and Atlanta, executive secretary of the Georgia Baptist convention, was the principal speaker. A luncheon at Davison-Paxon's Wednesday noon, in honor of teachers of junior and intermediate work, is on the schedule of social activities being enjoyed by the association officers, faculty and friends.

Wednesday night the school will start at 6:30 o'clock and the address by Dr. Roland Leavell will take the place of the regular prayer service.

The entertainment period each night has been a feature of the training school. Monday night Sibley C. Burnett, Louisville, Ky., led the crowd in amusing action songs. Tuesday night stunts by chosen groups, ending in a balloon race, were enjoyed. William A. Huey, musical director of the First Baptist church, rendered several vocal solos. Druid Hills B. Y. P. U. department is to present a play Wednesday night entitled "Wanted: A Maid."

Monday night Edwin S. Preston, state secretary of the B. Y. P. U., was presented with an automobile at the school. The presentation was made by Grady A. Lee, president of the Atlanta B. Y. P. U. Association.

LAST SUIT FILED FOR P. O. TRACT

Jury Today Will Hear Proceedings To Condemn Pike Property.

The federal government's suit to condemn the Pike property, the only unacquired parcel in the Hunter-Mitchell-Forsyth-Spring plot to be purchased as a site for the new Atlanta postoffice, is to be heard by a jury in the United States district court today.

Trial of the suit will be presided over by Judge William H. Barrett, of Augusta, sitting as a special judge for the North Georgia district.

District Attorney Clint W. Hager said Tuesday that he expected to offer only a few witnesses and added that he expected trial of the suit would be completed during the day. The Pike heirs are asking $155,000 for the parcel and the government has offered $70,000.

All other parcels in the plot were acquired by condemnation two weeks ago.

Dorothy Mackaye And Paul Kelly Wed in New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Paul Kelly and Dorothy Mackaye, both of whom served California prison sentences for the slaying of Ray Raymond more than two years ago, were reported by the Daily News as having been married today.

"We are married, and very happy," Kelly said, and that was all.

The slaying of Raymond, who was Miss Mackaye's husband, followed a fist fight between Raymond and Kelly. Kelly was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and Miss Mackaye to ten months.

Following their release both Kelly and Miss Mackaye returned to the stage. Kelly has been particularly successful, being a featured performer in the New York run of "Bad Girl" and other productions. He is to open in a new play at the Ambassador theater tomorrow night.

Rising Mercury To Follow Cold Morning Today

The thermometer will drop to four degrees below freezing this morning, two degrees lower than the minimum Tuesday, but thereafter will begin an ascension which will result in a return of the warm weather enjoyed last week, C. F. von Herrmann, the government meteorologist, predicted Tuesday.

A minimum of 30 degrees and a maximum of 46 was recorded Tuesday with the probalities that today's minimum will be 28 and the maximum about 50 degrees, the forecaster said.

Clear skies will remain, the weather bureau expert added.

State Decides To Pay Inspection Fee to City

The state of Georgia, the sovereign, capitulated to the borough of Atlanta, the subject, Tuesday afternoon and the sovereign, through its department of agriculture, will pay the city $18.75 as an inspection fee demanded by the borough when the state began to build an agricultural department annex near the state capitol.

As a gesture of good sportsmanship, the borough, if it approves the recommendation of City Attorney James L. Mayson, will rebate to R. L. Snyder, building superintendent of the capitol, a fine imposed in recorders' court when, acting on the advice of the attorney general of Georgia, he declined to pay the inspection fee.

Georgia Mountain Girl Softens Hard Hearts of Chicago's Police

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP)—This is a tale of the red clay hills of Georgia, of a young "upland" mother who could neither read nor write, of revenue officers and—a pool hall in Chicago.

Emma Christine, a girl of the "Cracker" country hills, was married when she was 11, a mother at 12 and twice widowed at 20. She has a daughter, Mary, 10; a son, Orville, 4.

Northward the tale spins—into a Chicago pool hall, where the two children were found deserted.

Then into a police station—today—whence Emma came.

"I first married Ditt Watts, father of Mary," she told police. "He was killed by a train three years later. Within a year I married Gilbert Christine. He was shot by revenue agents in Alabama two years ago.

"I had to earn a living. An uncle in Chattanooga told me Chicago was a good place. I came here, met a man who said he would take care of the children. He took them, gave me work in South Chicago, and I didn't see my children for weeks.

"Then Sunday I saw their pictures in a paper. I had a friend read what it said—that they were left in a pool hall. I want them back—want to send them back to my mother in Georgia."

And the police indicated Mary and Orville would soon be back in the red hills. And Emma:

Religious Forum's Adversaries Show Friendship at Meeting Here

Rabbi Barnett R. Brickner, of Cleveland, and Quin O'Brien, of Chicago, two of the nationally known debaters who are to take part in the religious forum at the auditorium on Thursday night, passed through Atlanta Tuesday night.

They were joined here by Dr. M. Ashby Jones, former pastor of the Ponce de Leon Baptist church, who had spent the day in the city as the guest of his son, Turner Jones. The trio left on the night train for Savannah where, with Clarence Darrow as the fourth speaker, they are to take part in a religious forum tonight.

At the Terminal station the friendliness of the three advocates of three utterly divergent religions was notable. Rabbi Brickner stood with arm thrown in friendly gesture over the shoulder of Mr. O'Brien, the Catholic, while Dr. Jones, the Protestant, discussed music and golf and national politics with both of them.

It was evident that, whatever they may say about each other's religious beliefs on the forum platform, they are the best of personal friends in private life. And all three were emphatic in their statements that Clarence Darrow, the agnostic is, personally, a "fine fellow."

Mr. O'Brien, who came from Chicago, was chiefly interested in the political situation in his home city. He declared that Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson, running for re-election, is making his campaign a literal circus affair. It was immediately evident that Mr. O'Brien's vote will not be cast for Mayor Thompson.

Dr. Jones was filled with the spirit of golf. He had just spent an afternoon at the Druid Hills club and he made arrangements, before the train left, for both Rabbi Brickner and Mr. O'Brien to visit both Druid Hills and East Lake on Thursday. Both are anxious to play on the home links of Bobby Jones.

And Rabbi Brickner was chiefly interested in locating various old Atlanta friends, made when he was here during World War days. He talked with Rabbi David Marx over the telephone and then the entire party attended the concert by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra until their train time.

MARY GARDEN MEETS JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 10. (AP)—Mary Garden, famous opera singer, met John D. Rockefeller here today and was so impressed with the aged oil baron she promised to sing some songs especially for his benefit at her concert at Daytona Beach.

"He's marvelous," the diva said enthusiastically after having talked to "Neighbor John" as he finished his daily round of golf.

"There's nothing old about him. His profile and keen eyes remind me very much of a mask of Voltaire I have in my study at home. He fascinates me," she declared.

Mr. Rockefeller greeted the singer with a steady handclasp. They chatted about the climate and "Neighbor John" agreed his winter home town left little to be desired in this respect.

Donation of this sum to the Red Cross was proposed by Mrs. Edwin A. Peeples at a meeting of the board of the Junior League. The motion was carried unanimously at the open meeting.

BANK IN DECATUR MAY JOIN FULTON

Depositors To Ask Atlanta Bank To Buy Assets; Full Payment Planned.

Indications that the assets of the Decatur Bank & Trust Company may be purchased by the Fulton National Bank of Atlanta were seen Tuesday when it was learned that a committee of depositors of the closed Decatur institution will present such a proposition to officers of the Atlanta bank within a day or two.

According to available information Tuesday such a transaction would include establishment by the Fulton National of a branch bank in Decatur. It was learned that at a meeting of 1,200 depositors of the Decatur institution Monday night decision had been reached to petition the Atlanta bank to absorb the Decatur bank through purchase of its assets, and to open a Fulton branch in Decatur.

Appraisers, it was pointed out, already have emphasized the fact that the Decatur bank's assets will enable it to pay every depositor dollar for dollar, and that its doors were closed January 7 merely to protect depositors.

Officials of the Fulton National Tuesday said no formal transaction had been initiated and that, although the Fulton would be willing to receive any petition from Decatur citizens in regard to the matter, no definite decision could be reached on the propositon before ten days or two weeks' time.

Based on the report of the appraisal committee, A. B. Mobley, state superintendent of banks, announced that the Decatur bank is solvent, and added that he feels assured that every depositor would be paid in full. The appraisal showed assets of the bank as $1,014,479.09; liabilities $740,722.59; a shrinkage of $249,166.48, and a total appraised value of $765,312.61.

NEW JERSEY TERRIER WINS BLUE RIBBON

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Champion Pendley Calling, of Blarney, was awarded the title of best wire-haired fox terrier in the fifty-fifth Westminster Kennel Club show at Madison Square Garden tonight. Pendley Calling won the best in show title last year.

Subjected to three hours of thorough examination, the dog, owned by John G. Bates, of Morristown, N. J., finished strong and eager.

The outstanding upset of the show came in the same breed and class when Weltona Frixzette, of Wild Oaks, failed to do better than third place. Experts said the dog obviously was off-form, since it was the first time in 14 starts that she has failed to win first place.

REHEARSALS BEGIN FOR EXTRAVAGANZA

Debutantes and Young Matrons Start Training Today at Driving Club.

Rehearsals for the Greater Atlanta Fashion and Beauty Extravaganza, which will be staged at the Paramount theater the week of February 23 for the benefit of Tallulah Falls school, will start this afternoon at the Piedmont Driving Club, it is announced by Ronald B. Woodyard, who will direct the production.

A large number of Atlanta's charming subdebs, debutantes and young matrons have been invited to take part in the extravaganza and it is expected that the event will be one of the social highlights of the season. Rehearsals will continue regularly until the opening night of the production.

One of the features of the extravaganza will be the selection of Atlanta's fashion queen, chosen by representatives of the various civic organizations here who will attend the production as guests of the theater throughout the week and cast their ballots.

The selection will be made on the basis of natural charm, poise, grace, and the ability to model clothes, beauty being only a secondary consideration. Each of the models will represent one of the leading and exclusive retail stores and business establishments of Atlanta.

The Young Matrons' circle of Tallulah Falls school will sponsor the event, with the co-operation of the Atlanta Constitution, the Paramount theater, the Ronald B. Woodyard system, of New York, and a number of prominent Atlanta merchants.

Staged in the form of a miniature musical revue, the Greater Atlanta Fashion and Beauty Extravaganza will be one of the most artistic and entertaining local talent productions that has ever been offered here. The various ensemble scenes which will feature a number of charming debutantes will be interspersed with many song and dance numbers and specialty acts.

Mr. Woodyard reports that construction has already started on the scenery and special stage equipment to be used in the production. A runway will be erected out over the audience so that the lavish gowns and fashion creations may be seen to the best advantage.

CANNON WILL ATTEND OPENING OF HEARING

Bishop Sends Nye Word He Will Be on Hand Early.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, sent word to the senate campaign funds investigating committee today he would be present at the opening of hearings tomorrow into his expenditure of anti-Smith funds in the 1928 campaign.

Chairman Nye, of the committee, has summoned three Virginia bank officials to appear for examination. The committee is acting under authority of the Glass resolution and in response to charges of violation of the federal corrupt practices act made to it by Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, Nye had not called the bishop.

"We want to find what use was made by Bishop Cannon of the campaign funds," said Senator Nye tonight.

The bankers to appear tomorrow are Perry Seavy, vice president of the American Bank & Trust Co., of Richmond; B. T. White, assistant cashier of the First National bank, of Blackstone, Va., and J. A. Booker, cashier of the Citizen's Bank & Trust Company, of Blackstone.

FRENCH ATTACKS NAVAL PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The dispute over immediate enactment of naval construction and modernization legislation was aired today before the house rules committee.

Opponents and advocates gave their views and in the end Chairman Britten, of the house naval committee, announced he would demand action as soon as the $344,342,000 naval supply bill is disposed of late this week.

Representative French, republican, Idaho, chairman of the house naval appropriations subcommittee, opposed both the $90,000,000 construction bill and the $30,000,000 modernization measure.

He charged it would be an unfortunate mistake to remodel the battleships New Mexico, Mississippi and Idaho, predicting that type of vessel would cease to be the backbone of the fleets because of airplanes and submarines.

French charged that most of those wanting this government to build to the limitations of the London naval treaty had personal interests to serve.

BIRTH CONTROL GROUP WILL FIGHT FOR BILL

Margaret Sanger Expects Opposition To Support of Liberal Measure.

BY H. C. THOMPSON.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(UP)—Advocates of federal legislation for birth control, under the leadership of Margaret Sanger, gathered here today to begin a struggle to strip some of the restrictions from the parity law put through congress 58 years ago by that earnest young reformer, Anthony Comstock.

Mrs. Sanger, chairman of the national committee on federal legislation for birth control, has organized an impressive array of experts to appear before a senate judiciary subcommittee Friday. She is expecting a sizeable opposition, although uncertain from exactly what sources it will develop.

"Particularly in this time of unemployment," Mrs. Sanger said in an interview after her arrival from a western trip, "it is necessary to distribute information on birth control. We already have seen deplorable results of undernourished mothers bringing into the world children who will be handicapped for life.

"Public institutions for the care of defective, sickly children are crowded to capacity. There is no more room. We have nowhere to turn but to congress."

The particular bill for which Mrs. Sanger and her associates are crusading was introduced by Senator Frederick H. Gillett, republican, Massachusetts.

It is known as the "doctors' bill," and would permit the spread of birth control information by physicians, hospitals, clinics and medical schools.

So sweeping were the restrictions in the Comstock measure that all work of this kind has had to be through personal consultations. The bill for which Comstock lobbied successfully prohibited the mailing of obscene matter, advertising of gambling materials and contraceptive articles, as well as the distribution of contraceptive information. Mrs. Sanger's group is concerned with nothing but the latter phase.

Comstock was only 29 when he conquered congress. It was just as President Grant was beginning a second term. Since then birth control has been argued in congress only once.

During her western trip, Mrs. Sanger encountered many incidents such as she has used so effectively in her books.

"There was a 34-year-old mother in Kansas City," she said, "who had had 11 children in 10 years. She was about to have another. A social worker was taking her to a hospital when the mother begged her to drive to the river so she could commit suicide. She said she simply couldn't provide for another child. She had twins."

Mrs. Sanger told of a case in Dallas where a 25-year-old mother had three children, all feeble-minded.

PINCHOT URGES STATE CHANGES

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 10.—(AP) Governor Gifford Pinchot today asked a joint session of the general assembly to enact legislation providing for a thorough investigation of the public service commission, clean elections, unemployment relief and a better system of rural roads.

In his third message to the present legislature, the governor repeated his former statements against the utilities and the public service commission and asked for an investigation of the commission and the utilities in which he would have an equal representation on the board of inquiry with each of the two branches of the general assembly.

Asserting that fraudulent elections destroy the right of a free people to govern themselves, he launched an attack on the "corrupt political machine" which he said had made the city of Philadelphia "more notorious" than any other city in America for election frauds.

WEALTHY CANADIAN LOST IN MID-OCEAN

WINDSOR, Ontario, Feb. 10.—(AP) James Cooper, 57, millionaire resident of Walkerville, Ontario, was lost in mid-ocean Sunday from the steamer Deutschland, on which he was en route to Europe, according to word received here late yesterday.

No details were received, either from Mrs. Cooper, who cabled from Switzerland, or from the New York office of the Hamburg-American line, owner of the steamer from which he was lost.

A native of Ontario, Cooper was in the saloon business in Detroit when prohibition came into effect. Then he transferred his activities to the border cities. He amassed a fortune estimated at from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 in the liquor business, while such activities were sanctioned under Canadian law, and retired several years before such exports to the United States were prohibited by the Canadian parliament.

GERMANY TO STICK TO YOUNG PLAN

Curtius Declares Reparations Menace To Peace But Says Nation Will Try.

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Despite the "menace to peace" represented by the reparations problem, Germany means to carry out the provisions of the Young Plan as long as possible, Foreign Minister Julius Curtius told the reichstag today.

He reminded his hearers, reduced in number by an unexpected walkout of the national solialists or fascists and nationalists, that Germany had never guaranteed her ability to pay war debts, and predicted that the "spectre of reparations" never would be laid until economic common sense and justice finally have their way."

Turning to the demand of the fascists that Germany withdraw from the League of Nations, Dr. Curtius declared that the present was no time to walk out in a huff.

Even if there had been "many disappointments," specially for Germany, "it is better inside than outside," and the hope of Europe lies in European solidarity, he declared.

The foreign minister characterized the world disarmament conference called for next year as the "touchstone of the efficacy of the League of Nations," and declared that the league's very existence would be threatened if it proved itself unable to solve the problem of disarmament.

The reparations problem, however, he said, was a menace to peace and would not cease to haunt the world "until economic common sense and juctice finally prevail."

The insurgent Hitlerites, after making their demand for withdrawal from the league, marched out with shouts of "Hail, hail." They further signified their dissatisfaction by resigning their reichstag vice presidency and all committee chairmanships.

Crowded galleries and an attentive house listened earnestly to the foreign minister as he pleaded for a constructive policy.

11 ORDERED RELEASED FROM LEPROSARIUM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Release of 11 lepers from the Carville (La.) leprosarium has been ordered by Surgeon General Cumming, of the public health service.

This is the largest number ever freed at one time from the institntion, the only one of its kind in the United States.

The surgeon general's order, which has been mailed to Carville, was based on scientific certification that the lepers had been restored to health and no longer were a public menace.

The 11, who come from eight different states, make a total of 89 lepers rehabilitated in the ten years the institution has been administered by the public health service.

Safe, Secure sanitary protection —that's Kotex

YOU should make certain—when you buy sanitary pads—that you are getting the safest protection possible. Protect your health. Assure your comfort. Feel well groomed, at ease. Be sure you ask for Kotex.

Kotex is soft, gentle, easy. And it stays soft. It absorbs laterally—that means greater efficiency—a greater area of protection than other types of pad give you. It gives equal protection, worn on either side. Of course, Kotex is disposable, too. That's why millions of women first abandoned old-fashioned makeshifts.

Hospitals use both Kotex and the delicate, efficient absorbent of which it is made. That should certainly recommend it for your use.

Drama Work Presents Comedy Tuesday, Feb. 17

The Drama Workshop will present its third bill of the season at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium Tuesday evening, February 17, and again Thursday evening at the Druid Hills school for the benefit of the Parent-Teachers' Association.

The play to be presented is "Contagion," by Jean Thornwell Alexander. Miss Alexander is from Morganton, N. C., but wrote this play under the direction of Miss Nan Bagby Stephens, while she was a student at Agnes Scott.

Ben Atchison, the director, has had professional experience in all phases of the theater. He began his career as an actor at the age of 16, at which time he played a juvenile lead. Since that time he has been actor, manager and director. Mary Martin Ramage is the assistant director. Audria Bandy Gray is the stage manager.

At the close of the performance the Drama Workshop will entertain the audience at an informal reception for the cast. Mrs. Margaret Bland Sewell and Mrs. Charles Henry Sewell will act as hostesses.

Miss Waller Honored.

Miss Evelyn Harris, of Florida, attractive visitor of Miss Dorothy Waller, was entertained last evening at bridge by Miss Martha Gardner. Jack Thompson, well known violinist, rendered several selections. The guests were Misses Evelyn Harris, Bib Griffin, Dot West, Frances Tidwell, Frances Garmon, Joyce Robinson, Bessie Phillips, Skeet Waller, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thompson and Martha Gardner.

WHAT MAKES PEOPLE MOODY?

DID you know that our health and our moods are closely related to intestinal cleanliness?

Taking full advantage of the return of sunny skies, all of Atlanta air mail and passenger planes were able to get back on schedule Tuesday, after rather a tempestuous time of it the day before, meteorologically speaking. Along with the resumption of scheduled operations came several visiting planes, while commercial operators at the field put in a busy day, with one or two charter trips and much activity in the student line.

Fred M. Hirons, newly-appointed assistant superintendent of air mail— a position made necessary by the constantly increasing use of air mail facilities in the south—arrived in Atlanta Tuesday and spent most of the afternoon at Candler field, looking over the postoffice and making the acquaintance of government employes and aviation operators. In his new post, which was created recently by Postmaster-General Brown, Mr. Hirons will have complete supervision over all air mail activities in the southeast. He is a veteran in the railway mail service and recently served in the Jacksonville-Tampa-St. Petersburg division. Earl B. Wadsworth, superintendent of the air mail service, also was here Tuesday.

Dale "Red" Jackson, who with Forest O'Brine, holds the world's refueling endurance record, arrived at Candler field Tuesday as a passenger in Reid & Murdoch's "flying grocery store," on its way back to Chicago after an extensive tour of Florida which included a visit to the Miami races, participation in the state air tour and flights to the few other available points not included in the tour itinerary. Mrs. Jackson also was a passenger in the Ford Trimotor, which was piloted here by V. H. Johns. The big ship, conventional enough externally, is quite unorthodox on the inside. The customary Ford appointments have been done away with and several rows of shelves installed to display the complete line of food products manufactured by the company.

Carrying three business executives on a hurried mission, to Augusta and return, E. W. Hightower, chief pilot for the Blevins Aircraft Corporation, landed at Candler field just before dark Tuesday in the company's Lycoming-powered Stinson. His passengers were Joseph Lamport, of Chicago, head of a cotton products concern, and two other executives of his company. The flight was without incident and the weather fine, Hightower reported.

Ralph Bardwell, who is connected with the Southern Adjustment Bureau and who covers his territory by airplane whenever the opportunity appears, Tuesday flew to Griffin to look after some claims resulting from a recent conflagration and returned late in the afternoon. He made use of a Curtiss-Wright Flying Service Fledgling for the journey. The Southern Adjustment folk are thoroughly sold on the time-saving opportunities offered by the air plane, Henry L. Collier owning a Monocoupe and using it almost exclusively in his travels for the company.

Bound for the Santa Monica plant of the Douglas Aircraft Corporation, where he will take delivery on a new Douglas BT2B for the local air corps reserve unit, Lieutenant Raymond R. Brown, air officer for the fourth corps area, took off Tuesday in the unit's Curtiss O-11, Falcon observation plane. Brown, accompanied by an enlisted man, will leave the O-11 at Kelly field, San Antonio, and continue his journey to the coast by train. The arrival of the BT2B late this week or early in the next will complete the unit's present quota of airplanes.

Having asked the prize-winning question in a recent contest sponsored by the aviation companies which participate in the Saturday night aviation half-hour, R. S. Fleet, of Courts & Co., today will reap his reward. Accompanied by Mrs. Fleet he will fly to New York early this morning in an Eastern Air Transport Kingbird and return after a few days' vacation in the north. A free round-trip was the prize for Mr. Fleet's query, which asked what the municipality of Atlanta and her citizens should do to further the development of aviation here to reap the greatest benefit from the expansion of scheduled service.

Several of the air mail pilots who, without flourish of trumpets, carry the mail day in and day out from Atlanta to all points of the compass, should be eligible for the "Airmail Fliers Medal of Honor," which was authorized Tuesday by the senate for the pilots who distinguish themselves in the service. Retroactive to 1918 under the terms of the measure, which was offered by Senator Phipps, republican, Colorado, the committee which will do the selecting can not overlook the humanitarian work of Gene Brown, E. A. T. pilot, who on several occasions apprised householders of the fact that their dwelling was in flames, and the recent feat of Joe Duckworth, another E. A. T. pilot, who led garage men to the scene of a stranded automobile, where two women were in imminent danger from a rising tide on an isolated stretch of Florida beach. If any of the awards are to be made for reliability and "on time" flying, a number of local air mail pilots have records which probably would not be approached if statistics from all sections of the country could be assembled and compared.

Minneapolis Symphony Delights Large Crowd in Varied Program

BY RALPH T. JONES.

A forest of bows sweeps in rhythmic harmony up and down. The cadences of the strings fill the old auditorium with shimmering notes of purest music.

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, one of the half dozen great symphonic organizations America boasts, appeared last night in a program sponsored by the Civic Music Association. For two hours an audience of several thousand people, of all ages, all classes and all types, reveled in the most perfect form of musical enjoyment. For two hours the inspired baton of Conductor Henri Verbrugghen led 90 great musicians through a program notable for its variety and for its range through compositions as diametrically different as night and day, as divergent in appeal as reason and emotion.

Opening with the "Egmont," overture by Beethoven, the program swung in its second number to a Symphony in E minor by Tschaikowsky. No two composers, living or dead, are more distinct in type.

Line Versus Color.

Beethoven is always the stickler for line, for clear, incisive composition. His works are remindful of an etching, or a black and white line drawing. Lovely in form and line and curve, perfect in aesthetic appeal. Exquisite and classic in architecture and in symmetry.

Then came Tschaikowsky, the emotional, the man who masses crescendos of accelerating volume into rolling, crashing climaxes. The composer who creates his effects in music like Turner painted sunsets in color, with great splashes of brilliance, with overwhelming masses of emotional thrill.

The Symphony played last night was typical of the great Russian at his best. It was evidently new to a large portion of the audience, but as each movement piled up thrills until the majesty and power of the finale swept over the listening thousands, they responded with rapt attention and unstinted applause. It is in four movements, Andante, Romanza, Valse and Finale and each is vivid with the spirit of its creator.

The second half of the program was of simpler type—following the modern rule of all musicians to get through the heavier numbers at the beginning.

Popular Compositions.

It opened with the universally known "Variations," by Haydn, on the old national hymn of Austria. The Minneapolis orchestra is notable for its emphasis upon the stringed instruments and it is ideally suited for such numbers as this.

Next came the popular two Hungarian dances by Brahms. Many young musical students in last night's audience enjoyed a special thrill at hearing the "pieces" they have toiled over for hours played exactly as they should be played.

An arrangement of Liszt's "Liebestraum" by Conductor Verbrugghen drew the biggest applause of the evening and the program closed—except for a clever little encore in the thoroughly modern style—with Berlioz' inspiring Hungarian March.

Conductor Verbrugghen has created, at Minneapolis, a symphony that compares favorably with the best the world can offer. He is partial to the strings, as noted, but his brasses are heard with ample power wherever the score calls for their effect. His woodwinds, while light, are sufficient and perfect in tone. But it is the splendid sweep of melody from the violins, violas and cellos by which he gets his finest effects and it is doubtful if there is an orchestra in the world today with a finer group of violinists.

The program last night was extremely popular in type, yet it carried sufficient numbers of a rather heavier caliber to have an important educational value. It was a splendid demonstration of what can be done with a symphony orchestra and of its importance in the cultural life of any city.

The Minneapolis symphony has been in existence for 28 years. Its early beginnings were comparatively humble, but today it is an asset of greatest civic pride. It has become a truly great institution.

The Civic Music Association of Atlanta is due the thanks of Atlanta for the splendid gift of last night's concert.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

PETER DISCOVERS TREES.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

In knowledge he begins to grow
—Old Mother Nature.

"Show me a sleeping tree. Show me just one sleeping tree," begged Peter, and his voice sounded more scornful than ever. "The idea of a tree sleeping! Show me just one."

"You'll have to wait awhile," replied Whitefoot. "Hooty the Owl chased you into this hollow log and very likely he is somewhere near waiting for you to come out. Any way I don't intend to risk my life just to show you a sleeping tree. Did it ever occur to you to wonder what the trees that dropped their leaves last fall are doing?"

"I——" Peter hesitated. "Well, to tell the truth I never have thought anything about it," he finished.

It was the turn of Whitefoot to be a bit scornful. "You didn't have to tell me that," he squeaked. "You are just like a lot of other people, never think about the things you see every day. All those trees are asleep, the maples, the birches, the beeches, the oaks, the apple-trees in the Old Orchard and a lot more. They are just as much asleep as Johnny Chuck or Nimbleheels the Jumping Mouse or Buster Bear or Grandfather Frog. All the bushes and the brambles in the dear Old Briar Patch are asleep, too. It is a queer thing to me how people live day after day without knowing or ever giving a thought to things going on right under their noses."

Peter couldn't find a word to say. He had to admit to himself, being honest, that what Whitefoot had said was true. He had watched the bushes and many trees drop their leaves every fall and become clothed in green again every spring without once giving the matter a single thought. It hadn't even occurred to him that it was wonderful. His chief interest in bushes and young trees had been that where they grew thickly enough they gave him protection from his enemies, and that in winter when other food was scarce the bark of some of these kept him from starving. As for the larger trees he just hadn't thought about them at all.

"Now the spruces and hemlocks and pines keep awake all winter the same as you and I," continued Whitefoot. "Anyway they keep their leaves and keep green. I guess perhaps they rest, but they don't sleep the way other trees do. When you say, Peter Rabbit, that you haven't any use for trees you just show how ignorant you are."

Now Peter Rabbit is honest with himself and with other folk. He was now. "I guess you are right, Whitefoot," said he. "Trees have always been just trees to me, just as stones are just stones. Now that you have mentioned it, I can see that trees may be of some use to me after all. I guess they are. I have to admit that a hollow log is very handy sometimes, and a hole just big enough for me to enter between two big roots has saved my life more than once. Of course if there were no trees there would be no hollow logs and no big roots. Yes, trees are of use to me after all. Funny how often we do not see things until they are pointed out to us. I guess I'll have to learn a little more about trees."

"You'll find there is plenty to learn," squeaked Whitefoot. "With no trees there would be no Green Forest and some of us just couldn't get along without the Green Forest. What do you think Chatterer the Red Squirrel and Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel and Bobby Coon and Unc' Billy Possum and a lot of the bird folk would do if there were no trees?"

Peter shook his head. "I don't know," he confessed. "I hadn't thought of that."

Former Employe Of Constitution Success on Stage

Ollie Whitney, Atlanta boy and, once upon a time, an employe of The Constitution, in the mail room, is back in the city this week after nine years' absence during which he has made for himself a considerable reputation as a dancer upon the stage.

As one half of the team of Olsen and Whitney, the erstwhile student at Edgewood school and Boys' High, is notable for the sensational stunts he performs in the acrobatic dancing for which he and his partner are best known. They have just completed a successful three weeks' engagement at the Paradise theater in Chicago, one of the houses playing RKO vaudeville.

Whitney's father was in the piano business here years ago, the family moving to Detroit about nine years ago. It was at that time that Ollie Whitney struck out for himself. His first stage appearance was as a Charleston dancer. He went over with audiences—met Ray Olsen, now his partner—studied and developed the acrobatic dance, and today the two of them are in constant demand as vaudeville entertainers.

It was immediately preceding his move away from Atlanta that Whitney worked for The Constitution. He was a member of the mailing room force for three years.

WAYWARD BOYE BOSWELLED BY Ed Danforth

The September Hound

Above is an exclusive photograph of the new breed, the September Hound, a type developed by Wayward Boye as the ideal apartment house dog. His chops, feet, ears and tail are purple and his body is as smooth as china. In fact it is china. This dog will be exhibited in the coming Atlanta dog show, or sometime.

"There are 76 breeds on display including two never shown here before, the border terrier and the rottweiler"—News item about New York dog show.

But for a slight misunderstanding with a traffic officer, Wayward Boye would have entered his dog in the Westminster Kennel Club show in New York this week. That would have made three hitherto unknown breeds on the bench instead of the two mentioned in the news report.

It all came about when Wayward, thinking about something else, ran past the traffic officer stationed at Spring Street school to chat with the comely matrons who drive up in expensive motor cars to deliver Junior and Sissy at the gate.

The officer piled in and pulled out a pad and began writing on a piece of blue paper, muttering in his shaving lotion something about "learning you fresh guys."

"Where is this fire?" he asked as he mashed the accelerator down.

It was only by the application of a blackjack to the old Boye skull that the traffic officer broke up the party.

THE NOBLE EXPERIMENT.

For years Wayward has been experimenting to produce the ideal apartment house dog.

It was not until the spring of 1930 that Wayward finally succeeded in developing exactly the type he wanted.

He has called this new breed "September Hound" in honor of that month so dear to apartment dwellers when they move to get from under the folks in the apartment above who own a dog and a piano. Also the name ditsinguishes the breed from "July Hound," an ornery dog used in fox hunting.

Wayward started out with a wire-haired fox terrier and a passion for detail. First he trained this mutt—the Adam of the new breed so to speak—always to wipe his feet on a doormat before entering the house. Then he crossed the wire hair with a Great Dane because Ralph McGill insists that a Great Dane some day will sit in the presidential chair of our nation, he is that intelligent.

In a few years he had constructed for this paragon of apartment house dogs a family tree that included an iron dog (for the lawn), a bird dog, a dog watch and a fire dog.

He can be set to bark at a certain hour each morning (a trait inherited from his dog watch ancestor) like an alarm clock.

He never drags unmentionables from the bedroom into the living room when company is present. He has a nose only for birds.

He sits still in a corner like a fire dog and does not have to be routed off the davenport when company comes.

And from his distinguished forbear, the iron dog, he has inherited a stolid, rugged nature—his wants are few—just no trouble at all.

Stegeman Away, Mehre Coaches Georgia Five

Harry Mehre, Georgia football coach, will have charge of the basketball team this week and will handle it during the Georgia Tech game Saturday night at Athens.

Coach H. J. Stegeman, whose team has won 12 and 1 conference game this season, leaves this morning for the football rules committee meeting in the east.

"Harry will be in charge of the team," he said. "I am leaving in plenty of time to enable him to put in the Notre Dame system if he cares to. I think he will be able to win Saturday night. He hasn't suffered much since fall and needs some practice."

JACKETS RALLY IN LAST PERIOD AND WIN, 32-25

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 10.—(AP) Completely outplaying the University of Tennessee basketball team in the final period, Georgia Tech's quintet defeated the Vols tonight, 32 to 25.

The Vols held a 14-to-12 lead at the end of the first half.

With Bobby Dodd showing the way, Tennessee had the better of the going all during the first half. Tech appeared sluggish and its defensive work was ragged.

After the intermission Coach Roy Mundorff, of Tech, switched his lineup, sending "Slim" Perkins to forward and injecting Raines at center. This combination supplied the spark which set the Jacket scoring machinery into motion.

The game was never in doubt after the first two minutes of the last period.

After being held to a lone field goal in the initial period, Perkins opened up in the latter part of the game to bring his night's total to ten. Gooding and Tate also figured prominently in the Jacket attack.

Bobby Dodd, who soon will claim Georgia Tech as his new home, was the individual star for Tennessee. The guarding of Lucas was also good.

Vandy Is Beaten By Duke, 50-44.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 10.—(AP) Scoring ten points in a five-minute overtime period while holding Vanderbilt University to two field goals, Duke University's basketball team sprang a surprise here tonight in defeating the Commodores, 50 to 44, in their Southern conference game. The score at the end of the regular playing period was 40 to 40.

Vanderbilt led throughout the first half—which ended with the Gold and Black ahead, 21 to 14. Duke tied the count three times in the second half, but never was able to take the lead. The Blue Devils from Durham, N. C., scored three field goals in the last minute of play.

Dixie Golf Pros Attend Dinner

An unusual talkie film showing the manufacture of a golf ball from the rubber tree to the finished product and a film "Pros, Players and Profits," was shown Tuesday night at a dinner at the Piedmont hotel by officials of the golf ball division of the United States Rubber Company. More than 35 golf professionals attended.

Eddie C. Conlin, of Providence, R. I., sales manager of the golf ball division, was introduced by Harry Stephens, of the Druid Hills Club, and president of the Atlanta Professional Golfers' Association.

Just before the picture was shown Conlin gave a short talk on the golf ball industry of today. He pointed out that 2,500,000 dozen golf balls were sold by golf professionals.

Total golf equipment sales in 1930 amounted to $29,000,000. He also outlined briefly the purpose of the movie talkie and stated that this is the seventh showing. It will be shown in 47 cities during the year.

Assisting Conlin in the demonstration were A. B. Reisman and J. W. Sproul, representatives of the rubber company.

Cotton Protests English Ruling

LONDON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Henry Cotton, crack English golfer, has rebelled against the rule that members of the British Ryder cup team must leave and return together when they defend the cup against the United States at Columbus, Ohio, in June. Cotton said he would decline to be a member of the team if the Professional Golfers' Association of Great Britain did not rescind this regulation.

"I plan to go to the United States and compete wherever I can," he declared. "I plan to play in the American open. I would like to play for Great Britain but I must consider my own future."

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Henry Cotton, British golf star, will be welcome to compete in any American open golf tournaments despite his differences with the British golfing authorities, Albert Gates, business administrator for the Professional Golfing Association of America, said tonight.

'Old Jack' Quinn Signed by Robins

Quinn, the oldest active baseball player in the big leagues, who said today in Hot Springs, Ark., he was 42, but who is known to be nearer 50, wired Dave Driscoll he would accept the offer.

Jack has spent all but a part of the season in the American league during his big-time playing and the Brooklyn club figures his spitter will have some of the heavy hitting National league batsmen puzzled.

He began to pitch professional ball in 1903.

PURDY, BRUNER SET CUE PACE

By Herb Clark.

Winning from C. K. Faucett, of Chattanooga, while serious-faced young Tommy Johnson, also of Chattanooga, was upsetting Paul Lovejoy, of Smyrna, Monday's leader, H. N. Purdy, of Atlanta, and G. C. Bruner, of Birmingham, Tuesday went into a tie, each with two victories and no defeats, for top position in the southeastern sectional three-cushion billiard tournament being held at the Shrine mosque.

Lovejoy and Johnson, who triumphed over another fellow-townsman, Frank Moore, in an evening match, were tied behind the leaders with two victories and a single defeat apiece.

JOHNSON STARS.

Young Johnson's play featured the program Tuesday. Trailing the veteran Lovejoy in the day's second game until the pair reached the 30-billiard mark, Tommy drew even and made a battle of the match until each had 40-odd points to his credit. And here Johnson flashed superb shot-making to step away and win safely at 50-42 in 84 innings. His high run of three was bettered by Lovejoy's best of four.

In the final match on the Tuesday schedule Johnson continued his brilliant stroking, putting Moore's threat down, 50-23, in 70 innings, the shortest game of the tournament to date. Johnson compiled high runs of five and six and went out with an unfinished run of three. Moore was able to run but two, turning that trick several times, but each time failing to better.

Purdy, who had played but one match Monday, took his place at the head of the list in the opening match on the Tuesday program. He played steady billiards to trounce Faucett at 50-27 in 74 innings, compiling a high run of five in the process. Faucett's best was a run of two.

BRUNER RISES.

Bruner joined Purdy in Tuesday's semi-final game, being extended to but 50-33 by Faucett in a game which dragged to 135 innings as both players were left with impossible shots to an almost impossible number. Bruner made a high run of five; Faucett one of four.

Bruner and Moore will follow them to the table. Purdy and Lovejoy open the evening's program, while Faucett and Moore close the card.

The tournament will conclude with three matches Thursday, barring ties. Should there be a two-way tie for first place, it will be played off as the second of the evening matches Thursday. Should more than two be tied, the players will stay over until Friday to settle titular claims.

The winner of the southeastern sectional tourney will compete with seven other sectional champions and Robert B. Harper, of Denver, for the latter's national crown in a tourney late in March at a place yet to be set.

Louisville Star Joins White Sox

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The White Sox completed a deal to strengthen their outfit today by acquiring the services of Melvin Simons, youthful star of the Louisville Colonels, winners of the American association flag last season.

In the deal, Pitcher Ed Walsh, son of the old White Sox star, and Clarence Hoffman, an outfielder, who had been recalled from Indianapolis, were sent to the Colonels on option. A large bundle of cash also was sent by the White Sox.

Gordon A. C. Bows To Junior College

SMITHIES BEAT PURPLE QUINTET IN HARD BATTLE

Outplaying Boys' High throughout, Tech High checked the Purples' winning streak with a well earned, hard fought 27 to 26 victory Tuesday afternoon on the Henry Grady court in the ninth round of the Big Three schedule. The second game of the doubleheader between G. M. A. and Boys' High B teams was postponed because of mid-term examinations at G. M. A.

Tech High took and held a comfortable lead after the first two minutes of play. The Smithies were leading, 17 to 8, at the half.

Tech High played the entire game without a substitution and there was no individual star. Every player contributed his share to the victory. Copeland was high scorer with nine points.

Hardy and Scott played unusually well at guards as the sharpshooting Boys' High forwards were held to five field goals and a majority of those came late in the game when the Smithies had an eight-point lead. Towery played a good game at center for the Smithies.

For Boys' High the offensive work of Katz and Glenn was outstanding, while Stacy played well at guard.

Boys' High staged a rally in the fourth quarter after being on the short end of a 19 to 11 count. They fought hard to overcome the lead and scored the final field goal just as the whistle blew with only point short of a tie score.

Marist forged into the lead early in the game and was never headed. They were leading, 23 to 5, at the half and in the second period continued to pile up points.

Hoyt and Ray Lyle, at forwards, were the stars for Marist, with 14 and 11 points, respectively. Lacker played well at guard for the winners, as did Kunsberg at center.

For Marietta the work of Captain Beard, at center, was outstanding. He scored 8 of the 17 points.

Fulton High's boys team played one of the best games of the season, despite the absence of Moore and McGahee, two stars. Fulton led the East Point quintet throughout the game and was on the long end of a 7-to-6 count at the half.

Roberts and Conyers shared scoring honors for Fulton with 6 points each. The McDonald brothers also played well for the winners. Ellington played best for the losers.

Meets Khan Tonight

Pete Sauer, leading contender for the world's heavyweight wrestling title, will meet Ghafoor Khan, Afghan heavyweight, at the auditorium tonight. "The Bronze Man" has not appeared here in some months. Paul Jones and Charley Lehman meet on the same card.

LEGION TEAMS SEEK 'THE KID'

Elberfeld Gets Fine Response From Sandlot Baseball Nines.

Reaching town in the midst of a flood of requests for his services, Norman (Kid) Elberfeld conferred here Tuesday afternoon with Major Trammel Scott, state American Legion athletic director, regarding plans for assembling and developing sandlot teams throughout Georgia. They plan a good statewide tournament, hoping to produce a strong contender for national championship honors.

The former storm-king leader of Southern league baseball has been obtained as statewide coach by officials of the Georgia Legion. Atlanta officials made the first move in that direction by sounding Elberfeld out as to his willingness to coach local teams. Almost on the heels of that proposal came the one to make Elberfeld available to all Legion posts throughout the state which planned to sponsor entrants in the sandlot tournament.

THE KID AGREES.

The Kid, ardent baseball enthusiast, readily agreed. He has lauded the American Legion for its stand regarding the sandlot game since that body inaugurated its policy of conducting a national meet in 1926.

Elberfeld, who has held a school for young players in Atlanta during the past two years, will start his Legion work on February 23, coincidentally with the opening of his third school at Almand park.

No schedule has been mapped out as yet for his state tour. One will be made as soon as possible. Major Scott has sent notice of the project to Legion posts all over the state, and has met with a fine response to date. He plans to wait some time, to give other posts a chance to respond, before beginning work with Elberfeld on the schedule.

Elberfeld spent Tuesday in Atlanta, conferring with Scott on the Legion program and with "Tubby" Walton on plans for the local baseball school. He will return to his home in Chattanooga then, coming back here in plenty of time to complete arrangements for both projects.

MUCH ENTHUSIASM.

Elberfeld Tuesday expressed a vibrant enthusiasm for his coming work with the youngsters. He has been playing baseball for a long time, has the Kid, and he loves it. The idea of helping the game by training the youth of the land so that new blood will be ready for injection as the present stars of the diamond pass on is a pleasant one.

"I think it is a great thing the Legion is doing," said the Kid. "These kids, who like baseball, are getting a real chance to improve their play by being coached and by playing against others who have real class."

SAUER TO FACE KHAN TONIGHT

Jones and Lehman Mix in Semi-Windup Tonight.

John Paul Jones, the popular heavyweight, from Texas, will meet Charley Lehman, the wild man from Jones' own state, in the semi-windup.

A 15-minute preliminary between middleweights will open the card. The time is 8:15 o'clock.

Sauer, one of the greatest wrestlers in the game, has been scrupulously avoided by Jim Londos, the titleholder, ever since a match last fall in Phoenix, Ariz. Sauer and Londos went two hours to a draw there and since that time Londos has been engaged elsewhere when Sauer wanted a match.

Sauer is without doubt an extraordinary piece of wrestling machinery. "The Bronze Man" was working on the coast some years ago. The champion of the Pacific fleet, a big fellow, had won all the amateur matches possible. He asked for a bout with Sauer. Sauer refused, not wishing to beat the man before his shipmates. This caused them to think that Sauer was dodging the champion and eventually forced Sauer into the ring.

He threw the fleet's champion 10 times in 10 minutes.

"Yes, about 16 years of work and training," said Sauer.

Ghafoor Khan, the Afghan, showed fans last week that he was clever and tricky. Just what he can do with the inexorable force that Sauer becomes in the ring is something else. It should be a thrilling match from the gong.

Ticket offices report that the sales are going well but that some good seats are left in the ringside and the dress circle. There is no advance in prices. Ladies will be admitted to any sent in the auditorium for $1. The seats will be on sale until late in the afternoon at the Candler building soda fountain and at the Piedmont Hatters.

CLUB HAS TOUR OF 12,312 MILES DURING SEASON

By Ralph McGill.

It so happens that the 1931 schedule travels the Crackers 453 miles more than they traveled in 1930 and about 700 miles more than their nearest competitor in the league.

The Crackers will travel so much this summer that things are bound to look dark most of the time because of the constant association with Pullman porters.

The Cracker office found some time ago that the club traveled about 12,312 miles this summer in playing out the schedule which was unanimously adopted at the meeting some months ago. Birmingham is next with about 11,515 miles. The two non-Sunday clubs are forced to out-travel the others.

PELICANS ARE NEXT.

The New Orleans Pelicans are next with approximately 11,000 miles and the Nashville Vols are barely over the 10,000-mark or thereabouts.

The others fall off until we have the Memphis Chickasaws traveling a little more than 8,000 miles. The 1930 champions make less mileage than any club in the league.

"I knew that we had to travel more than ever before," said R. J. Spiller, the business manager and one of the owners, "but there was nothing else to do. I was afraid to try and change the schedule because our Saturday and Sunday dates were so much better. Last year we played Chattanooga in Atlanta most every Saturday and met them again on Sunday in their own lot. It got awfully tiresome to us and to the fans."

VERY TIRESOME.

The Chattanooga series did get very tiresome to the Crackers last year. The first two weeks saw the Crackers get very weary indeed of the Lookouts. The Lookouts licked the Crackers every time they stepped on the field. It was not until late in the season that the Crackers began to kick the Lookouts around.

As a matter of record the Lookouts took up six of the Saturday games last season and the Crackers played about as many Sunday games at Andrews field.

This season the Crackers will have 17 games in Atlanta on Saturdays and they will be well mixed up. The Lookouts come four times, but not in consecutive Saturdays. The Vols, Marines (that's Mobile), Chicks, Travelers and the Pelicans will play before King Fan at Spiller field on the last day in the week.

BETTER DATES.

"The schedule was adopted without a dissenting vote," said the Cracker business manager. "It was the first time in history that such a thing ever happened. It is very much like the 1930 schedule so far as the main details are concerned but we got better dates. That's why we accepted the extra mileage without change."

The Cracker contracts were mailed out Tuesday. There is nothing left to do now but sit around and listen for the footsteps of the postman as he brings in the mail. There is always a thrill in opening a letter from a ball player. His contract may or may not be signed.

Belle the Devil Features Trials

CAMP LEE, Va., Feb. 10.—(AP)—The brilliant performance of Belle the Devil, pointer gyp owned and handled by Raymond Hoagland, of Rumson, N. J., was a feature of the second day's running of the annual championship trials of the Association of Amateur Field Trial Clubs of America here today.

Running in the third heat against Eugene M's Buddy, setter, owned by Lynn A. Davis, of Binghamton, N. Y., and handled by J. W. King, of Richmond, Belle found five covers, four of which she handled perfectly, maintaining her speed throughout the two-hour heat and finishing strong. Observers agreed she had set up a record hard to beat.

Nine-Foot Bed Made for Carnera

Majors Will 'Lay-Of' Sandlotters, Amateurs

Major leagues will not scout sandlot or amateur players any more, according to R. J. Spiller, business manager of the Crackers, but will leave them to the minor league teams. The colleges will scouted by the majors but the minors may compete there.

"The new major-minor agreement provides that the major leagues will not send scouts to look over the amateur or city league sandlot players," said Spiller Tuesday. "They will be restricted to the colleges and to minor leagues. The minor leagues will be permitted to scout colleges and the sandlots will be their own private hunting grounds. This is a fairer agreement.

"Under the old rules the majors took the best of both the sandlots and the colleges because they had more money to offer.

"The Crackers plan to scout the colleges and the sandlots this season."

Wood, Sutter Will Rank One-Two on Davis Cup Squad--Richards

OTHER PLACES TO BE EARNED IN MAD BATTLE

By Henry McLemore.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(UP)—Clad in nothing more mystical than a tweed suit and a camel's hair overcoat, and not a crystal ball in half a mile, Vincent Richards today cast a tennis horoscope and foretold the future. Among his conclusions were:

Sidney B. Wood, Jr., New York, is America's best amateur tennis player and will be the No. 1 performer on the 1931 Davis cup team.

Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, will rate that No. 2 spot.

There will be a merry, mad scramble for the remaining places.

PROS AND AMATEURS.

Karel Kozeluh will defeat Big Bill Tilden when they meet professionally late this month.

An open tennis tournament is not far off and were one inaugurated this year a professional undoubtedly would win.

After making these predictions in an interview with the United Press, the one-time "boy wonder" and now world's professional champion, proceeded to reinforce them with a few observations.

"I play nearly every day with some member of the younger guard and Wood is the only one with everything, including touch. By touch I mean that important something, probably the ability to vary pace, that separates a good player from a great one.

"Frank Shields, ideally built for a tennis player and blessed with tremendous strength and speed, would be at the top right now if he but possessed that little something."

We asked if it could be acquired.

"Evidently it can, for Tilden did not have it when he started. Neither did Henri Cochet nor Rene LaCoste."

RENE THROUGH.

Speaking of LaCoste, Richards thinks Rene will prove of little value to France if he returns to Davis cup competition this year.

"No man, no matter how good he is, can lay off tennis for two years and expect to return to competition with a decent game. In fact, six months of idleness will all but ruin a player's game."

Richards believes Zozeluh will defeat Tilden for several reasons. First, Kozeluh, unlike Tilden, is at his best indoors. Second, the Czecho-Slovakian has command of every stroke in the catalog, and third, he can cover a court like a tarpaulin for five blistering sets and not bog down.

"I trained eleven and a half months for my match with Kozeluh at Forest Hills last year," Richards explained, "and I needed every minute of it to win. A week less of training and Kozeluh, not me, would have won the championship."

THE SPORTLIGHT

By Grantland Rice

The Fan's Winter Song.

Close your eyes while dusk is falling,
Dream, and hear that bluebird calling,
"Spring is coming, spring is coming,
Can't you see that fast one crashing,
Can't you hear that big bat smashing,
Can't you see those spiked feet flashing
Through the golden day?

I can see a blue streak winging,
Far away I hear him singing,
"Spring is coming, spring is coming,
With the first box score."
Come on, Babe, with one more crash, kid;
Come on, Hack, lean on that ash, kid;
All right, Mickey, take your smash, kid—
Only three weeks more.

THE general public's opinion of Max Baer as a chesty, arrogant, swell-headed kid is all out of line. I saw him the day after the Loughran fight. He had no alibis, but he had this to say:

"I was so ashamed of myself, I could hardly hold my head up. I did my best, but I knew it ought to have been a lot better. I knew what that crowd must be thinking about me, and whatever it was I couldn't blame 'em. I deserved to have my nose punched off, and I almost did. But I'm still not discouraged. I know now how much I had to learn and I'm going to learn it if I can. I may be a lot of things, but I'm not a quitter. I only hope I never look so foolish again in the ring."

Dempsey's Advice.

BAER can still be a great fighter if he will put his entire attention on his ring work, and not upon outside matters. As Jack Dempsey said to Baer while the three of us were chinning over the fight, "I have at least one thing to my credit. From the time I started up through the Firpo fight, I went into training with just one thought in my mind—how to get ready to beat the other fellow. That took in just 100 per cent of my ability to concentrate. If you do the same thing, you can go a long way. They need your kind now. If you don't, you might as well quit. You can't play two games at the same time."

Dempsey went quite a bit further, mincing no words. And Max said later, "I only wish I could get good enough to go one round with that fellow. What a great fighter and what a grand guy!"

Few people, taking rough and hard advice, react that way. Young Baer has the stuff, if he will only go to work on it. If he won't, as Dempsey told him, he might as well quit now.

After all, if a university wishes to handle its athletic system in a certain way, isn't that up to the faculty and the students, and not to the outside public?

Wrestling and Boxing.

"WHY is it," asks L. F., "that so many collegians, such as George and McMillen, are among the best in the wrestling game, while the collegians can make no headway in professional fighting?"

They are two different games. The boxer has to start younger and face a rougher road. High-class boxing skill is a rare quality. Natural punching ability is also one of the rarest qualities in all sport.

There are any number of high-class wrestlers, but how many high-class heavyweights are there?

Jim McMillen of Illinois has had one shot at the wrestling title in the Londos camp, while George of Michigan is the top mogul in the rival wigwam. The collegians are the big splashes in the mat game, but they are not so steamy in the ring trade.

Concerning Reforms.

ONE main trouble with reform movements in this country is that they often swing so far they lead to abuses and situations much worse than the original ever was. There is seldom any back spin on reform.

Football needed a few changes, such as equality of competition in regard to student requirements and a lessening of athletic scholarships. But with the reform movement opened up, there are some who would like to see the game abolished or thrown into the arctic ocean. If football is finally ended, what will take its place? This is one query that hasn't been answered.

Any faculty that thinks intramural athletics will take the place of intercollegiate athletics is also facing an incorrect guess.

It will be found that the intramural game will nearly always work better where there is also the intercollegiate plan. The main idea is to get the entire student body interested in some form of athletics, and this idea has been advanced rapidly in the last few years.

There has been a general extension of sport, far beyond football, that no one believed possible a few years ago.

Bill Tilden was 38 years old yesterday. As he was playing tennis when he was 15, this makes 23 years of tennis competition, and Big Bill has played more tennis in these 23 years than any single pair of legs ever carried before—unless they belonged to Norman Brookes. Even the Australian star never faced such tournament campaigns as Tilden has tackled, frequently lasting seven or eight consecutive months with almost no rest.

COLUMBIA MAY LOSE BASEBALL

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Unless a promoter is found before noon tomorrow Columbia will not be in the South Atlantic association this season, officials of the league said here today following a meeting with Columbia citizens.

It was decided at the meeting to wire President W. G. Bramham and ask him if the loop would operate the Columbia club for the first month of the season with others probably taking it over at the end of the time.

President Bramham said it was unlikely this would be done.

Tech Track Trials Moved to Saturday

Yanks Admit Six Men Holding Out

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Ed Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankees, has abandoned his dignified silence long enough to say that six Yankees have not yet come to terms.

He declined to reveal who they were but by process of elimination news gathers decided upon Lou Gehrig and Lyn Lary, infielders; Herb Pennock, Lou McEvoy and Frank Barnes, pitchers, and Fred Walker, outfielder.

The New York Giants, however, still maintain their policy of declining to say who has and who has not signed. The only acknowledged hold-out, is Bill Terry, clouthing first baseman.

CARD DIVIDEND.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 10.—(AP)—A dividend of $5 a share on 10,160 shares of stock, was announced today after the annual meeting of the board of directors of the St. Louis National League Baseball Club.

AMATEURS END DRILLS TODAY FOR RING MEET

Southeastern Boxing Tourney Starts Thursday at Athletic Club.

With the southeastern amateur boxing championship at stake, more than two score ambitious young pugilists will take their last workouts this afternoon in preparation for the annual tournament which opens Thursday to continue through Saturday at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Members of the committee Tuesday night checked over the entry list and more than 40 have been listed. At least a dozen more and possibly 18 will be received today and early Thursday, it was stated Tuesday night.

The tournament is being sponsored by the Atlanta Athletic Club. It will be held at the club gymnasium and is under the auspices of the National A. A. U. Al Doonan and Joe Bean are in charge of the tournament and George Griffin is chairman of the registration committee.

Fort Benning boxers carried off a large majority of the honors last year and a number of those soldiers will be back to defend their titles. Riverside, North Georgia Agricultural College, Georgia Military Academy, Tech High and several unattached representatives are already entered.

Baton Rouge To Start In Cotton States Loop

BATON ROUGE, La., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Baseball enthusiasts, at a mass meeting, decided to keep Baton Rouge in the Cotton States league this season by the purchase of the Highlander franchise from the Hattiesburg (Miss.) interests that held it last year.

The fans agreed to raise $5,000 to insure the Highlanders starting the season in proper fashion by selling stock locally.

HORNSBY PLANS SOCCER TO AID CUBS' TRAINING

"Rajah" Won't Bar Golf But Thinks It Hurts Hitters.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—(AP)—So far as their manager, Rogers Hornsby, is concerned, the Chicago Cubs may play golf at their Catalina Island spring training camp—after the day's work is done—but the chances are strong that soccer will be their only diversion.

In outlining some training rules for the team when it reaches the island February 17, the Rajah said today he would put no restrictions on golf.

"I don't intend to baby the team along," said Hornsby. "We are all going to work and work hard. While I don't think mixing golf with baseball is good for a player, it's O. K. with me after the day's workout is finished—if they care to play." The Rajah laughed meaningly.

"Golf might not hurt the pitchers, but I think it affects the hitters' swing. When they hit a golf ball they are striking a stationary object. Another thing, hitting a golf ball is an upward swing, which in the long run may cause a hitter to loft his hits also. This might result in a lot of useless pop flies."

With this off his mind, Hornsby spoke more seriously of spring training. "I think we'll try soccer football this spring. I saw some games at St. Louis and it struck me that this was the game to get the legs and wind in condition.

"Take the pitchers for example. I expect them to be able to do five innings without straining themselves when we launch our exhibition series March 13."

Hornsby is convinced he has a better hurling staff than was on the Cub roster last season. He expects much of Frank May, Cincinnati, and Lester Sweetland, Philadelphia, a pair of left-handers, and Robert Smith, Boston, new acquisitions.

War On Shift Is Over, Coach Stegeman Says

By Ralph McGill.

MR. HERMAN JEROME STEGEMAN, the big blond from Athens, thinks there will be no more legislation against the football shift.

Mr. Stegeman has been a member of the rules committee for some years and there are quite a few constructive laws in the book which he put there. He leaves this morning for the winter meeting of the rules committee. Yes, in New York.

Mr. Stegeman has seen the shift kicked around like a houn' dog for some years. He now believes that not only will there be no more legislation against the shift but that there may be some aid given to it.

"I THINK that there is a great chance for the penalty for violating the rules on the shift to be reduced from 15 yards to 10," he said. "The shift has now been perfected so that it is purely mechanical. Not so many years ago teams used it to get added impetus. Now it is used to unbalance defense. There is nothing wrong with the shift of today. That's why I think the penalty for violation will be reduced. Any violation is usually a matter of faulty timing."

The Georgia athletic director also looks for the committee to enact an important piece of legislation regarding the point after touchdown.

"I feel almost certain," he said, "that the rules will be changed so that it will be impossible to be awarded the point because the defending team fouled or to lose it through a foul of your own. The distance penalties, recommended by the coaches, will probably be adopted. This will simply add distance to the trial for point. It will mean that the point must be actually made or missed."

OTHERS LIKELY.

OTHER minor changes are likely to occur. The penalty for holding or backfield in motion is now the same as the penalty for unnecessary roughness, 15 yards. There will likely be some difference made in the penalties, one not being as severe as the other.

Harking back to the shift it may be noted that Georgia, which uses the Notre Dame shift, was not penalized at all last season for any fouls on the shift. They had one penalty the year before, in the final game of the year, the Tech contest. It cost a touchdown. Notre Dame was not penalized during the 1931 season for any misstep on the shift.

There is no great difference in the value of the two great schools of football, the shifting systems and the non-shift systems. The shift is in the ascendency because it has been successful at Notre Dame. In the south, and in other sections, non-shifting teams were successful, Alabama's victory in Dixie being an illustration.

At any rate it is interesting to note that the coaches and rule-makers have calmed down about the shift and no longer view it with fear and anger.

Coach Stegeman, whose Georgia basketball team is a winner, will not be in Athens Saturday night when his team meets Tech in the deciding game of the series between the two. Harry Mehre, football coach, will have charge of the team.

36 Holes Played By Babe First Day

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 10. (AP)—Babe Ruth, New York Yankee baseball star, played 36 holes of golf today, his first day here, turning in a card of 80 in the morning round and an 82 for the afternoon played in the warm sunshine. Ruth plans playing 36 holes daily until time to start spring training practice at Huggins field late this month.

JACKET SQUAD IS INCREASED BY 12 PLAYERS

Candidates Work Out in Cold; Maree, Dunlap Fail To Report.

"Cold!" That's how Georgia Tech's second day of spring football practice went. Ask Head Coach W. A. Alexander, who sent a squad of 73 men, one bigger by a dozen than that which reported for the Monday drill, through a session of calisthenics and fundamentals on Grant field Tuesday afternoon.

As in the Monday session, little time was wasted in getting down to the real business of the occasion. The Jacket coaches face some hard problems, both in the conditioning and training of their men and the teaching of the slightly-changed new system which will be used by the Engineers this fall.

The coolness furnished by the weatherman was more than matched by the heat supplied by the Jacket gridmen. The squad, following a short setting-up drill, was split into linemen, ends and backs and sent to separate sectors of the field for individual instruction on position play. Coach Alexander, overseeing the session, worked alternately with Jack Cannon and his aides at the task of teaching tricks to the tackles, guards and centers with Captain Robinson and his ends and backs.

Dear Sirs:

I want the cigar smoking public to be made conscious of the danger to health involved in any unsanitary methods of manufacture. "Spit-tipping" is disgusting and unhealthy. It will go when the public realizes it exists, and it is such a campaign as yours which will bring the public to this realization.

I commend your campaign heartily and wish you well. I have no objection to your publication of this letter, over my signature, if it will help in the good work.

Very Truly Yours,

Campbell Plans Speed Try in 1932

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Expressing the probability that he may return here next year in an effort to raise his own newly established automobile speed record of 245 miles an hour, Captain Malcolm Campbell, intrepid British race car driver, left here today for England.

He plans to stop over in Washington for a conference with American Automobile Association officials and a visit to the White House and then proceed to New York, where he will board the steamer Mauretania sailing Friday night for Southampton.

Campbell, who last Thursday clipped off a speed of more than four miles a minute in his giant Bluebird racing car, said he was not satisfied with his new record, but would let it stand for the present. He is anxious to get back to England for the track and road racing season.

DROUTH SANITATION STUDIED IN MEMPHIS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Requests for aid deluged Surgeon General Cumming, of the United States public health service, at the opening of a conference here today with health officers of drouth states.

"Two million dollars looks like a lot of money to them," Cumming said. "We will have to make it go as far as we can."

Granted $2,000,000 by congress for rural sanitation as part of the drouth relief compromise program, Cumming came here with Assistant Surgeon General Draper to receive first hand information from 22 states.

Accounts of poverty-stricken thousands, water shortages and threatened disease were given them. Draper said it was apparent some aid would be needed throughout the drouth area.

The state and federal officers adopted a general program for distributing the fund. It included five provisions:

Existing county health units will be supplemented, where need exists, by federal aid to depleted budgets and the temporary employment of additional personnel for emergencies.

Money will be made available for providing health and sanitation experts in counties or localities where none is now, with the understanding that states and counties share expense to the limit of their abilities.

Mobile units, working from central localities, will be organized as "flying health squadrons" under expert medical supervision.

All southern states and others as widely separated as Montana and North Dakota, and Ohio and Pennsylvania, were on Cumming's drouth list.

Dr. C. W. Garrison, of Arkansas, and Dr. Arthur McCormack, of Kentucky, whose states were hard hit by the drouth, told of acute needs.

Wilkins' Skipper Tries Out New 'Air' for Divers

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Captain Sloan Danenhower, who will command Sir Hubert Wilkins' polar submarine Nautilus, went to the bottom of the Delaware river today in a diving outfit—the first man to make a practical test of "synthetic air."

"No one has ever been under water before with helium," he explained. The "synthetic air" used in the test was a mixture of helium gas and oxygen.

"It tastes and smells different from ordinary air," he said. "It's the 'real McCoy.'"

Commander Danenhower was clad only in a thin rubber "inspection suit" which was not waterproof, and was soaked to the skin. The experimental diving helmet of copper and glass enclosed his head and rested on his shoulders. He controlled the flow of "synthetic air" by a valve under his chin.

Helium-oxygen, Commander Danenhower said, would increase the efficiency of divers, both as to the depth they can descend, the time they can remain under the surface at work and the speed with which they can go through the decompression process.

Ainsworth Explains Secrecy Of Cannon Investigation

Hoosier May Sacrifice Wealth To Save Bank Loss

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The Herald and Examiner says Peter Meyn, often referred to as one of Indiana's wealthiest citizens, will voluntarily turn over his fortune to save depositors and stockholders from loss in the closing of the First Trust and Savings Bank, of Hammond, Ind. Meyn is president of the institution.

The newspaper says Meyn's decision followed a meeting of the board of directors last night. The bank was closed a week ago. Withdrawal of $660,000 within a few days by large depositors and the deflation of real estate values, were blamed.

Bishop, in Answer to Editorial, Says Case Was Parallel to Grand Jury Probe.

MACON, Ga., Feb. 10.—(AP)—The Macon Telegraph Wednesday morning will print a letter from Bishop W. N. Ainsworth in reply to an editorial in that paper on "Why the Secrecy?"

The bishop says that he has read the editorial and adds: "You say 'the announcement does not contribute anything to the kindly attitude of the public in regard to the bishop.' You then call attention to the probable open appearance of General Smedley D. Butler before a court-martial and ask 'why make fish of one and flesh of another?' You conclude with the statement 'any effort to exclude the public and the press from this inquiry will serve to strengthen the suspicions under which Bishop Cannon rests and in his own interest he should demand that the hearings be public.'

"I stand amazed at these statements from an editor who claims to be animated by a purpose to be fair and just in his judgment of passing events. The investigation at Washington was exactly analogous to the work of a grand jury. Its purpose was to determine if general charges and reports concerning Bishop Cannon were of sufficient gravity and substance to warrant an indictment for trial by a proper court. Since when did a grand jury in state or federal procedure open its investigations to the public and the press? The case of General Butler is a military procedure and is in no wise like the government's own procedure in matters that are properly admitted to a grand jury. When The Telegraph demands that federal and state grand juries should open their investigations to the press and public, it can then with some show of reason arraign the righteousness of this ecclesiastical procedure, which is practically an exact parallel. The Telegraph in this instance was either grossly ignorant or too unfair in its purpose to hope for the approval of intelligent citizens regardless of their views of Bishop Cannon.

"In conclusion, I may say to the public that in this instance it was necessary to lock doors and keep policemen on guard to prevent reporters from invading the privacy and dignity of a church procedure, which the church has exactly the same right to conduct without interference as have the civil grand juries of the land, and numerous statements have been printed in the press dispatches of the nation about this proceeding and what occurred therein that are without any foundation in fact."

NAVAL STORES RELIEF MAKES LONG STRIDE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Relief for the gum turpentine producers of the south, through loans from the federal farm board, advanced a long step today, according to a statement made by Representative William W. Larsen, of Georgia. He is the chairman of a committee of house members representing eight southern states interested in this matter, which recently caucused and appointed a special committee to follow the matter up.

This morning the farm board, at a special meeting, adopted a resolution to the effect that it favored the classification of gum turpentine as an agricultural product. It also instructed its general counsel, Stanley Reed, to write a letter to Chairman Gilbert N. Haugen, of the house committee on agriculture, signifying the fact that such a resolution had been passed and asking for a legislative interpretation to that effect.

It is expected that this will result in the calling of a meeting of the committee by Representative Haugen within the next day or two to consider the measure introduced by Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, which has already passed the senate and gives the gum turpentine industry the status which it desires.

Such action by the committee would practically insure the passage of the George bill by the house and there is little doubt of its signature by President Hoover.

If this is done prompt action by the farm board in authorizing loans to the turpentine industry is assured, with the result that its members will not be compelled to throw their products on the market, which a few days ago seemed likely. At that time it was predicted that should they be compelled to do this, it would mean that the present price of approximately $4 per barrel would be cut about in half.

CENTRAL OF GEORGIA BUSINESS INCREASES

MACON, Ga., Feb. 10.—(AP)—January business of the Central of Georgia railway was 7 per cent above December and for the first eight days of February 16 per cent above the same eight days in January, A. E. Clift, an official of the road, said here Tuesday.

Two More Indicted In Slot-Machine War

Another indictment charging violation of the anti-gaming laws was returned Tuesday by the Fulton grand jury as a result of Solicitor General John A. Boykin's campaign against the operation of slot machines for other than "amusement" purposes.

Frank Rosier and John Walters were indicted jointly in the true bill voted Tuesday. A total of 53 indictments now have been voted against confectioners, grocers, druggists and others who are charged with keeping gaming machines.

Solicitor General Boykin said Tuesday after the grand jury session that the investigation of the "racket" will be continued. The prosecutor said since inaugurating the war last week he had received support from several parent-teacher associations.

WAGNER PLANNING BILL SIGNED BY PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—President Hoover has signed the Wagner bill which provides for advanced planning of public works as a means of combatting unemployment.

Senator Wagner, democrat, of New York, and Representative Graham, republican, Pennsylvania, had worked out an admirable bill, the president said, and he approved it "with a great deal of pleasure."

"The bill is not a cure for depression," the president said, "but it provides for better organization of relief."

In making his announcement, President Hoover said he wished to give credit to two men who had furnished a great many of the ideas incorporated in the legislation. The two were Edward Hunt, economist for the commerce department, and Otto Mallory, of Harrisburg, Pa.

"I have today had great pleasure in approving the act providing for advanced planning of construction and federal public works in preparation for future unemployment relief. Senator Wagner and Representative Graham have worked out an admirable measure in which they adopted the constructive suggestions of the various government departments. . . ."

JOURNALISM COURSES PLANNED AT INSTITUTE

ATHENS, Ga., Feb. 10.—Classroom instruction and discussions of various phases of journalistic technique will occupy an important place on the program of the Georgia Press institute at the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism, University of Georgia, February 19-21, according to Professor John E. Drewry, who will supervise the work.

Headed by Director H. F. Harrington, of the Medill School of Journalism, Northwestern University, who will deliver two lectures, followed by open forums, the instructional staff of the institute will be composed of teachers of journalism in Georgia colleges.

Professor Edward C. Crouse, of the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism, will conduct a class devoted to "headline writing and newspaper make-up." This is a subject for which there has been considerable demand by editors of weekly papers, Professor Drewry explained. Mr. Crouse, who is serving his first year on the Grady faculty, is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin School of Journalism. He has served several newspapers in various editorial positions.

Feature Writing.

"Feature writing" will be taught by Mrs. Willie Snow Ethridge, who has classes in this subject at Mercer University, and who herself is a prolific writer. Articles by Mrs. Ethridge have appeared in numerous magazines, including Good Housekeeping, Editor and Publisher, Atlanta Journal Sunday magazine, and The Nation. She is a graduate of Wesleyan College and is the wife of the managing editor of the Macon Telegraph.

Instruction in "news writing and county correspondence" will be by Professor Raymond B. Nixon, of Emory University. Professor Nixon began his newspaper career 20 years ago in the public schools of Ocala, Fla., when, with the aid of a lead pencil, he published his own newspaper. When only 12, he was running and printing a weekly in Tallahassee, The Capital City News, which won recognition for him as "the youngest publisher in the south." Professor Nixon has been city editor of the Tampa Times, and is now editor of the Emory Alumnus as well as head of the Emory department of journalism.

The class work in "editorial writing" will be directed by Miss Virginia Garner, head of the journalism department at Wesleyan College. Miss Garner is an experienced teacher of journalism. For many years she was in charge of this work at Mercer University. She has taught summer courses in journalism at Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tenn.

Ethridge To Speak.

Mark F. Ethridge, managing editor of the Macon Telegraph, will supplement Miss Garner's class on this subject with an address on "The Importance of the Editorial Page."

Business, as well as editorial, problems of newspaper work are included in the press institute program. A round table on "circulation and advertising rates" will be conducted by J. J. Thomasson, Carroll County Times; John Crouch, Gainesville Eagle, and Quimby Melton, Griffin News. Another round table on "job printing" will be led by M. L. Fleetwood, Cartersville News-Tribune; O. W. Passavant, Newnan Herald, and R. E. Hamilton, Dalton News.

These classes and round tables in journalistic technique will be held Friday, February 20.

Director Harrington's lectures on Friday and Saturday will be on "The Human Newspaper" and "The New Art of the Feature Story." Director Harrington was educated at Ohio State University and Columbia University and has had varied newspaper experience in Chicago and elsewhere. He has been visiting lecturer on journalism in leading American universities.

Operation After Death Performed To Fulfill Frances Andrews' Wish

ROME, Ga., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Mysteries of plant life were common knowledge to Miss Frances Andrews but death was the great puzzle, so at her own wish a posthumous operation was performed to make sure life had fled before she was buried.

The will of the 90-year-old scientist, probated here, provided that a doctor should sever the artery to her heart after she had been pronounced dead because she had a horror of a living grave.

Even in death, the internationally-known botonist did not forsake her fight against Tennessee's evolution law. She left $2,000 to her nephew, Andrew B. Andrews, of Dayton, Tenn., so he could educate his children "in order that their minds may not be dwarfed by the antiquated educational laws of Tennessee."

LUTHER H. ZEIGLER HEADS SAVANNAH BAR

Other officers chosen were Nephew K. Clark, vice president, and Stephen A. Wilson, secretary and treasurer.

New members are Julian Corish, F. Hartridge Shearouse, Gilbert Johnson, H. Sol Clark and Charles R. Clapp.

At a banquet which followed the business session talks were made by United States Judge Alexander Akerman, Tampa, Fla., of the southern district of Florida, and W. E. Key, of Jacksonville, Fla., of counsel for the Atlantic Coast Line railroad; Joseph M. Oliver and John R. Fawcett were the speakers from the local bar. Robert M. Hitch is the retiring president.

Mr. Key's address was on the "Evolution of Transportation." He traced the development from the primitive sailing of the sea in small ships to the construction of larger ships, notably the Savannah (1819), which was the first steam vessel to sail across the Atlantic, and the South Carolina railroad, the first chartered railroad (1830) in the United States.

"Improvements in railroad construction, change in gauge, the air brakes, and new rails of the 'T' shape, have brought about," he said, "the best constructed, the most honestly managed properties in carriage anywhere.

"The enormous growth of the taxation, increasing cost of materials, demands of organized labor for more pay, has been met by the railroads by showing results."

"The great waterways," he added, "brought by government outlays are carrying on the river barges operated by the federal government in value of freight growing as it loses, but injuring railroad routes."

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Public schools in Augusta were ordered closed today because of influenza, after a conference between Dr. Eugene E. Murphey, president of the board of health, and Lawton B. Evans, superintendent of schools. Rural schools were not affected.

About 12,000 pupils and 350 teachers are affected by the closing order.

"We cannot say how long it will be before the schools will be reopened," Murphey said. "We hope that about 10 days will be sufficient."

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—That generous whiff of bullish smelling salts which the stock market got last Saturday carried it on to further valiant deeds today.

Sales approximated 4,800,000 shares against 4,100,000 on Monday, the largest since the 5,000,000 share volume of December 17.

The composite closing price of 90 stocks, at 136.8, was the best figure since October 16, exceeding by a slim margin the December high. Rails joined the utilities and the industrials in establishing new 1931 peaks, although there was generally better strength in the last named category than in the others. Late profit-taking cut down extreme advances of 2 to 17 points.

Evidence that a technical corner existed in Auburn auto, at least to the extent that the stock was becoming increasingly scarce, was offered in its extreme rise of 16, and its net gain of 14 represented a rally of nearly 33 points in two days. Shorts in J. I. Case experienced five anxious hours, for that issue soared 15 points, holding all but 2 of the advance.

More conservative improvement was the rule elsewhere. Westinghouse, however, shot up 8 3-4 and Industrial Rayon 9 1-2 before reacting 3 and 2, respectively. North American, Eastman Kodak, Johns-Manville, National Steel and Republic Steel preferred closed about 5 higher, but other favorites were less enthusiastic.

Omission of the Gulf, Mobile & Northern preferred dividend broke the stock several points, but failed to disturb the other rails. New York Central rose 5 points and closed with a gain of 3 1-2. Union Pacific, Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio and Southern Railway also were strong.

Although the consensus in brokerage house circles regarded the movement as primarily governed by technical factors, today's market had some favorable news to work on. U. S. Steel's backlog rose 188,755 tons in January, an unexpectedly large gain, exceeding the increase for the same month in either 1930 or 1929. Publication of the figures at noon, together with a small increase in the price of copper and bar silver and the strength of wheat, corn and cotton, fortified speculative sentiment which really seemed to need little encouragement.

Rumors of a revolutionary outbreak in Russia received wide circulation, especially in Chicago where grain traders hastily covered on the theory that if the report proved true wheat might be relieved from the embarrassment of soviet dumping. July wheat closed 2 1-2 higher and September 3. Cotton made new highs for the movement in sympathy with grain and closed $1 to $1.20 a bale higher.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, 20 points up to 10.40; receipts 1,276; shipments 331; stocks 151,432.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Further advances met considerable realizing in cotton today, but it was absorbed on moderate setbacks and the market showed a generally firm tone with prices making new high ground for the movement.

Buying was encouraged by the action of the grain and stock markets and the highest prices of the day and movement were reached in the late trading when May sold at 11.08, or 22 points net higher and 128 points above the low record of the season established on December 15. May closed at 11.06 with the general market closing very steady at net advances of 20 to 24 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 13 to 16 points in response to relatively firm Liverpool cables. This advance attracted realizing which was coupled with some southern selling and prices eased off a few points after the initial demand had been supplied. March sold off from 10.75 to 10.69 and October from 11.55 to 11.49, but offerings appeared to be readily absorbed at these figures and the market soon turned upward again on a continuation of the trade buying coupled with further covering and a moderate commission house demand.

Trading was not as active as it was yesterday, but there was a very fair volume of business on the advance which extended to 10.81 for March and 11.60 for October contracts in the late trading when active months were about 21 to 24 points net higher. Closing quotations were within a point or two of the best, with March 99 points under December compared with a difference of 100 points at the close of the previous day.

Spot houses were among buyers of near months and there were reports of a firmer spot basis in the eastern belt.

Liverpool cables reported continental and Bombay buying with a slightly better inquiry for cotton cloth. Exports today 10,891 making 4,685,976 so far this season. Port receipts 23,909. United States port stocks 4,031,691.

NEW ORLEANS SPOTS UP 19-20 POINTS

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 10.—(AP)—There was considerable activity in cotton here today and prices moved upward steadily with only occasional and trifling reactions. Owing to much better cables than due and the granting by congress of an additional $100,000,000 to the farm loan board prices advanced 13 to 14 points in the early trading. Later prices continued to gain ground because of activity and higher prices for stocks and because of an unconfirmed rumor of a revolution in Russia. There was a slight setback when the Russian rumor was unconfirmed and prices rallied again with stocks until they showed gains over the previous close of 19 to 20 points.

The market again rallied in the late trading owing to advancing stocks and a better spot demand and active months made net highs 21 points above the previous close. The close was a point or two under the top on a little realizing and the general market closed steady showing net gains for the day of 19 to 21 points.

Liverpool came in 6 to 8 pennypoints better than due and private cables stated that the continent and Bombay bought. Manchester reported a slightly better cloth inquiry. The buying by Bombay was understood to be rebuying of contracts sold on the previous day. First trades here showed gains of 9 to 13 points and prices continued to gain during the first hour on the additional grant to the farm board and higher stocks. May advanced to 11.03 and October to 11.52, or 13 to 14 points above yesterday's close.

Although there were slight reactions prices soon rallied and continued to gain ground during the balance of the morning and in the early afternoon, May trading as high as 11.08, and October at 11.59. A sharp advance in wheat aided the market.

The market was again firm in the late trading owing to the strength of stocks and a good demand for spots, and prices made new high at 11.10 for May and 11.60 for October, or 21 points above the previous close. There was a slight easing off at the end of 1 to 2 points on realizing, May closing at 11.08 and October at 11.59, or 19 to 20 points net higher. Port receipts, 23,959; for week, 51,277; for season, 7,692,975; last season, 7,624,810. Exports, 10,941; for week, 36,787; for season, 4,550,041; last season, 5,022,442. Port stocks, 4,183,604; last year, 2,378,461. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston, 73,901; last year, 110,519. Spot sales at southern markets, 10,402; last year, 8,254.

Brokers' Views

Stock Letters.

FENNER & BEANE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—In many respects today's developments both within and without the market were the most interesting in many months. Evidence that market's technical strength had not been impaired by yesterday's sharp advance was furnished by the manner in which heavy realizing sales were absorbed up to final hour.

Successive buying waves followed brief resting spells and with release of United States Steel's unfilled tonnage figures for January at noon hour, semi-panic broke out in bear ranks.

DOBBS & CO.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—When the industrial averages surge through an established resistance level on heavy volume, it is logical to expect a further advance of 7 to 10 points in the averages before a sizeable reaction develops. That is the usual procedure as established by precedent. At last night's closing the Dow-Jones industrial averages stood approximately 8 points above the January 10 level. It is within reason to expect another sharp bulge in the early trading today. Profit-taking will undoubtedly assert itself and the volume of necessitous short covering will determine the extent of any further immediate recovery. It is inconceivable that careful investment buying will appear until the stock market has had at least a moderate reaction.

BEER & CO.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Today's market developed the most spectacular trading in many respects of the past year. Volume expanded to nearly 5,600,000 shares and there were large blocks of stock at the opening in many of the popular stocks, with some of the more volatile issues jumping 2 to 12 points above last night's close.

It was very evident that a large short interest had come to the end of its rope and there was a tremendous volume of covering at the market regardless of quotations. Undoubtedly from the size of the transactions there have been short positions of substantial magnitude which finally found the going too rough and decided to close out at any price at which stocks were attainable.

Buying spread from the stock market into the various commodity exchanges, with wide gains in cotton, grains and even a recovery in silver.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Despite general realizing toward the close stock closed with another substantial gain. Indications are that over 5,000,000 shares were traded in. The movement attained great breadth today, with many neglected groups taken in hand, which suggests that we may be getting near the reaction phase. It cannot be said that the heavy emphasis placed on short interest stocks today is a healthy sign.

Floor traders were as aggressive in searching out stocks which harbored large short interests as they were in uncovering weak long positions in December. Some of these operations were brilliantly successful but with no important improvement in the character of trade news looked for this month the wisdom of impairing the market's technical position to this extent might well be questioned. However, it is not likely that the short interest has been entirely run to cover.

COURTS & CO.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The market yesterday continued the sweeping recovery which started Saturday. All three of the Dow-Jones averages closed at new highs for the year. The industrials were up 3.48 at 181.20, the rails up 1.99 at 111.07, and the utilities up .51 at 66.16. Volume of trading approximated 4,800,000 shares, also a new high record for 1931.

Most of the fireworks yesterday were concentrated in the recently popular investment short sales for 1931. Auburn, Case Threshing, Vanadium and Westinghouse scored sensational gains on extremely heavy turnover. General Motors, General Electric, United Aircraft, United States Steel made substantial advances to new high prices, for the year on exceptionally large volume. With the exception of Auburn, it has generally believed in the financial district that all of these companies would have considerable difficulty in equalling 1930 earnings results this year. It is doubtful that the current advance in these stocks is based on any definite change in opinion regarding the question of 1931 earnings.

Cotton Letters.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Cotton closed very steady at a net advance of about 20 points in response to strong Liverpool and Alexandrian cables, price fixing in March and continued short covering. Strength of grain and stock markets contributed to the advance. Co-operatives credited with buying during early trading, replacing sales of spots with futures. There was realizing from time to time but offerings were relatively light and well enough absorbed on slight setbacks to maintain a very steady undertone. Trading not as active as yesterday as the activity in stocks absorbed the bulk of speculative interest.

FENNER & BEANE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Higher prices for foreign growths cotton and advances in stocks and grain encouraged buying of cotton today and market advanced a little over a dollar a bale.

Bombay and Alexandria started the day with a good advance. Bombay was reported a good buyer in Liverpool and that market came in much better than due. Added to this was a good advance in silver and much buying in American markets from European sources.

Domestic dry goods news was better with some mills in New England either resuming or increasing working time and prices for dry goods were firmer. Trade buying was one of the day's features.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The market opened strong on much better cables and after reacting under local selling advanced again on the strength in outside markets. Unconfirmed rumors of a revolution in Russia excited the grain and other markets and stimulated some buying in our market. It has been difficult to check these reports of revolution but interests connected with world wire news agencies state that they have been unable to confirm the rumor. The market held very firm, however, during the last hour, closing strong at the high 20 up on the day.

The selling that enters the market on all bulges is credited in some quarters as coming from farm board interests and although trading is not active, traders seem afraid to follow advances, fearing farm board selling.

Liverpool futures are due tomorrow: March 5.74; May 5.83.

BEER & CO.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 10.—With the exception of a reaction just after the opening, the cotton market continued the advance started yesterday, opening 9 to 12 points higher when Liverpool cables were 6 to 8 English points better than due. The foreign market was stimulated by an advance of Egyptian futures at Alexandria of 33 to 47 Egyptian points and at Liverpool of 21 to 23 points, as well as a recovery of 5-16 pence in bar silver at London. Rumors of a revolution in Russia also had a stimulating effect.

There was considerable price fixing by the trade. Liverpool and the continent, as well as quite a little short covering. Japanese interests bought distant months. Most of the selling was attributed to profit-taking after the substantial advance. Most of the realizing developed in the afternoon and prices eased off only to come back strong at the close. Net gains for the day ranged from 19 to 22 points.

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Rumors of a revolution in Russia whirled grain prices wildly upward late today. The rumors were discredited by soviet representatives, but big buying orders believed to be from European sources gave countenance to widely circulated reports that Russian political developments were disturbing in the extreme. A maximum jump of 3 1-2 cents a bushel by the Chicago wheat market was registered.

Wheat closed nervous 3-8 to 3 1-8 cents advanced, corn 1-2 to 1 up, oats 1-8 to 3-8 higher and provisions showing 10 to 20 cents' gain.

A sensational bulge in Liverpool wheat quotations preceded the Chicago flurry, but was ascribed to a temporary shortage of supplies there and to inferior quality of the stocks on hand. For the moment the effect of the Liverpool rise appeared to be more than counter-balanced also by dispatches saying Russia had slashed wheat prices in European continental markets. As a result, profit taking sales here broadened out, and the Chicago market ranged lower until after midday, when wholesale buying orders apparently on European account sent values soaring. The advance carried wheat to the topmost level since December 15.

Corn and oats tagged upward after wheat. Corn primary arrivals increased, totaling 841,000 bushels against 626,000 a week ago.

Provisions went higher both with hog values and cereals.

"If WINTER Comes—?"

When the wind blows coldest and the earth presents its gloomiest hues, Nature is preparing the fields for the new year's harvest. It is then that the farmer plans his sowing. Without a Winter there could never be a Spring.

It is the same with securities. Always the long Winter of deflated values, of pessimism, of timidity has been followed by the warming Spring of reviving courage and rising values.

The investor in Diversified Trustee Shares feels that, under the age old laws of progression and probability, the Spring cannot now be far behind.

And in the very same wind that some seem to think so bitter he recognizes the breath of opportunity. The investor may take advantage of this opportunity through a single investment in Diversified Trustee Shares, Series C, which provides a participating interest in the common stocks of the 50 leading corporations listed to the left.

Your local Bank or Investment Dealer will give you complete details upon request, or, if you prefer, write to American Trustee Share Corporation, 59 Wall Street, New York City.

COMPANY HEAD TO ASK DIVIDEND REDUCTION

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—E. B. Stanley, president of the American Laundry Machine Company, said at the annual meeting today that in view of the decline in profit he would recommend to directors a reduction of the quarterly dividend to 75 cents a share, placing the stock on a $3 annual basis, against $4 previously.

ORDERS OF U. S. STEEL SHOW HUGE INCREASE

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation, increased 188,755 tons in January to a total of 4,132,351 tons January 31. In December an increase of 303,960 tons was reported.

The backlog as of December 31 was 3,943,596 tons. On November 30 unfilled orders aggregated 3,639,636 tons. On October 31 the total unfilled tonnage was 3,481,763, and January 31, 1930, unfilled orders amounted to 4,468,710 tons.

While unofficial estimates in the steel trade had been vague, the gain of 188,755 tons was considerably larger than had been expected by the more optimistic, who looked for a gain of about 100,000 tons. A short time ago many observers thought a small decline might be expected.

The increase in part reflects, of course, the low rate of activity during January, when mills generally ran at less than half of capacity, despite the extensive resumption of activity after the year-end shutdowns.

The total volume of unfilled business on the books at the end of January was the largest since April of 1930, and a little better than the average for the past 12 months, which was about 4,000,000 tons.

BIRMINGHAM AIDED BY ORDERS FOR STEEL

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 10.—(AP)—Birmingham felt the increased activity in the steel industry in January, orders for approximately 118,334 tons having been placed with plants here.

The orders were mostly for steel rails and fixings, pipe and structural bridge materials. The orders, steel officials estimated, will furnish full-time operations for a majority of the plants in the district for the next six to eight months.

HIGHLIGHTS OF WALL STREET

By CHARLES W. STORM, Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(NANA) The stampede of professional bear traders continued in the stock market today and raised prices of the most active issues from three to more than 14 points, the maximum advance being scored in Auburn Auto in which the short interest became almost panicky. J. I. Case, with an advance of more than 13 points, reflected the efforts of the shorts to get back the stock they had sold at lower prices.

The exodus of the professional shorts was also shown to a lesser degree in Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing which closed with a net gain of five points.

New high prices for this movement were made in many directions. Profit-taking and the elimination of a substantial portion of the short interest caused the market to lose some of its momentum in the afternoon dealings, but closing prices were from one to three points of the highest levels registered for the day.

STEEL BUSINESS UP.

One of the most encouraging developments of the day was the announcement of an increase of 188,755 tons in the unfilled tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corporation for the month of January. This is the fourth consecutive monthly increase reported by the corporation. Publication of the figures came as a pleasant surprise and injected strength and activity in the steel stocks which advanced to new high figures for this movement. Steel common was the leader in the steel group.

Among the low-priced steels Republic Iron & Steel and Blaw-Knox attracted attention for their strength. The latter company announced earnings of $2.03 for the year 1930 which compared with $2.16 on a smaller amount of stock outstanding in 1929.

BIG BEAR TRAPPED.

One of the most widely advertised bears was reported to have been trapped in a number of stocks, the most important of which is declared to be J. I. Case Company. Reports were also current that another professional short, caught in the Auburn Auto market trap, had offered to settle for cash with those who are sponsoring the present advance in the stock, but was informed that all short commitments would have to be settled in the market.

Chemical stocks were in more urgent demand under the leadership of Allied Chemical, which is declared to harbor a large short interest. Davison Chemical, a low-priced issue, was also in greater demand at higher prices. In connection with the latter it was reported that the stock is being picked up because of the strong financial position of the company.

RAILROADS DO BETTER.

Transportation stocks participated to a greater extent in the general improvement of the market. Signs are coming to hand of improvement in railroad traffic. Some of the biggest transportation systems for the week ended February 7 are showing increases in car loadings over the preceding week. This was particularly true of Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, St. Louis & San Francisco and the Missouri Pacific systems.

COPPER METAL FIRMER.

A firmer tendency was reported in the domestic copper market and indications are that there will be an advance in the price of the red metal shortly. Higher prices for copper were announced in London and prices of brass here were advanced.

Public utilities were slightly higher but lagged in comparison with the advance in other groups.

Reports of a revolution in Russia imparted strength to the grain market but were ignored by the stock market.

HUGE LOAN PLANNED BY CHILEAN NITRATE

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Indications that financing for the Cosach, the Chilean nitrate combine formed last year, will take the form of a $45,000,000 bond issue were given in an official statement today by Pablo Ramirez, head of a Chilean commission that has been conferring with bankers here several weeks.

Reports from abroad stated that a $45,000,000 bond issue has been authorized by Cosach, of which $34,000,000 will be marketed in London and New York. The report stated that the issue would be secured by a levy on each ton of nitrate exported, up to a certain maximum beyond which shipments abroad would be free.

In an official statment today, Mr. Ramirez said: "The discussions regarding financing of Cosach, which are not yet concluded, have been generally along the lines of the foreign dispatch except the statement that bonds will be guaranteed by the Chilean government. This latter has never been considered and definitely will not be given."

It is understood unofficially that negotiations may be concluded soon. All the nitrate interests in Chile, the largest of which are those of the Guggenheims, of New York, form the combine with the Chilean government participating in the profits in exchange for certain concessions in taxes.

12 CREDIT BANKS LOAN $109,927,063

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The 12 federal intermediate credit banks loaned $109,927,063 to farmers' co-operative organizations in 1930 and discounted notes for $100,047,068, the proceeds of which had been loaned by local institutions.

These totals were shown in the quarterly report of the Federal Farm Loan Board made public today, and were greater than for any year since the organization of the banks in 1923.

Loans to co-operative marketing organizations outstanding at the end of 1930 amounted to $64,377,067, of which loans on cotton totaled about $39,000,000; wool, $9,000,000; grains, $3,500,000; dried fruits, $5,500,000; canned fruits and vegetables, $2,700,000; rice, $2,100,000, and beans, $1,300,000.

Sugar, Coffee, Rice.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Raw sugar was unchanged today but refiners seemed to be showing a little more interest. The sales reported were 41,000 bags of Cuban for February shipment to a local refiner at 3.30 duty paid. 37,000 bags of Philippines due February 23 to an outport refiner at the same level, and 9,000 bags of Philippines for April-May shipments to an operator at 3.38.

The market opened unchanged to 2 points lower under liquidation and selling by Cuban interests, but met increased covering and Cuban buying and the early loss was recovered during the early afternoon. The demand, however, was soon supplied and prices reacted partially again, with the market closing net unchanged to 1 point lower. Approximate sales were 58,500 tons. March closed 1.20; May 1.29; July 1.37; September 1.44; December 1.52 and January 1.54.

The decline of 20 points to the basis of 5.50 for fine granulated announced yesterday failed to stimulate any aggressive buying of refined and what little new buying was reported was limited to immediate requirements only.

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Coffee futures eased off after a somewhat irregular opening under liquidation and some trade selling accompanied by reports of lower cost and freight offers. No. 7 contracts opened 4 lower to 1 higher and closed unchanged to 9 lower. Sales 13,000. Santos contracts opened 3 lower to 2 higher and closed 3 to 7 lower. Sales 31,000. Closing quotations: No. 7 contracts—March 5.60; May 5.62; July 5.55; September 5.50; December 5.50. Santos: March 8.75; May 8.48; July 8.40; September 8.37; December 8.32.

Spot coffee dull. Rio 7's, 6⅛@6⅜. Santos 4's 9½@10.00.

RICE.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 10.—Rough rice normal. Sales none. Receipts 1,784. Clean rice quiet. Sales; Blue Rose $3.10; receipts 2,900.

Miscellaneous Markets.

DRYGOODS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Cotton goods were firmer and slightly more active today. Burlaps continued firm. Moderate orders were coming forward on men's wear and dress goods for immediate cutting. Silk was quiet. Moderate sales of silk goods continued. Rayon crepes were firmer and have been selling more freely.

METALS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Copper firm; electrolytic spot and future 9½@10. Iron quiet, unchanged. Lead steady; spot New York $4.50; East St. Louis $4.30. Zinc steady: East St. Louis spot and future $4.05@4.10. Tin easy; spot and near-by $26.00; future $26.20. Antimony $7.05@7.12.

RUBBER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—Rubber futures closed firm; March 8.00; May 8.10; July 8.30. New contracts: March 8.07; May 8.25; July 8.45. Spot—Smoked ribbed 7⅞.

Wall Street Briefs.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—January shipments of the Auburn Automobile Co. showed a sharp increase, totalling 2,014 cars, a January record, as against 1,632 in the like month of 1930. February production schedules call for an output of 4,650 cars.

Cash dividend paid by domestic corporations in January totaled $567,866,546, compared with $536,313,416 in December, a compilation by Standard Statistics Co. shows.

TARZAN, LORD OF THE JUNGLE No. 3

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Terrified, Tantor thought only of escape. Through the forest he ran. The herd followed madly in his wake, leaving behind them felled trees, trampled and uptorn bushes. He did not know that his friend Tarzan lay helpless and injured, at the mercy of the common enemy man. . . . The two Arabs and their party pushed forward to where the elephants had been resting.

Fahd was the first to reach the spot. "Wellah!" he cried, "I fired at the elephant and I have killed a naked Christian dog!" The others crowded about in excited curiosity. Motlog stooped and rolled Tarzan over. "He is not dead; there is no mark of bullet upon him," he said to Fahd.

"I will finish him," said Fahd, drawing his knife. "Put back thy khusa," ordered Motlog. "Let the sheykh say if he shall be killed. We will carry him back to the menzil. By Allah! He hath the size and muscles of a giant." Just then Tarzan moved ever so slightly. "Quick! Bind him!" commanded Fahd.

With camel-hide thongs they made the ape man's wrists secure and scarcely was it done when Tarzan opened his eyes. He shook his head like some great lion. He recognized the Arabs as ivory raiders. "Why am I bound?" he asked them in their own tongue. For answer, his captors laughed and jeered at his plight.

CURB MARKET GAINS QUIETLY

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—The whirlwind of speculative enthusiasm which permeated the big board was reduced to a mild breeze when it reached the curb exchange today.

Stocks closed higher, but as in the previous session the best gains were not in the active issues that ordinarily supply the bulk of trading, but in specialties and infrequently traded issues. The total turnover amounted to 730,000 shares, the largest since January 23.

Electric Bond & Share rallied about a point but lost all but 1-8, and Niagara Hudson, United Gas, United Light & Power, American Gas & Electric, and Middlewest Utilities were little changed. On odd lot transactions Duke Power rose 3, Standard Power & Light 3 and Public Service of Northern Illinois 8 1-2. Oils also lacked luster.

Issues to which traders ordinarily pay little attention had their day, moving up several points or so. A. O. Smith, Aluminum of America, Dow Chemical new, Driver Harris, New York Steam, Nathan Straus rallied 2 to 4 points. Neisner Brewery preferred closed 10 5-8 higher, and Celanese preferred climbed 9.

NATIONAL DAIRY PROFITS INCREASE

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Thomas H. McInnerny, president of National Dairy Products Corporation, said net profit to be reported for 1930 will be slightly higher than for the previous year.

Sales last year were around $400,000,000, against $390,000,000 in 1929. Net profit in 1929 was $21,576,175, equal to $4.04 a share on the outstanding common shares.

There's a "Best" Coal-- and Campbell's Best
If a dealer handles only a low-grade coal he can call it his "BEST" GRADE.
But it would fall far short of equalling Campbell's best grade.
Campbell's BEST is the highest quality coal to be had. Naturally, it costs more than inferior fuel—and gives you better service.
